What Happened to the Hospitals Report?

By JIM HUME, Times Staff Reporter

Three newly-elected members to the Regional Hospital District take their places at the conference table Monday afternoon.

They will be walking into a nest of confusion and conflicting interests.

And they will be faced, head-on, with a recommendation from the Hospital Advisory Committee, a sub-committee of the main board, to deprive St. Mary's Priory of 150 extended care beds—a direct rejection of the Agnew-Peckham report on hospitals and health services.

Hume

The decision to switch the long-promised beds from the Priory to Jubilee Hospital was made, significantly, during the 10 weeks Langford, Colwood and Metchosin lacked representation on the board. Their new members — Earl Pallister, Richard Emery and Kenneth Rainey, respectively — were elected last Saturday.

What happened to the beds on the way to the Priory? And who made the decision to toss one of the major recommendations of the $43,000 Agnew-Peckham report in the waste basket?

Chronologically the events went as follows:

On May 1, 1968, Dr. Harvey Agnew presented his massive 330-page report to the hospital district. In it, among many other recommendations, he stated that St. Mary's Priory should get 200 extended care beds and 100 intermediate care beds.

By June 19 the extended care sub-committee of the district board had studied the Agnew recommendations and endorsed the 200-bed recommendation for the Priory.

That recommendation, along with the Agnew recommendation, was endorsed by the full board the same day.

On Sept. 17, 1968, after three months of further review by the district's priorities committee, the 200-bed decision for the Priory was again endorsed, along with 200 beds for Mount St. Mary, 150 for Gorge Road Hospital and 20 beds for Lady Minto, Ganges.

Two more months went by before the matter came up again at the board level, this time with major and minor changes on the priorities list but with the Priory still in the running.

The revised list of Nov. 27, 1968, earmarked 150 beds for the Priory, 150 for Gorge Road and 20 for Lady Minto, and 100 for a new hospital on the Saanich Peninsula.

There was no surprise at the dropping of Mount St. Mary from the list as that hospital's authorities were having difficulty in deciding whether or not they could find room for expansion on their existing hospital site.

Following the November reiteration of their endorsement of the Agnew report, as it affected the Priory, the priorities committee took a brief rest over the Christmas and New Year holiday period.

Early in 1969 Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis stepped down as chairman of the district board handing the reins of office to Victoria's Mayor Hugh Stephen.

The new chairman brought with him a trimmed and revamped hospital advisory committee. Four of the new committee's members were from Victoria, one from Saanich.

Two of the non-voting politicians on the advisory committee were from Victoria and Esquimalt, the other from North Saanich.

The five voting members are Dr. John D. Hough, representing the Victoria Medical Society; William Morrison, representing the Hospital Administrator's Council; Dr. Embert Van Tilburg, representing St. Joseph's Hospital; Dr. A. C. Pickles, representing Jubilee Hospital, and J. M. Le Marquand representing other hospitals in the area.

Le Marquand is a member of the Rest Haven Hospital board.

The politicians on the committee are Stephen, Mayor Ray

Hellyer Focus Of Political Discontent

By ANTHONY WESTELL

OTTAWA—Hundreds of wires and phone calls poured into Paul Hellyer's office on Parliament Hill Thursday night.

Some urged him to seek the job of chairman of Metro Council, to run for mayor of Toronto, or even to contest the vacant leadership of the Manitoba Liberal party. Others from influential Liberals and private citizens simply endorsed his view that practical issues of housing, pollution and inflation are more important than legal arguments about the constitution.

The messages taken together show that Hellyer's dignified resignation statement Thursday articulated a widely felt sense of frustration and disappointment with the performance and priorities of the Trudeau government after one year.

By stepping out of the cabinet but remaining in Parliament, he has become a focus for political discontent seeking a spokesman:

- For the West, already restive and resentful of Prime Minister Trudeau's preoccupation with language rights and relations with Quebec;
- For city dwellers worried by smog, dirty beaches, grocery bills and the sky high cost of a home, and who don't see Ottawa coming to help them;
- For those many Liberals—almost half the party just a year ago—who wanted Bob Winters or Hellyer as leader and have just been waiting for Trudeau to make his first big mistake.

Sought Freedom to Debate Issue

If he wishes, Hellyer can place himself at the head of these and other elements to form an effective opposition to Trudeau within the Liberal party.

Without doubt, he will be pressed in the next few days to follow this course and to prepare himself—he is still only 45—for a new leadership contest in four or five years.

But this was not his intention when he went to see the prime minister after days of soul-searching, to hand in his letter of resignation.

He was seeking not power, but freedom from cabinet discipline to begin a debate which the government and the opposition have been evading.

He resisted Trudeau's efforts to persuade him to reconsider resignation, not for reasons of tactical advantage, but because he is approaching the end of his political career and looking forward to private life.

During his years of service in the Pearson administration, Hellyer came close to resignation on several occasions. Although he made his name as the defence minister who enforced unification of the forces with single-minded determination, he was always in fact more interested in questions of housing and the cost of living and was frustrated by his inability to put his ideas to work. He held on in the Pearson government to be in position to contest the leadership.

Some of us who travelled with him on the leadership campaign early last year got an insight into his intentions and ambitions in the hours of flying across the country.

We remember his firm promise to his wife, Ellen, that—win or lose the leadership—he would be out of politics by age 50 to start a new career.

Unprecedented Move by Trudeau

He might well have quit in those bitter days of the leadership convention when he saw all his hard work, careful planning and computerized organization dissolve before the inexplicable but irresistible appeal of Pierre Trudeau.

But Trudeau moved fast to reassure Hellyer by making him his deputy in the government and by promising him his head on the housing question.

After the June election, Trudeau appeared to seal the bargain by allowing Hellyer to lead his own task force to investigate housing and urban problems and to recommend policies to the government.

It was unprecedented to permit a minister to develop and propose in public policies that might be rejected by the cabinet, thus placing the minister in the position of accepting the rebuff or resigning.

Hellyer realized the implications of his appointment to the task force. He thought it meant that the prime minister was giving him a free hand to develop housing and urban policies which the cabinet would rubber-stamp.

When friends who knew more of Trudeau's mind tried to warn him of the potential dangers, he brushed them aside.

But the truth was that Trudeau—inexperienced, overconfident and distracted by many other issues—did not fully understand what he was doing.

And those around him, on his staff and in the privy council who should have known better, failed to persuade him in time of the difficulties.

Both Heading for a Collision

It was not until December, when the task force was writing its report, that both sides suddenly realized they were heading for a collision.

While he was on his Christmas holidays, Hellyer read for the first time Trudeau's book on his theory of federalism and came to the shocking conclusion that the prime minister might really mean it when he spoke of rigidly respecting provincial jurisdictions.

Trudeau and his staff, for their part, began to realize that Hellyer's report was not likely to be simply a

DERAILED TRAIN BURNS

RICHMOND, Ind. (AP) — Fires, explosions and streams of dangerous chemicals trailed a three-mile-long train derailment today between East Germantown and Cambridge City in east-central Indiana.

The 250 residents of East Germantown, eight miles west of Richmond, were evacuated because of puddles of chemicals which sent fumes through the town.

Minister Talks To Negotiators

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiators for Air Canada and for its 6,300 striking employees were expected to meet here this afternoon to continue negotiations begun Thursday in Montreal.

Spokesmen for the two sides had separate meetings this morning with Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey.

The two teams of negotiators were flown here from Montreal this morning in a transport department aircraft.

There was some confusion about procedures in and around the 10th-floor conference room in the labor department building when they arrived about 10 a.m. The two sides sat waiting and wondering what was going to happen next.

The union group was called to the minister's office on the 13th floor. Half an hour later, it was management's turn.

An aide to the minister said Bernard Wilson, assistant deputy labor minister, and William Kelly, director of federal conciliation services, were in charge of talks.

Air Canada's entire fleet of 108 planes has been grounded since last Sunday, when members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers walked out in a contract dispute.

An offer of a 23-per-cent wage increase over a three-year contract was rejected by a vote of union members last week. The union has pushed for a 20-percent wage increase in a one-year contract as a move to gain parity with workers handling similar jobs with United States airlines.

Under the old contract, wages ranged from $2 to $3.97 an hour.

OTTAWA (CP) — Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said today he hopes the promised coastal fishing rights baselines will be published within two weeks.

Home Price Soaring In Victoria

House prices are rising faster in Victoria than in any other major city in the country.

During the first quarter of 1969, the average sale price through multiple listing service shot up 35 per cent over the same quarter last year.

This added $5,895 to the average price of a house, bringing the total to $22,666—sixth highest in the country.

The percentage increase was the biggest of 12 cities for which figures were provided by the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards research department in Toronto.

Still ahead of Victoria, in average sale prices, are Toronto, $29,248; Ottawa, $27,250; Montreal, $23,682; Vancouver, $23,008, and Hamilton, $22,804.

But if the first-quarter trend continues Victoria will soon catch up with Toronto, which had an increase of 9.4 per cent or $2,521 in the average sale price of a house during the first quarter.

G. D. Peaker, president of the Victoria Real Estate Board, said today there has been "a fierce increase" in land prices and no new houses are being built in any quantity. Lack of sewers was one major reason.

He also said that Victoria has been far behind other cities in land and house prices in the past.

NUMBER DOWN

While the average sale price of houses in Victoria through multiple listing shot up, and total dollar sales were also up, the number of house sold went down by 14 per cent to 405.

This was attributed to the heavy snow and cold weather that lasted from Boxing Day to the end of January.

There were also decreases in Vancouver, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Ottawa and Halifax.

The research director of the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards, J. T. Blair Jackson, said the trend is not surprising.

With demand high and the percentage of single-family housing starts declining each year, "there will likely be a continuation of price increases."

Ten years ago, just over 60 per cent of all new housing was in single-family homes. By 1964, this percentage had dropped to 46 per cent and last year it was down to 38 per cent.

"Housing starts so far this year have not indicated any reversal of this trend," he said.

Home Mortgage Now $25,000

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau today appointed minister without portfolio James Richardson to handle housing policy following the resignation of Transport Minister Paul Hellyer.

He also announced today that maximum loans under the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation have been raised to $25,000 from $18,000.

Increase of the maximum mortgage was a major recommendation of Hellyer's housing inquiry.

The new maximum level will apply to all types of new housing construction except apartments.

NO SURPRISE

The appointment of Richardson was no surprise as he had been assisting Hellyer in the transport department.

First elected to the Commons in 1968 in Winnipeg South, Richardson resigned as president of Richardson Securities when he entered the cabinet.

In reply to questions in the Commons from George Hees (PC—Prince Edward Hastings) on whether Hellyer would be in the Commons later for a special debate on housing, Trudeau said Richardson now is responsible for housing.

Hees pressed the issue, saying Hellyer was in Ottawa and that it was "a matter of great importance" whether he would be present for the debate.

OUT OF ORDER

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux ruled the question out of order on the grounds it was argumentative.

Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) asked whether any or all public housing projects in Vancouver are being "stalled."

Richardson replied that all such projects in Vancouver are not being stalled.

Richardson said Hellyer returned a few days ago following a visit to Vancouver particularly concerned with public housing. The transport minister had as yet made no final recommendations.

Answering Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants), Richardson said the government's public housing "guidelines" will be made public as soon as possible but he could not give an exact date.

Richardson told Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West) that many of Hellyer's recommendations have been approved by the cabinet and legislation is in an advanced state of preparation. It would be brought forward "in the very near future."

Outside the Commons, Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. issued an announcement that the new $25,000 ceiling would be instituted "effective immediately" for all types of new housing except apartments.

APPROVED LENDERS

The federal housing agency said in its announcement that the new ceiling would apply to all approved lenders under the National Housing Act, including banks, life insurance and trust and loan companies as well as CMHC itself.

Trudeau said in the House that the maximum life of housing loans will be extended to 40 years from 35.

The government bill, introducing amendments to the housing act, would extend to existing housing generally, the same terms as apply to new construction, except that the maximum loan on existing housing would be $18,000.

Prime Minister Trudeau did not indicate who would be named transport minister when Hellyer's resignation takes effect April 30.

Considerable cabinet-shuffling may be necessary.

TORONTO AREA

The new man almost certainly will come from the Toronto area where cabinet representation has been reduced to two —Privy Council President Donald MacDonald of Rosedale and External Affairs Minister Sharp.

There are five Montrealers in the 29-man cabinet.

More than a dozen MPs were elected from the Toronto area last June. The three senior men are Robert Stanbury, Philip Givins and Ian Wahn.

Three Agencies Proposed To Handle Research Funds

OTTAWA (CP) — The Science Council of Canada expects to make recommendations soon to the federal cabinet based on proposals for a major realignment of the agencies that dispense federal research funds to the universities.

Dr. Roger Gaudry, vice-chairman of the science council and rector of the University of Montreal, told a news conference today he is preparing material so the council can give the government its stand on recommendations of the Macdonald study group.

To carry out federal research support, the study group proposed creation of three agencies. One would be a revamped National Research Council with responsibility only to support university research in natural sciences and engineering.

The other two would be a Health Sciences Research Council, consisting of an expansion of the present Medical Research Council, and a Social Science and Humanities Research Council, taking over from the Canada Council the job of financing university research in those fields.

. . . WHAT HAPPENED?

Bryant, Esquimalt, and Mayor James Cumming, North Saanich.

Also deliberating with the committee at each meeting are hospital consultant Andrew Pitkethley and regional district executive secretary William Long.

Pitkethley is a consultant paid a monthly retainer by the district board to advise on hospital matters. He is also the consultant for Jubilee Hospital.

While the new chairman was taking office and shuffling his key hospital's committee, three district representatives for Colwood, Metchosin and Langford had resigned their seats in protest over rejection by the voters in the three areas of a bid to incorporate as an organized government.

February was a confused and wobbly month at the regional district level.

But by early March a little stability was returning to the picture and St. Mary's Priory was gearing to prepare the way for the construction of a minimum of 150 extended care beds.

On March 12 a public meeting was held at the Elizabeth Fisher School to form a new St. Mary's Priory Hospital Society. The society's objective was to sponsor and steer to a conclusion the construction of the extended care beds.

The guest speaker at the meeting was Dr. Van Tilburg. He was present when a unanimous vote to form the new society was recorded.

On March 17, Priory officials forwarded to the regional district a report on the meeting and a list of names of new society members. They were 14 in number, from every walk of life and both Protestant and Catholic.

On March 19, two days later, the district's advisory committee met and passed a motion wiping out the Priory's 150 extended care beds and sidelining the Mount St. Mary beds. The 300 free beds were re-assigned to Jubilee and St. Joseph's.

The official motion, according to the minutes of that meeting, read: "Moved by Dr. Hough, seconded by Mr. Le Marquand, that this committee request the board at Jubilee Hospital and the board at St. Joseph's Hospital, provided Mount St. Mary board were not interested, to consider whether they would undertake construction of 150 extended care beds on the grounds of Jubilee Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital."

There was one dissenting vote cast and recorded by Gorge Hospital administrator Morrison. Van Tilburg voted for the motion.

Not recorded in the minutes is the strong presentation of Pitkethley who argued, and obviously persuaded the committee, that extended care beds would be better located at existing acute care centres rather than at the Priory.

Morrison disagreed with the decision and still does.

He holds the view, also held by Agnew, that extended care patients are better away from acute care facilities.

That was March 19.

On March 28, Jubilee, acting with unusual promptness, wrote the regional board via administrator Pickles stating that Jubilee was "prepared to undertake the construction and operation of approximately 150 extended care beds on the grounds of Royal Jubilee Hospital."

St. Joseph's has not yet replied.

That's the way the matter stands at this time.

The Agnew report on extended care beds has, until Monday at least, gone by the board. So have the consistent recommendations of the 1968 advisory committee.

On Monday afternoon the three rookie members of the district board could be asking why the Agnew report, hailed as the blueprint for the future by hospital, municipal, provincial and district officials when first unveiled, and the basis of a "yes" vote for $9.3 million for extended care facilities last fall, is now being so drastically revised.

In the fall of this year, or at the latest in 1970, the people of the regional district will again go to the polls to vote on a hospital construction bylaw.

If regional authorities decide to go for all the money they need in one lump sum they will be asking approval for expenditures of around $50 million for acute care beds.

Possibly before that time the district board will have decided to stay with its master plan—and to keep the people informed of the developing picture.

. . . FOCUS OF POLITICAL DISCONTENT

recommendation that Ottawa do more of what it was already doing in the housing and urban redevelopment spheres.

They recognized that the task force proposals might be controversial and desperate efforts were made to devise an introduction to the report that would somehow relieve Hellyer of responsibility for it, so that he would not be comprmised as a minister.

But when the task force proposals were fed into the system of cabinet committees, conflicts and difficulties soon began to emerge.

The task force proposals, particularly on public housing, upset many of the senior officials and experts at CMHC and activated the "Old Boy" network of key civil servants who have mutual defence pasts against upstart ministers.

Report Angered Social Workers

The report also angered many of the academics and social workers who had helped develop the conventional wisdom about public housing and resented Hellyer's brash assertion that they were all wrong.

They mounted an effective campaign against the task force proposals and found their champions in the cabinet—including Jean Marchand, an old trade union leader with conventional left wing views about public housing.

These interests formed an effective coalition in the cabinet which succeeded in bottling up Hellyer's legislation without specifically rejecting it.

The plans and problems were referred from committee to committee: From social policy to federal-provincial relations to economic policy to planning and priorities, and when all available committees had been used, new ones were formed.

The legislation in fact never reached the full cabinet for final decision.

At about Easter time, Hellyer's patience began to wear out. He became convinced that the mandarins in the Privy Council office were conspiring to frustrate him and that Trudeau had no intention of approving the initiatives he felt necessary.

His unhappiness about the housing program caused him to develop his dissatisfaction about other aspects of government policy, or lack of policy.

He began to grumble privately about the hours and days spent in cabinet on legal questions about the Criminal Code, the Official Languages Bill and the Constitution when there was no real debate on the economic situation, on pollution or the mounting cost of living.

Hellyer decided that by resigning he could dramatize what he thinks is wrong with government policy and, at the same time, satisfy his private interests.

Trudeau Surprised by Decision

He held up the announcement until Thursday because his daughter was taking examinations and he did not want to disturb her.

Oddly, he said nothing to the prime minister, and very few if any of his ministerial colleagues knew he had taken the decision to resign.

When he called on the prime minister Trudeau was taken by surprise, although he had realized that Hellyer was far from happy about the progress of his housing plans.

Trudeau did not attempt to hide the fact that Hellyer's resignation is a severe blow to his government and his political position.

He and his close advisers recognize that there is considerable national support for Hellyer's view, and that there are likely to be angry fights in the party and in the Parliamentary caucus.

They accept that Conservative leader Robert Stanfield has a capital issue on which to build in the west and that the New Democrats can exploit the split in the government in the cities.

Trudeau is now forced to explain and defend his policies, and he started to do so in the letter which he sent to Hellyer refuting his resignation statement.

He may have to go further and introduce stronger housing measures than he had intended.

Hellyer, in any event, has succeeded in focusing attention on the question which was largely ignored in the euphoria of Trudeau's leadership and election campaigns, and which the opposition parties in the country have failed to develop:

Can confederation be saved and unity assured by adjusting the constitution to conform with Trudeau's theories of federalism and with the ambitions of Quebec and other provinces?

Or is it more important to identify the basic problems troubling Canadians and then to adopt a constitution enabling them to be tackled by the government best suited to the task?

Low-Rental Project To Mark Anniversary

This week marks the 150th anniversary of the Independant Order of Odd Fellows. In recognition of the anniversary the provincial government has named it Independant Order of Odd Fellows Week.

To mark the milestone members of the Grand Lodge of British Columbia will be voting on a $450,000 low-rental housing project in Burnaby when sessions are held in Prince George May 12 to 15.

The Sovereign Grand Lodge will observe the anniversary when it holds its annual session in Baltimore, Maryland, in October.

The order was officially established in British Columbia March 10, 1864 on the formation of Victoria Lodge No. 1.

The order was founded in Baltimore April 26, 1819 by Thomas Wildey. It is now established in 19 countries.

Projects of B.C. lodges include providing financial help to aged members and dependants, a board residence at Newton for senior citizens, a children's summer camp at White Rock, bursaries for needy students, and conducted bus tours of high school students to the United Nations. Lodges also support the Odd Fellows World Eye Bank which pledges eyes to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Funds also help maintain a $625,000 endowed chair in opthalmology at the John Hopkins University Hospital.

The order's branch for women, the Rebekah Degree, was founded in 1851. Other affiliated organizations are Encampments, Ladies Encampment Auxiliaries, Patriarchs Militant Cantons and Theta Rho Girls Clubs.

B.C. has 165 units and a total membership of more than 9,000.

IWA Wants Immediate 12% Boost

VANCOUVER (CP) — The International Woodworkers of American Thursday said it is asking an immediate 12 per cent across the board increase on its uncompleted contract for coast workers in B.C.

Jack Moore, IWA regional director for B.C. and spokesman for the union's coast negotiationg committee, said the wage demand followed an earlier request that the union's coast master contract be reopened.

The contract is due to expire in June, 1970.

Moore said that forest industry profits were breaking records while heavy taxation and the increased cost of living have eroded the wage gains won for union members during last year's contract settlement.

Police Band to Play

A one-hour open-air concert by the city police youth band will be held Sunday in Centennial Square.

The band is under the direction of Ted Walford of the School of Music at CFB Esquimalt. The concert starts at 1 p.m.

Groos Makes Hospital Plea

OTTAWA (CP) — David Groos (L—Victoria) asked the government today to see whether women's facilities can be quickly upgraded at the Veterans' Hospital in Victoria.

At a meeting of the Commons veterans' affairs committee, Groos told Kenneth Ritchie, assistant deputy minister of veterans' affairs, the facilities are "very inadequate."

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

The weather has guided mankind for eons and eons in building up his ability to live within his environment. From the beginning of the human life form man had to take enough food energy to balance the output of his body's heat energy. In the earliest eons, the earth had a warm, tropical climate. Its inhabitants developed body temperatures that adapted to the weather.

Then man and animals began to roam and the need for adaptation to different weather environments helped to develop mechanisms and habits that assisted the nomads in preventing loss of heat from their bodies by providing insulation.

Animals and birds acquired feathers and furs. Men built huts, then insulated houses with thermostat heating. Men and animals have more or less defeated the weather's attempt to drain out more heat from their bodies then they can spare and still remain alive.

House Gives Approval To Cutback in NATO

OTTAWA (CP) — Two cabinet ministers most intimately concerned with Canadian policy on NATO, Defence Minister Leo Cadieux and External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, have defended the government's plan to cut the Canadian military contingent in Europe.

They led a government counter-attack in the Commons Thursday against two opposition non-confidence motions tied to the country's new-look approach toward the defence alliance.

Several speakers and several hours later, the government majority easily succeeded in turning back the non-confidence motions, one sponsored by the Conservatives and one by the New Democrats.

Then the House endorsed overwhelmingly a government decision, announced by Prime Minister Trudeau April 3, to keep Canada in NATO but reduce its military contribution by an unspecified amount.

The vote was 116 to 67, with only one opposition member, Henri Latulippe (Creditiste—Compton), voting with the government.

It marked the end of a two-day foreign affairs debate.

The opposition non-confidence motions defeated Thursday took the form of amendments to the government motion calling for concurrence in its newly-adopted NATO policy.

The Conservative motion sought to condemn the government for leading Canada from "internationalism to isolationism." It was defeated 137 to 47, with the other opposition parties backing the government.

The New Democratic one called for complete withdrawal of Canadian forces from Europe and a re-channelling of defence expenditures into foreign aid. It was rejected 165 to 15—the New Democrats standing alone in favor.

Mr. Sharp and Mr. Cadieux, both of whom spoke warmly in favor of Canada's NATO ties in the period of public debate leading up to the decision on troop cuts, rejected a charge that the new policy means isolationism for Canada.

Former defence minister Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary Centre) accused Mr. Trudeau of scuttling the Western alliance.

The prime minister, he said, was using French President Charles de Gaulle as his model.

"Perhaps he will go slower but the final effect will be the same," Mr. Harkness said.

ARMAMENTS VARY

Mr. Cadieux told the House that in their present roles, Canadian forces committed to NATO require different equipment and different training from the forces maintained in Canada.

To help prepare them for a role the government believes appropriate for the future, said Mr. Cadieux, "we must start now to convert our forces from their present roles in Europe and to plan the reduction of the total number of Canadian forces which are stationed there."

Turning to continental defence, Mr. Cadieux said joint studies have already begun between Canada and the United States on a plan to modernize the North American bomber defence system.

MILITARY PARADE CANCELLED BY SOVIET

MOSCOW (UPI)—Moscow television confirmed today the traditional May Day military parade in Red Square will not take place this year.

The television program for May 1, published today, listed only the "Demonstration of Workers" at 10 a.m.—the civilian section of the parade, in which hundreds of thousands of Moscovites from factories, ministries, institutions and sports clubs trudge for hours past their leaders.

Economy is considered one of the reasons for dropping the military section of the parade, which consumed inestimable amounts of gasoline and oil and thousands of man hours in elaborate rehearsals even before the performance itself. Most of the Soviet Union's east bloc partners had already dispensed with the military show for economic reasons in the past few years.

Guerrilla Crisis Ousts Premier

BEIRUT (AP) — Premier Rashid Karami of Lebanon met today with President Charles Helou and told reporters afterward Helou had accepted his resignation. He hedged when asked whether the president would ask him to form a new cabinet but he urged that a coalition government be formed.

Karami resigned Thursday night after four months in office, saying the country was split over whether Lebanon should become a base for Arab guerrilla action against Israel.

Karami was asked after his visit to Helou if the president would tap him again. He replied:

"The question of the guerrillas now is more important than personalities. It concerns the future and fate of the entire country. There must be co-operation between all persons."

With the country tense after two days of rioting in which 16 persons have been killed and nearly 100 wounded, Karami told a special session of Parliament that some persons advised him to give unqualified support to the Palestinian guerrillas. He said others warned such support would provoke Israeli reprisals.

The rioters were mostly Palestinian refugees demanding that the government give full support to the Arab guerrilla organizations which have been raiding Israel.

Karami said he had tried to help the guerrillas without endangering Lebanon's security.

KARAMI
. . . unrest in Lebanon

Despite pressure from the 160,000 refugees in the country, the government generally has tried to avoid involvement in the Arab-Israeli fighting.

The crisis threatened to cause a major split between Lebanon's Moslem and Christian communities, which are roughly equal in size and divide the posts of political leadership according to a detailed formula.

Karami, a 47-year-old Moslem, was serving his eighth term as premier. He took over in January from Abdullah Yafi, who resigned under the storm of protest that followed Israel's attack on the Beirut airport.

City Gives $10,000 To Trail Flood Fund

The city of Victoria this morning donated $10,000 to the city of Trail disaster fund.

Mayor Hugh Stephen made the announcement this morning.

At the same time Stephen said he was setting up a private citizens fund whereby individual members of the community can make donations to assist the Kootenay city overcome the flood disaster which struck earlier this week.

The mayor primed the special fund with a $100 donation of his own.

In making the announcement Stephen said his suggestion of a grant was welcomed enthusiastically by all available members of council.

Two members were out of touch, Ald. Clyde Savage on vacation and Ald. Cecil Parrott in Jubilee Hospital recovering from major heart surgery.

The mayor said the grant was being made "to assist the residents of the city of Trail to overcome the effects of the great natural disaster which has resulted in so much damage and loss in the city."

Private citizens wishing to make donations to help the flood-stricken interior city should mail their contributions to "The Trail Disaster Fund, care of Victoria City Hall."

All donations will be answered by a receipt.

In addition to the $10,000 grant and the establishment of the private fund the mayor immediately dispatched a telegram to Trail Mayor F. E. De Vito expressing sympathy and asking if there was anything else Victoria could do to help.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis announced this morning the municipality has established a collection centre in the municipal hall on Vernon Avenue for people who want to make donations. Receipts will be issued.

The money will be turned over to responsible provincial authorities, he said.

Committee Appointed

R. G. Anderson of Victoria today was appointed by the government as chairman of the Trail disaster fund committee.

Anderson is the former president of West Kootenay Power and Light Company.

Other members of the Trail committee announced by Resources Minister Ray Williston: Trail Mayor F. E. De Vito and Ald. P. Halliwell who also will serve as fund treasurer; R. L. Keiver, president of Steelworkers' Local No. 480; S. N. Mitchell, Trail businessman; A. F. Paget, former deputy water resources minister; and D. Martin, highways department regional engineer.

Williston, who is head of the $25 million provincial disaster fund, said the Trail committee will meet within two days to set up arrangements for receiving public donations to flood victims.

Massive Cleanup Under Way at Trail

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — A chorus of chugging pumps today sucked water from muddy basements in this flood-ravaged city, spilling it among machines working around the clock to clear debris.

The city moved to set priorities in the cleanup job, forced on it by a flash flood Wednesday which turned streets into rampaging rivers, chewing up pavement and damaging dozens of buildings.

Assured of provincial disaster funds, the city awaited word from Ottawa on requests from the city and Premier W. A. C. Bennett for federal money as well.

Meanwhile, Harry Edwards, Trail's civil defence co-ordinator, said municipalities in the area have sent in food "and cash has been offered from as far away as Edmonton."

There was no firm estimate of damage but the premier said it exceeds $1,500,000. Mayor Frank DeVito said: "The cost of this disaster is . . . beyond the ability of the city to pay."

Mayor DeVito said cleanup crews hope to have at least the downtown business area back in operation Saturday. A special seven-man committee was set up to handle aid to those hardest hit.

Alberta Moves To Crack Down On Drunk Drivers

EDMONTON (CP) — Six month suspension of the licence of a first offender will be mandatory in cases of driving while impaired under amendments to the Highway Traffic Act introduced Thursday in the Alberta legislature.

Highways Minister Gordon Taylor told the house the mandatory suspension was introduced several years ago but was tempered later to allow courts at their discretion to issue restrictive licences in cases where a person made a living by driving.

"Unfortunately, this issuing of restrictive licences by the courts has become the rule rather than the exception and a special legislative committee study of the problem recommended that this discretion be removed by the courts."

Taylor, said restrictive licences will be abandoned in favor of returning to the mandatory suspension.

Other changes in the act will allow a police officer to lift a driver's licence for 24 hours in a case where he suspects a person to be under the influence of alcohol.

Malaysia Buys Caribou Aircraft

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Nine Canadian Caribou transport aircraft have been purchased by the Malaysian government for use by the Royal Malaysian Air Force, it was disclosed today.

The Canadian high commissioner to Malaysia, J. G. Hadwen, said the aircraft, to arrive within the next three months, were purchased with a loan provided by Canada.

Somewhere in Between

MR. PAUL HELLYER'S RESIGNATION from the Trudeau cabinet was the act of a man of strong convictions and high integrity impatient of delay, who has the courage to carry out what he believes to be the correct course. Those qualities do not ensure that he will always be right, but they leave no doubt as to where he stands. In the present instance, the Transport Minister felt that he could no longer wait for agreement from his cabinet colleagues on his housing recommendations, and he could see no compromise on his differences with the Prime Minister in regard to Canada's federal-provincial constitutional jurisdictions.

For a man of Mr. Hellyer's temperament such a situation adds up to "get support or get out". Regardless of the individual nature of the contretemps, there obviously must be political repercussions from such a difference within Mr. Trudeau's government. There will be opposition observers who see in Mr. Hellyer's resignation the portents of further cabinet problems. But this so far can be only speculative. Mr. Hellyer was the Prime Minister's first-ranking English-speaking lieutenant and a strong member of the cabinet, but while his resignation is a loss it is not an irreparable one.

More interest should centre on the constitutional issue which Mr. Hellyer raised. While he has an immediate and personal concern in promoting housing legislation, his basic disagreement with Mr. Trudeau lies in a difference of views on the jurisdictions of the federal government and the provinces. He drew a sharp line between his own preference for a strong central government to deal with the provincial governments, and what he sees as Mr. Trudeau's advocacy of more strength in the provinces, which would be held together by a central authority closely bound by constitutional restrictions. Clearly, both men would wish to put their own interpretation on the lengths to which they carry these views. But their difference is one mainly of degree.

The real truth will not lie in any extreme. Effective government in this country must be a workable association of federal and provincial jurisdictions. Since the federal government moved into the provincial field of unemployment aid during the emergency of the depression years, there have been many instances where the strict lines of constitutional jurisdiction have been crossed in order to meet contingencies unforeseen by the constitution makers.

Canada is so extended geographically; so varied ethnically, economically and socially; so shadowed by our giant neighbor to the south; that our central government must have sufficient strength to preserve beyond question the sense of common nationality and to sustain national unity.

But the very diversity which calls for this, equally demands the flexibility of provincial authority strong enough to cope with regional problems on a local basis. This all adds up to compromise. The key to success will lie not so much in the specific fields of authority which each level of government stakes out for itself, but in the working relationship which is established between those levels, and in their ability to function together in the interest of the people who, after all, elect both sets of representatives to carry on the country's business.

A City's Decision

FINAL DETAILS OF THE CPR proposal to the city for construction and operation of a convention centre have now been made public and the plan, if approved by the city council, will be put to a referendum within the next two months. It faces the voters with two decisions: first, is a convention centre desired at all? Secondly, should the city put public funds into the enterprise?

In one sense, the questions answer themselves. If Victoria is to be a successful tourist and resort city, then it seems advisable to obtain all the appurtenances which must go with such a status. And adequate accommodation for the large meetings and banquets which are part of the convention business would be a necessary part of the local equipment.

Similary, in deciding whether public funds should be used—once the major question is settled—the fact must be faced that to date no firm and feasible private plan has been advanced. As of now, if Victoria is to have a centre it will have to provide the premises itself. On that basis, an arrangement which would relieve the city of the need to build and operate catering facilities and a heating plant presents clear attractions.

It is frequently argued that if a convention centre is a paying proposition, then a hotel should finance it. But on the scale envisioned, no hotel could accommodate all the guests the convention centre would attract at any one time, hence the sponsors would in effect be providing guests for competitor hotels. A shared scheme is indicated, and on the basis that the whole community will eventually benefit from such imported business, the argument is advanced for participation of the whole community in the costs. It is conceded that subsidization of operations will be necessary.

That is the point at which the present proposal stands. It would not be an inexpensive undertaking, but it could prove to be an advantageous one, with the added benefit of use by local audiences. The city and its businessmen should sponsor a full campaign of explanation and discussion so that the voting public will be fully aware of all that is involved in the plan—with as many solid figures as the nature of such a venture will permit.

This is no larger a project than was involved in Victoria's landmark development of civic squares, or in some of the other construction programs which are accumulating in the area. It could prove to be equally rewarding and productive of further development.

They Picked Their Partners

THE PAGES OF HANSARD ARE liberally sprinkled with criticisms of the CBC. Some members protest the use of its facilities to spread ideologies they do not like. Others object to certain advanced programs on the grounds of bad taste and, occasionally, alleged obscenity.

In contrast to these attacks in Parliament, the demonstration given outdoors in Ottawa this week, advocating the maintenance of the Don Messer show, comes as a clean breeze off the river.

These were supporters talking back to the CBC and defending what they considered a wholesome, tuneful and friendly type of program. They made no plea for highly intellectual content in the production or artiness in presentation. But they knew what they wanted—and they wanted Don Messer retained.

Because they represent a significant part of the national audience, it behooves the CBC to listen to them—particularly at a time when television is under heavy attack for many unhealthy aspects.

The demonstrators in Ottawa, who sang, danced and fiddled, deserve an accolade of their own. Contrasted to much of the criticism levelled at the national network, their performance was wholesome, musical and cheerfully entertaining also.

A Big Four Slowdown on Mideast Arms?

THE Big Four are discussing possible limitation or prohibition of arms shipments to the Middle East, it has been learned here. Willingness of Moscow to include arms control, long an American objective, on the Big Four's Mideast agenda is regarded by Western diplomats as a significant step forward. Always previously Moscow has balked at the idea. Whether any progress has been made toward agreement on this point in the highly secret four-power talks is, however, not known.

Frye

UN delegates of the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, and France met Monday for the fifth time this month. The series of meetings began April 3.

For more than a year following the Arab-Israel war of June, 1967, the Soviet Union rebuffed repeated American efforts to involve her in discussion of a Mideast arms embargo.

Meanwhile Moscow was pouring arms into the United Arab Republic and Syria, and also supplying Iraq and some left-wing Arab guerrilla forces.

Soviet acceptance of the subject as a talking point for the Big Four therefore is welcomed by American and British diplomats and seen as a reason for optimism about the four-power meetings.

Total Ban Impractical

A total embargo on arms shipments to the Arabs and Israel would be impractical, most diplomats believe, since it would be virtually impossible to police. But a selective ban on certain kinds of weapons which are conspicuous enough to be easily detectable might work, they feel.

Categories of prohibited items could include nuclear weapons, long-range missiles, and planes with a specified performance capability. Denial of such hardware would help to keep any future Arab-Israel war from escalating out of control.

Ability to loosen or tighten restraints on arms sales, including sales of spare parts, would give the big powers considerable political leverage which they could use to bring about and influence peace negotiations.

Other subjects understood to be on the Big Four agenda, explicitly or implicitly, are:

1. The basis for a possible Arab-Israel peace negotiation. This agreed outline would expand upon, and render more explicit, a UN Security Council resolution of November, 1967 which set forth the broad principles and objectives of a settlement.

2. Safeguards against direct big-power involvement in any future Arab-Israel outbreak.

3. The role of the UN in a Mideast peace settlement, if and when one can be reached.

Jet Delivery Involved

Israel is understood to fear that if an embargo or limitation of arms shipments is agreed upon, she will be denied delivery of 50 F-4 Phantom jets worth more than $200 million which the United States agreed last December to sell her. Delivery has been expected to begin later this year.

The United Arab Republic is known to have replaced more than 80 percent — in some categories, more than 100 percent — of the weapons she lost in the 1967 war. Some planes, artillery and radar are believed to be of new and improved design.

No precise price tag can be fixed for total Arab-world arms purchases from the Soviet bloc, but estimates put it at more than $4 billion.

Along with the arms, in Egypt's case, have come at least 3,000 military and civilian advisers. Egyptian units down to the battalion and squadron level have Soviet trainers and - or advisers attached. The armed forces of Syria, Algeria and Iraq also have Soviet advisers.

This rearmament program has been a major vehicle for Soviet political influence in the Arab world. Curbs on it at this time could be regarded as sealing the tent after the camel had been stolen. Future incursions, however, would be limited.

Also affected by an arms-restriction agreement would be American weapons sales to Jordan and Saudi Arabia, as well as Israel, and smaller British and French arms programs in the Arab world.

Diversion Danger

How '"third" countries such as West Germany and Switzerland could be brought under the proposed limitations is a difficult point. If such alternative suppliers were not also controlled, much of the Mideast arms traffic would simply be diverted, not slowed, diplomats fear.

Favoring the effort is a belief that the military power of Israel and the Arab states is roughly in position to risk renewed warfare on a large scale. A clampdown on major arms shipments would be designed to perpetuate this posture of mutual deterrence.

Also encouraging hope that the Big Four may agree is the cost to Moscow of her arms shipments. Many of the sales are made on advantageous terms, and payment is considered uncertain.

Moreover, with much of the political benefit of the program already harvested, and Soviet influence in Arab capitals unlikely to be soon reversed, Moscow may feel it can now afford to pull in the reins.

LETTER

Morality but Not the Bible

Canon Butler's letter regarding the school Bible reading controversy is a rather welcome change from the usual hysterical responses on matters such as these.

I could not agree more with the fact that the schools must face the realities of the day, and must answer the young people's question in terms and a language that they understand, in honest, non-biased, clear, scientific terms. Answers based on prejudice, or miracles, although they be generations old, and accepted as truths, are open to question by young minds who will not be put off by answers which demand unquestioning faith, or blind devotion. The concerns of today's youth, brought up in the sunlight of affluence, have blossomed into questions of respect for human rights, democracy and justice. No less than religion; patriotism, nationalism, capitalism, socialism have been re-opened to question by modern events.

The Nuremberg trials may yet haunt the western nations, as much as they did Nazi Germany. The trials proved that personal morality (i.e., personal right) is not subject to the patriotic fervor of the moment. In fact the trials proved that personal morality is not subject to any "ism." It is only subject sonal morality (rights). This is what democracy is all about. It is a non-exploitation system, a non-coercive system.

And here is where I must disagree with Canon Butler and state that this is the very reason why in a democracy, such as we are striving for, Bible readings even in a remotely religious framework must be dropped.

It is hypocrisy to keep them, because a young person with an inquiring mind will ask, "why Christian Bible readings"? He knows there are other intellectually defendable religious, or non-religious or anti-religious moralities among his peers and in his society. He knows that these different views are not presented and that this is unfair, therefore coercion (although subtle) exists by the established powers of (Christians) upon the minority views. This is, therefore, an invasion of their personal rights and undemocratic. And to maintain a tradition, no matter how well meaning, or seemingly benign, in the name of democracy, which is in itself an invasion of personal rights, is an hypocrisy.

Perhaps that is too large an axe to deal with a weak seedling such as class Bible reading. But in the context of a larger concern over minority rights, this is an important point. If we are concerned with personal rights, with minority rights, with the foundation of our society we must be prepared to drop our ideas that there are superior and inferior forms of religion. The concept of the "true religion" is no longer valid. As long as each religion believes that it is the "true religion" we will have a coercive element in trying to bring other faiths to "the truth" and the other faiths, who believe just as strongly and reasonably, will of course resist. The ultimate result of this line of thought is the Inquistion, the Crusades, Buchenwald, or if you will, Ireland today.

It is in this context that Bible reading, a specific Judeo-Christian approach, has no place in a multi-racial, multi-religious, democratic school system. In the home and in the church, of course; in the schools, never.—S. J. Fisher, D.D.S.

FROM REGINA

Threats of Glut After the Flooding

THE dust-plagued farmers who were driven from the Saskatchewan dust-bowl 25 years ago would rub their eyes in wonder if they could see it this week. There is water everywhere. It stands a foot deep in the farm fields, it has overflowed the dug-outs, fills the ditches and, where it has been and gone, there are signs of its passing.

Gray

It has washed out and squashed flat 5-foot steel culverts on new highway construction between Moose Jaw and Swift Current. A hundred miles to the north in the Rosetown-Kindersley-Saskatoon area the water lies so deep on many farms that there is fear that it will be impossible to get any kind of a crop in this year.

The rapid and heavy spring run-off has added to the woes of many farmers with open grain storage. The trucks that carried the grain to temporary storage bins made ruts down which the water has been running into the already damp grain. All this is away outside the serious flood areas. The worst flooded areas this year — Lumsden, Assiniboia, Estevan and Melita were in the worst blowing districts of the Dirty Thirties.

Planting Questions

Given a couple of weeks of warm dry weather and lots of wind, a radical change will occur. The surface will dry as it always has, but at the moment the wet fields are helping the farmers to make up their minds about what to do about planting.

Whatever they do is likely to be wrong.

With over 60 per cent of last year's crop still on the farms, there is a definite need for a reduction in wheat acreage. Farmers have raised wheat planting from around 22 million acres a decade ago to 27-28 millions in recent years. But unless the flooded land stays flooded there seems little reason to assume that they will come close to the 9,000,000-acre cut suggested by Ottawa.

The reaction to the call for the big reduction came first, and loudest, from the livestock industry which can see in it the makings of a disaster. A drastic cut in wheat plantings will result in a big increase in coarse grains, which can be planted much later because they require a shorter growing season. There is already a glut of coarse grains on the farms which cannot be delivered. A further increase in production will force many farmers to go into livestock raising to get rid of their oats, barley and feed wheat.

Livestock prices have been rising steadily in recent weeks, indicating that a lot of animals are going onto feed in Canada instead of into export. Heifers, which might have gone to feed lots are being kept back for breeding herds. So there could be a whopping surplus of beef coming onto the market in 1971 and 1972. And if there is one thing livestock men abhor it is a surplus of beef.

In Alberta the government is hoping the grain farmers will turn 200,000 acres of wheatland back to pasture. But even that will increase coarse grain production because sowing down to grass is usually done with a nurse crop of oats or barley. In Saskatchewan there is little hope of much wheat land being put back to grass, except in the natural rangeland area in the western part of the province.

If the farmers turn to specialty crops, as some have done profitably in the past, old debbil surplus threatens there too. Growing flax is a favorite alternative for many. Most of Canada's flax production is exported to the U.S. and there is a huge surplus from last year still unsold there. Instead of more flax, the experts advise the farmers to grow less of that too this year.

Rye is another alternative crop. But it is one with the most limited of all grain markets.

Can't Afford Fallow

The obvious thing for the wheat farmers to do is leave more of their land in summerfallow. But that is no real solution for most of them who have instalment payments to meet for farm equipment and running expenses. Moreover, it is no solution to those industries which live off the farmers. The fertilizer industry is in fact headed into its worst year in a decade, already suffering from its own over-production problems,

It all adds point to the comment made to this reporter by a king-sized Alberta farmer. His bins are already chock full of wheat from last year, the year before and the year before that—over 100,000 bushels of it. What will he do this year?

"I've got it figured out this way," he said. "I'm going to give my land the thinnest seeding ever, lay off the fertilizer entirely, load on the crop insurance and pray for hail!"

But over most of Saskatchewan, if the land ever dries up enough to seed, there is enough water stored in the soil to produce a good crop even under that system, and it seldom hails in Saskatchewan.

Looking Back

From the Times, April 25, 1909.

The Victoria theatre, which is the scene of a splendid amateur contest this week, was crowded to the doors very early in the evening, so that it became necessary to open the gallery doors to the still many patrons desiring admittance. The management has invited the children of the Protestant Orphans Home to attend tomorrow's performance. The last amateur contest of the season will take place next week.

Holding Back Science Not the Answer, Political, Social Decisions Needed

By PHILIP HANDLER

Despite the ever-increasing pace of science and the expanded opportunities for what Norbert Wiener called "the human use of human beings", many young people have foresworn the high adventure of science and share with some of their elders misgivings concerning the benefits to be derived from the public support of science.

There is a growing disenchantment which has led to disturbing losses of contact, separating science from the general social consciousness — a separation which, in some instances, has become outright alienation.

(Dr. Handler is president-elect of the United States National Academy of Sciences, chairman of the biochemistry department at Duke University. He writes here on the need to heal the breach between science and youth.)

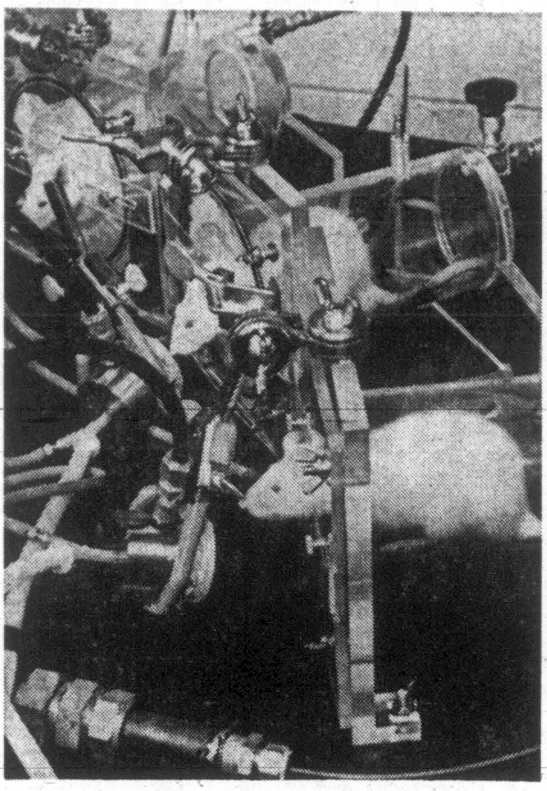
This point of view has forcefully thrust upon me in a recent letter from a reader of an account in The New York Times of my vision of how biological science might serve our country.

He said:

"So, you are promising a biological revolution?

Big Deal.

What have all the scientific revolutions accomplished? See Biafra . . . See the Russian invasion of Czecholsovakia . . . See malnutrition across America . . . See our ghettos . . . See the ravages upon the mind by organized religion . . . See the Middle East hangings . . . See the vulgarity of American doctors and dentists . . . See the humanistic illiteracy of our teachers . . . See the narrow-mindedness of our scientists . . . See the naivete of philosophers . . . See Vietnam . . ."



LABORATORY experiments like this one testing the effects of air pollution on white rats hold promise of better life in the future.

Reflection of Success

His despair is a measure of the frustration engendered by the fact that we have been unable to bring our knowledge, wealth and manpower to bear on those very social problems we most wish to solve, problems arising out of the condition of perhaps one-fifth of our citizenry.

Yet, I submit that our current awareness of these longstanding problems reflects not the failure of science and technology, but rather, their wholesale success.

The revolution of rising expectations stems directly from widespread recognition of the benefits which the scientific revolution has brought to the more fortunate four-fifths of our society.

This state of affairs is all the more ironic in that the greatest contribution to human affairs which science has made in the last several centuries is the new "enlightenment," the belief that the world and its creatures can be understood, that evident problems have less evident causes which can be identified and analysed, and that intelligent diligence can then find solutions — in short, that, by understanding, many can hope to control and improve both himself and his environment. In the corrosive atmosphere of our day, that faith is threatened.

It is well that the scientist should be reminded occasionally of his tendency toward intellectual arrogance; but the case for the use of rationality in human affairs must also have its hearing . . . Accordingly, it is particularly important that a network of trust between scientists and non-scientists be nourished, else our frustrations may lead some falsely to conclude that new scientific knowledge cannot help us to understand and to control our affairs.

Purpose and Meaning

Many young people seem to be telling us that we are self-deluded in a meaningless world. My contemporaries, in turn, have been impelled to ponder on the purpose and meaning of human life — as we had not done in decades.

On our campus, a few weeks ago, an exasperated body of police used tear gas to disperse a crowd of our students gathered about a building held by an armed band of their black fellows.

You will admit that it is difficult to remain disciplined when healthy youngsters call you "pig" and hurl obscenities and brickbats. Ths unhappy incident will remain a painful memory in the annals of our university.

But it was not as illuminating as the performance, one week later, on campus, of "Man of La Mancha."

I winced at the cheers our students gave to that deathless line — "Facts are the enemy of truth" — which seemed to encapsulate their search for a moral truth outside the catechisms of the traditional disciplines.

Those of us who give our lives to study of the cosmos, the origins of life, the nature of matter or that of man, or the creation of those myriad devices which enrich and simplify everyday life or permit man to reach for the stars, must not turn our backs on an entire generation of youth whose ideals represent the best that mankind has yet produced, who reject the crass and the venal and seek for a better world.

We must reject the illegitimate use of force but join our idealistic young in persuasion as, tomorrow, they attempt to order our national priorities so as to improve the condition of our fellow men.

Application of our understanding of the physical world may already have been pushed to the limit of how it may affect our lives. I do not mean that there is not yet much to do both in exploration of the physical world and in application of that knowledge. Far from it.

But already a large fraction of this planet's population enjoys communication at the speed of light — an increase in communication velocity by a factor of 100 million since the days of the Pony Express.

When our society is willing to pay the price, we can restore our physical environment almost to that which our ancestors found on this continent and that abundant power supply will permit us to recycle water so that, in effect, it should be available in infinite supply. The arts of chemistry already provide us with a cornucopia of enormous variety.

Of all the physical technologies unavailable but in prospect, only management of our weather seems likely to alter our lives in the future as dramatically as the events of the recent past.

In contrast, most of the primary problems of biology are unsolved as are those aspects of biology most applicable to human affairs. The greatest threat to the future of the human race is man's own procreation.

Hunger, pollution, crime, despoliation of the natural beauty of the planet, irreversible extermination of countless species of plants and animals, over-large, dirty, over-crowded cities with their paradoxical loneliness, continual erosion of limited natural resources, and the seething unrest which creates the political instability that leads to international conflict and war all derive from the unbridled growth of human populations.

Population to Double

Informed demographers tell us that, regardless of any efforts which can be foreseen, the population of this planet will somewhat more than double by century's end.

If, even then, when babies born this year will be at the height of their breeding potential, we are to stabilize the earth's population, it is imperative that we understand much more than we do today about human reproductive physiology, that we explore a wide variety of new approaches to contraception, that we find entirely innocuous reversible procedures such that the penalty for carelessness will be failure to conceive a child rather than the reverse, as is now the case.

Second only to the problem of overpopulation is the problem of feeding the world. If we are to survive the crisis of the next two or three decades and avoid massive famine, it is imperative that the advanced nations of the world join the underdeveloped nations in markedly expanding and upgrading their agricultural productivity.

No event in recent history has been quite as heartening as the successful cultivation, on a substantial scale, of new strains of wheat and rice which have very significantly increased per acre productivity of these crops in India, Southeast Asia, the Philippines and Mexico.

But the task has been barely begun and we have much to do to assure that food production will keep pace with human reproduction.

Meanwhile, the life sciences offer their time-honored questions, albeit in increasingly sophisticated forms. The functioning of enzymes, the regulation of metabolism, the operation of the genetic apparatus, the chemical bases for the process of differentiation in multi-cellular organisms, the phenomena which integrate animal life, etc., offer research vistas almost without end.

Ecology is but an infant science. And man must still contend with almost every one of his most ancient enemies, the diseases to which he is subject.

We must learn to treat and prevent the degenerative disorders which lead to the seeming necessity for such tours de force. Patently, we cannot look forward to half-million heart transplants per year.

But because we have, here, been concerned with the ethics and morals of our society, there are some special problems which are highly challenging scientifically and which pose complex and challenging ethical questions as well.

Survival of the Unfit

In consequence of the increasing success of those medical procedures which Joshua Lederberg has called "euphenics" — successful treatment of individuals with otherwise incapacitating or lethal genetically transmitted disorders — for the first time man has knowingly taken a hand in his own evolution, but unfortunately, by reducing the historical power of natural selection.

By assuring survival of the unfit, we are accelerating the spread, through our population, of harmful genes.

In the long term, this is not in the best interest of humanity, but how shall this process be regulated? Moreover, there are more than 500 known genetically transmitted diseases which cannot yet be clinically managed in equivalent fashion.

Hopefully, one day, many will be. Each of us is the carrier of perhaps a dozen effective genes such that, were any one of them expressed in homozygotic offspring, the result would be a serious disorder.

Already, perhaps five per cent of all babies are patently defective for hereditary reasons. As euphenics becomes more successful, and more and more genetically defective youngsters survive to have offspring of their own, this percentage will increase substantially.

How should our society cope with this problem, the deterioration of our gene pool by virtue of our own scientific success coupled to our traditional ethics?

One day we shall consider deliberately guiding our own evolution in a positive manner. This could be done by deliberate breeding, an unlikely notion in our society, or by artificial insemination using sperm from distinguished men.

VIOLENCE on the campus reflects frustration at our inability to harness new technical knowledge to the most serious problems of society.

Only now does it seem possible that, in the reasonably near future, we shall begin to make progress in understanding the human brain and relate its attributes to its cellular and molecular architecture, thereby achieving insight into the underlying bases for our behavior.

In all likelihood, this will generate the capacity to design chemical or physical processes to alter behavior in defined ways.

It seems to me that we are rapidly closing in on a crucial problem of scientific discoveries, just any kind of discovery, simply because we see the problem and its possibilities?

Can we in good conscience and truly enlightened self-interest do that without most carefully pondering the political power structure, the maturity of the social organization and the historical age of society?

Curiosity Byproduct

Do we have the right to put an unparalleled new stress on the fibre of the social structure just as a byproduct of our curiosity and intellectural appetite?

But our society can no more tolerate censorship in the laboratory than in communications media. A free society must be free to think, to seek, to explore. What it finds may not always be comfortable, but we have already survived earlier shocks.

The Copernican revolution placed us on a small planet revolving about an obscure star somewhere in a great cosmos.

Darwinian evolution related us to all the brute creatures, plant and animal, about us and traces us back to the inanimate.

Having yesterday lost our special place in the universe, surely, tomorrow, we can tolerate understanding ourselves. To be sure, we have not always managed our science and technology with foresight and wisdom. Tomorrow we must, if we are to survive and surrender a decent world to succeeding generations.

Meanwhile, let no one frame constraints delimiting which segments of the endless frontiers of science may be explored.

No one has the requisite wisdom and foresight to make such decisions and to do so most assuredly would imperil the national future. But it is clear that it behooves us to sharpen the sluggish mechanisms by which we rest political and social decisions on technical information. (Science Service).

Elusive Wave Hunted

UNESCO Features

An extensive investigation is being made in the vast reaches of the Pacific for unseen and elusive waves which are thought to be about 1,000 miles in length and take two weeks to a month to complete one cycle.

The waves will be recorded by 15 tide gauges on islands of the Caroline and Marshall groups on an east-west line stretching 2,500 miles across the Pacific about 500 miles north of the Equator.

Known as 'planetary waves', they are believed to be caused by the gravitational attraction of the sun and moon on the earth and are therefore special tides. Once initiated, however, the waves are apparently very largely governed by the depth of the water and by the effect of the earth's rotation.

Investigators from the U.S. Environmental Science Services Administration and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology hope to obtain the answers to such questions as:

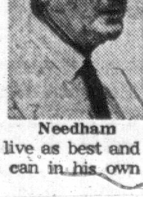
Do the waves move across the ocean or do they merely oscillate back and forth in a specific area, like water sloshing in a bathtub? How high are they? What is their significance?

Data regarding the planetary waves will be gathered by gauges for four years and then subjected to analysis by computers.

Suffering From a Lack of Joy

By RICHARD NEEDHAM

I maintained in a column last month that since the world is populated and run by human beings, it is, always has been and always will be a magnificent mess, a disaster area in glorious technicolor; and that since this is the case, the individual must live as best and happily as he can in his own small corner.



Needham

This has brought me an interesting communication from Lise Anglin, a Grade 11 student at Leaside High School in Toronto:

"The impression I get is that you find it both proper and beneficial to accept the inevitable, being nonetheless interested in its path, and from that base, so to speak, to live a life as fully and happily as you can.

"This attitude is one which I find singularly reasonable, and quite natural to myself. Yet, does not this attitude tend to promote a certain degree of apathy and non-commitment toward the situations at hand?

"Does it not, perhaps dangerously, lessen one's feeling of responsibility to one's fellow man provided that he happens not to inhabit one's particular personal circle?

"This argument is not so much my own as it is one with which I am presented time and time again, whenever I am about to settle calmly into a state of relative well-being and blissful content with this life I live."

Well, Miss Anglin, I know just what you mean—the idea, honestly held by many good-hearted people, that we have a duty toward all our fellow-humans—not just those within our reach but also and perhaps even more, those far away, those we have never seen and never will see. Dostoevsky said it: "I am responsible for everything, and to everybody in the world." But that, I think, could lead to madness.

Certainly, as Clarence Day warned, it can lead to wasteful distraction: "Ah, those masses of people—unintelligent, superstitious, uncivilized! What a dismal drain they will be on the race's strength! Not merely will they lessen its ultimate chance of achievement; their hardships will always distress and preoccupy minds—fine, generous minds—that might have done great things if free."

Given a world full of suffering, what can, what should, one person do about it? Henry Thoreau, characteristically, tackled the question head-on.

Reproached by his Puritan neighbors because he didn't rush around "doing good," Thoreau answered that from his viewpoint, it was more important to be good, to be a strong and whole and happy person, taking (and therefore giving) constant joy in life.

"All health and success does me good, however far off and withdrawn it may appear; all disease and failure helps to make me sad and does me evil, however much sympathy it may have with me or I with it. If, then, we would indeed restore mankind by truly natural means, let us first be as simple and well as nature ourselves, dispel the clouds which hang over our own brows, and take up a little life into our pores. Do not stay to be an overseer of the poor, but endeavor to become one of the worthies of the world."

I agree absolutely with this. I cannot be responsible to people half a world away or half a continent away; I can and must be responsible to those within my own reach.

My chief responsibility to them, I think, is to be myself, to take joy in being myself, to give out a light which perhaps will dispel some of their shadows. If you, Miss Anglin, can attain "a state of relative well-being and blissful content" with your life, you are doing far more good than you realize.

The world needs cheerful, contented people. Asked to state humanity's biggest problem, I would not say it is hunger, or disease or overpopulation or ignorance or war; I would say it is the lack of simple happiness, joy in life. Certainly, that is the biggest problem in our own affluent society.

To any Canadian, young or old, who would ask me how to make their community or their country or their world a better place, I would say, "Be happy, be yourself, live fully the life which suits you, enjoy it and proclaim that enjoyment."

This is not selfishness, as I'd understand the term; it is only the recognition that the greatest gift you can bestow upon the world, or upon any one person or group of persons in the world, is your own self.

God gave each one of us a unique personality so that we, in turn, might give it to others—with love, hopefully, and with joy.

To what others? To those around us, right here and now; to the members of what Miss Anglin calls our personal circle, and what I'd call our tribe.

'Iron Fortress' For N. Korea

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea said today it is increasing its defence budget 11 per cent and that continuance of United States spy flights off its coast is a "new provocation, threat and blackmail."

The report by the official Korean Central news agency repeated assertions that the U.S. Navy plane shot down by the North Koreans April 15 was deep in North Korean air space.

The agency said President Nixon's statement that such flights would continue with escorts is "preposterous, abusive language which no sovereign and independent country with self-respect can ever accept."

"It is obvious to everyone that by incessantly sending various kinds of armed spy ships and reconnaissance planes to spy on the military and state secrets of our country, the U.S. imperialists aim solely at making preparations to launch a war of aggression," the statement said.

Accusing the United States of "steadily intensifying the war provocation manoeuvres," the agency said North Korea plans defence expenditures this year equivalent to about $561,000,000 compared with $533,000,000 for 1968. The $561,000,000 represents 3 per cent of North Korea's 1969 budget.

WILL BOLSTER SYSTEM

Commenting on the defence budget, the agency said: "We will . . . turn the whole country into an iron-wall fortress, thereby further strengthening the most powerful all-people defence system."

U.S. military officials in Tokyo reported earlier that the North Koreans have been training a tough, elite corps to infiltrate into South Korea and work for a "native guerrilla uprising."

Recently, high-ranking U.S. military sources said, the North Koreans have added to their navy a fleet of high-speed infiltration boats which look like the thousands of fishing boats that sail regularly in the waters off the east coast.

A band of about 10 guerrillas landed on the east coast last year, but South Koreans did not support them and told South Korean troops where to find them.

In his first news conference since the shooting down of the U.S. Navy plane, South Korean President Chung Hee Park warned the North Koreans today that "there is a limit to our patience."

Park said the U.S. decision to continue the flights with fighter escorts and the show of strength by the U.S. Navy in the Sea of Japan was "very clever and most appropriate" but added: "What is important is how to cope with North Korean reactions to come, and I believe this will be a critical part of U.S. countermeasures."

Ethnic Papers Flourish In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver seems to be a haven for ethnic newspapers, with six of them flourishing here.

Newest publication is Western Canada's sole Portuguese-language newspaper, O Mensageiro, which is hoping to expand its circulation east of the Rockies.

The Portuguese community which came into being here after the Second World War now numbers about 8,000, and it buys about 1,000 copies of each Mensageiro, which hits the streets every two weeks.

The paper, which has numbered six pages since it started last May, sells for 20 cents. It was founded by Mario Cipriano, 25, who was born in Portugal but worked in West Germany before moving here in 1967. His wife helps with editing, translation and advertising sales.

Mario believes his papers helps settlers to retain their knowledge of Portuguese.

"Many are unsophisticated and can read and write only in their native language, and then with no great facility," he says. "If they forget these things they become illiterate."

The paper serves Portuguese communities in Kitimat and Terrace, 450 miles north of here, and Trail in the East Kootenays.

Another husband-and-wife team putting out an ethnic paper is made up of Samuel and Mona Kaplan, editors of the Jewish Western Bulletin.

DO MOST JOBS

The Bulletin is a weekly and the Kaplans do everything from keeping books to typesetting and page makeup. Only the typesetting is handled by a contractor.

L'Eco d'Italia serves Vancouver's community of 35,000 Italians and publishes Tuesdays and Fridays. It sells 5,000 copies a week.

Co-editors Cesae Tofini, 45, and Giacomo Borrino, 26, work from an office at the rear of a travel agency run by Mr. Tofini's wife.

The city also has three Chinese newspapers, the oldest of which is the Chinese Times, founded in 1907. The Times devotes most of its space to Asian affairs.

The New Republic Chinese Daily Newspaper moved here from Victoria 10 years ago and supports Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government on Formosa.

The Chinese Voice is politically neutral and privately owned by a group of merchants who founded it in 1943. It claims to have the biggest circulation in Vancouver, but concedes that the Chinese Times is stronger in the interior of the province.

U.S. Urges N. Vietnam To Withdraw

PARIS (AP) — The United States Thursday urged North Vietnam to join in practical steps immediately to begin withdrawing outside forces of both sides from South Vietnam.

Speaking at the 14th enlarged session of the Vietnam peace talks, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge said that this could start a series of events to end the war. He said he saw "no good reason why that process should not begin soon."

North Vietnam representative Xuan Thuy, however, replied that the only foreign troops in South Vietnam were those of the United States and its allies and what is needed is their withdrawal.

Thuy's statement seemed to rebuff, at least for the present, Lodge's appeal to end "histerical" exchanges and get down to practical problems.

Tran Buu Kiem, representative of the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front, also continued to press a hard-line policy. He insisted that the way to end the war was for the United States to withdraw its forces and stop clinging to the current Saigon administration.

Bennett Appeals For Public Help

Premier Bennett Thursday appealed to all B.C. citizens to send money to flood victims at Trail.

"Make all cheques out to 'Trail Disaster Fund' and send them care of City Hall, Trail," he told a hastily-summoned press conference.

He urged "all news media" to launch public subscription campaigns in aid of the south-eastern B.C. community overwhelmed in a flash flood Wednesday by a mountain creek swollen suddenly by heavy rain and snowmelt.

Bennett called the press conference after being briefed by cabinet ministers and civil servants who made a flying visit to the stricken community.

"At first sight, I'm told, this might be even more of a loss than Alberni," the premier said.

Alberni was given $1.5 million in donations to recover from its flooding ordeal in 1964 caused by a tidal wave from the Easter earthquake which devastated coastal cities in Alaska. The provincial government gave $800,000, public subscription raised $410,000 and the federal government added $250,000.

Bennett said the provincial government will give money from its newly-established $25 million provincial disaster fund and it already has asked Ottawa to declare the Trail flooding a disaster so federal money could be sent.

Resources Minister Ray Williston, chairman of the provincial disaster fund, said an advisory committee is being set up and an independent professional survey of damage will begin Monday.

'Pauper Treatment' Received by Libraries

Library services in British Columbia receive the pauper treatment from the provincial government says Ald. Frances Elford, chairman of the Greater Victoria Library Board.

Citing 1968 figures, Ald. Elford reports that the government gives niggardly treatment to the development of libraries.

"The so-called poor provinces show us the way. In 1968, B.C. had the lowest per capita grant of 18 cents. In comparison, New Brunswick voted 65 cents per capita, Nova Scotia, 48 and Saskatchewan, 78. Ontario was the highest with 94 cents."

Ald Elford said the board is "struggling to at least not slip back. Books are going up in price and unless we increase our resources, we have to lose way."

She said that the board received $30,000 from the provincial government's library development board last year.

"This has been allocated to provide books for the proposed new branches in Esquimalt and Oak Bay."

The $30,000 was the major portion of the development board's total grant, $33,000.

This was the only money allocated for the provincial group which is charged with encouraging the development of municipal libraries and library associations throughout the province.

Ald. Elford corrected an earlier statement in which she said library staff's salaries would be cut back if the proposed increase in per capita levies on municipalities was not met.

"We have no intention of cutting salaries. We have a three-year wage agreement currently in effect which will bring salaries up to the level of municipality employees' by January 1970.

"What I did mean to say was that if the money is not made available we would have to cut back on purchase of books and service provided this year.

"This would result in some staff dismissals, perhaps, even of long-time employees."

Ald. Elford is hoping that this measure will be unnecessary.

"The board is meeting with the four mayors Monday in City Hall. We have some proposals which we hope will help solve the situation."

Youth Aid Handicapped, Little League

Handicapped youth in the area have been helped by funds raised by COSY, the city police-sponsored teen group.

Recently $650 raised from four dances was divided among four organizations to help buy equipment and sponsor new projects.

Queen Alexandra Solarium was given $200 which will help buy a wheelchair. A walker and an adjustable table for use by children at the G. R. Pearkes Clinic will be bought with $200 given to them.

The Victoria Association for the Mentally Retarded received $200 to be used for improved facilities.

COSY organizers also gave $50 toward sponsoring a COSY Little League baseball team to be composed of future COSY members. Several of the present members will assist in managing and coaching the team.

COSY (city organization supporting youth) was set up last November with the assistance of city police constables Gary Galbraith, Doug Wilson and Bill Huckin.

Heroin Traces In Soft Drugs Gregory Warns

Heroin has been found in recent seizures of "so-called soft drugs" city police chief John Gregory says in his 1968 annual report.

Gregory said traces of the hard drug were found after analysis and that its supply and distribution is controlled by "syndicated criminal operators."

"I fear that the surreptitious introduction of heroin into our community may well have very sinister implications.

"All efforts are being made toward apprehending those involved in the illegal trafficking of drugs," the report says.

Following closely on the heels of Chief Gregory's statement was one by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, in Vancouver Thursday night who said the same situation applied in the mainland city.

"If that's happening (introduction of heroin) in Victoria, it certainly happens in Vancouver," he said noting the chief's remarks.

University Agency Urged To Solve Serious Problems

University of Victoria chancellor Richard Wilson called for a new agency Thursday night to bring orderly growth and long-range planning to B.C.'s campuses.

Addressing a McGill University alumni group of about 75 at the Red Lion Inn, he warned "very serious problems" face the province's three public universities because they have been left to grope in the dark on development.

"Up to now the three provincial universities have been living financially from hand to mouth, never knowing from year to year what operating funds they will have for current use and future planning, or for the engagement of future staff," he said.

"Here we are on the 24th of April and we still do not know what our operating grant will be for the financial year beginning April 1.

"We have no idea what capital funds we will receive next year or the year after."

The former Victoria mayor and McGill commerce graduate said what the province needs is an all-encompassing plan for its universities "that takes into account frankly all the facts as they actually are."

"What is more the flow of students won't taper off but will continue to increase at an even more rapid rate."

The next academic year at Uvic will be "critical," he said.

The chancellor suggested a government-appointed grants commission, similar to an agency functioning in Britain, which could:

- Deal with long-range planning.
- Recommend to the government on capital and operating needs;
- Develop a method to eliminate wasteful duplication among the universities;
- Devise a method for equitable distribution of funds.

The universities must be furnished with commitments on both capital and operating financing at least several years ahead, said Wilson.

We express our warmest thanks to the public for their enthusiasm which helped make Autorama '69 a complete success.

MARGARET JENKINS

Education Always First, Foremost

By ELIZABETH FORBES

There's a tiny house standing at the northwest corner of Bay and Blanshard streets, right on the edge of a demolition project that threatens, any day now, to engulf it.

Forbes

By today's standards it really is small. Certainly there cannot be more than three rooms inside its walls.

There's an open veranda facing Blanshard Street and at the back, a lean-to added in the course of the years.

As far as I'm concerned that house has always stood at the corner of Bay and Blanshard streets. When I was a youngster in pinafores it was the home of Mrs. Margaret Jenkins, one of the city's early woman school trustees.

Ask anyone who remembers Mrs. Jenkins and I'm certain they will picture her (as I do) a short, stout woman who wore long black dresses, a black cape patterned with jet beads and a small widow's bonnet edged with jet and veiling.

She had a round, brown-skinned face that smiled easily. Small bright eyes that missed nothing. And iron grey curls that marched around the edge of her bonnet in neat precision.

Almost from the day she arrived in the city (July 1, 1882) with her second husband and a dozen or more children (some hers, some his and some theirs) Mrs. Jenkins was active in public life.

The next year she helped organize a WCTU branch here, following a visit of national president Miss Frances Willard.

This was in a time of the open saloons you must remember, when part of the work of a temperance group was to go into such places and distribute literature.

In the middle 80's, accompanied by Mrs. C. Spofford, she canvassed the city in an effort to get women to vote and in that way to show their appreciation of the privilege of the franchise which was theirs at that time.

As a result the women actually succeeded in getting one of their candidates, W. D. Higgins, elected to school board.

Later, for some reason, the privilege of the vote was withdrawn and it wasn't restored until the local Council of Women took the matter up some years later.

It was then that Mrs. Gordon Grant was elected the first woman on school board. She was followed by Mrs. William Grant and in 1897 by Mrs. Jenkins.

This was the beginning of an association that only ended with her retirement from the board in 1919, four years before she died.

During that time she encouraged and saw courses in domestic science established in public schools.

Because of her own large family, she understood the needs of both parents and children and she became well respected for her forthright opinions and ideas.

Not content with old methods of teaching as she called them, she visited schools in many other places to judge the importance of more up-to-date ideas and then to have them used here.

When first efforts were made to do something for the retarded in grade schools it was Mrs. Jenkins who brought the facts to the school board. Through her efforts the first special class for retarded children was started in 1912.

In other phases of public service she headed the women's Conservative Club, the Cymrodian Society (her birthplace was Wales) the Metropolitan (Methodist) Church Ladies Aid, and she held many offices in Local Council of Women.

It was education, however, that was always first and foremost with her especially as it affected child learning and child welfare.

In 1914, when one of the new schools she had worked for was opened at the corner of Fairfield and Foul Bay Roads, it was named the Margaret Jenkins School.

It was an honor this forward-thinking woman earned through her strong belief (still so very applicable today) that the child is the citizen of the future and no asset is more valuable to Canadian life than this potential adult who will create the nation of the future.

RUNS ON AIR

The French Aerotrain runs on blasts of air, similar to hovercraft.

Before the Magistrate

Richard Hardisty, 18, of 3378 Anchorage, pleaded guilty in central court Thursday to four charges involving theft and breaking and entering.

Ronald Turner, 18, of the same address, pleaded guilty to three of the charges in which they were charged jointly.

They will be sentenced May 1 on these counts and also on a charge of theft to which they pleaded guilty Wednesday.

Hardisty attempted to break into the Malahat Chalet April 15, court was told, but fled when a car approached. He told police his object in breaking in was theft.

Hardisty and Turner broke into Speedway Motors April 6 and stole nearly $300, police said, and on Monday took $100 from the Tudor Lunch in Esquimalt. They had been hired to clean the building and found the money while working.

The two youths also admitted stealing a wheel and tire from a car early Wednesday before being picked up for another theft.

None of the money stolen was recovered. In the Esquimalt theft the two accused broke a window on leaving the building to make it appear to have been a break-in.

In traffic court Donald Bandet, 5110 Cordova Bay, was fined $100 for dangerous driving. Joseph Rinowski, 855 Old Esquimalt, was fined $100 for hit-and-run.

On Wednesday William McVie, 836 Villance, was fined $150 for driving while suspended.

Terrorists Foil British Troops

BELFAST (AP) — Saboteurs blew up another water line early today, the third this week, but police said the water supply of this Northern Ireland capital wasn't curtailed further because the line had been knocked out by an earlier explosion.

The bombers struck a few hours after the government moved in more British troops to guard key installations and announced it was calling up more police reserves to man emergency roadblocks. Helicopters patrolled over water and power lines.

Because leaders of the Roman Catholic Civil Rights Association called for a truce in marches and street parades, police said Northern Ireland was quiet Thursday except for the pipeline blast. The truce was ordered after the government agreed to the Roman Catholic demand for universal suffrage in municipal elections.

The earlier pipeline explosions reduced Belfast's water supply to the danger level. Water rationing was imposed on the 500,000 residents.

Officials said the pipeline attacks were the work of the outlawed Irish Republican Army which is dedicated to merging Northern Ireland with the Irish Republic. IRA leaders denied this and police said the explosions may be the work of a splinter IRA group for which a search has been launched.

Mace Not Used

Mail Rates Eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon Thursday asked Congress to boost the price for mailing a first-class letter to 7 cents. Postcards, and second and third-class mail would also be raised in an effort to slash the U.S. postal deficit.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Education Minister To Seek Post

QUEBEC (CP) — Political sources here say Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal will announce Sunday to residents of his home riding of Bagot that he will contest the Union Nationale leadership in June.

The convention, June 19-21, is to choose a permanent successor to the late premier Daniel Johnson, who died last September.

Bagot is Mr. Johnson's old riding, and Mr. Cardinal succeeded him as its representative when he won the riding in a byelection Dec. 4.

The 44-year-old minister joined the government in October, 1967, abandoning a university and business career. He became deputy premier in December, 1968.

Other candidates for the leadership are:

—Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand, chosen party leader on an interim basis after Mr. Johnson's death;

—Andre Leveille, a 35-year-old former union official and a backbencher in the national assembly.

MAY ENTER RACE

Judge Maurice Johnson, 40, of Montreal municipal court, a brother of the late premier, says he is thinking of entering the race.

Premier Bertrand has the support of several senior cabinet ministers for the position of leader.

Cultural Affairs Minister Jean-Noel Tremblay, however, said two weeks ago he would support Mr. Cardinal if the former University of Montreal law dean became a candidate.

A Cardinal backer in the caucus said:

"You'll be surprised to see how many ministers support his candidacy."

Baird Roasted in Cool-Aid Debate

By JIM HUME

Three warnings from fellow council members failed to stop Ald. Robert Baird charging "Cool-Aid" had "a sordid history."

Baird made the statement duirng Victoria city council meeting Thursday when a grant to the Pacific Community Self-Development Society was considered.

With two aldermen missing, council was forced to table the matter for at least two weeks. A two-thirds majority of all council members is required to pass a grant motion.

But before the matter was tabled Baird had insisted council listen to his version of the sins of "Cool-Aid", one of the arms of the PCSDS asking for funds to open a home for transient young people.

Barid got as far as his first "sordid" before being halted by Ald. Ian Stewart who, rising on a point of privilege, asked that "this council chamber not be used to debase or slander any group in this city."

Mayor High Stephen supported the warning reminding Baird protection of the council chamber was not as broad as he might think and "privilege" (the historic protection granted senior government chambers and courts of law) should be regarded as virtually non-existent.

Baird retored to Stewart that "this is not a court of law" and snapped at Stephen that "I have not made any facts known, no accusations."

CLAIMS SORDID HISTORY

He then went on to repeat that "Cool-Aid has a sordid history and I have here a file from the city police to prove it."

Mentioning no names, Baird listed 1022 Southgate Street as the "centre where certain things happened." He later charged, again using the police report as his source, that the house was being used for communal living with young boys and young girls there."

"We are asked to give them a future," he added. "Even a murderer has a future until he is hanged.

"The police say most undesirable incidents to young girls . . ."

Stephen cut in to repeat his warning to Baird.

"We are dealing with a request for a grant. I must warn you and advise you that you are now dealing with an inter-departmental memo, a confidential police report."

Baird distributed copies of the confidential police report to all members of council prior to the meeting.

Following the mayor's second warning Baird simply stated that as "chairman of finance I must say that if money is given to this group it will be a gross misuse of public funds."

Ald. Harold Olafson backed the Baird move to block the grant which would permit two homes for transient youngsters to be operated for six months on a month-to-month basis.

EXCUSE TO LEAVE

"It's a small enough amount (around $1,000 for Victoria's share) but I think it would bring more undesirable elements to our city," he said. "It would give kids who are against parental authority an excuse to leave home. If they used the money for an employment agency instead of this I'd take a different view."

Ald. Percy Frampton took his stand on the theory "where there's smoke, there's fire. I don't know whether to believe what I have heard or not. The idea is good, but the people at the head are not the type who would do a good job.

President of PCSDS is a Vancouver-based United Church minister. Victoria supporters include doctors, lawyers, social and church workers and psychiatrists.

Stewart rose to defend the grant application bid.

"If someone told me members of this council were bigots I would not repeat that statement around town," he said. "I know all too well the dangers of accepting information from a third person without substantiation.

"I wish to have no part in a decision based on hearsay.

"Don't tell me that your children will go to Cool-Aid because they like it better than home, because if you tell me that you're telling me your homes are no damn good in the first place."

Stewart continued to plead for at least a chance for a group of young people desirous of trying to help their own cause.

HEADS IN SAND

"They are trying to make some contact between our group and their's," Stewart said. "I realize it is a departure, I realize that a great deal of trust is involved. I think you have your heads in the sand if you refuse to acknowledge the problem."

"I have nothing to do with Cool-Aid. I have never been to their meetings. But I believe in change. I do not believe in revolution, but if we do not change with the changing times we invite confrontation.

Ald. Lily Wilson ended the debate with strong support for the grant.

"I do not accept the notion that these young people are the lowest of the low," she said. "The fact that the young people would rather go to Cool-Aid for advice than the agencies we have, would rather go to Cool-Aid than the family doctor or their parents, would indicate that Cool-Aid has something the rest of us can't give."

Dow Seeks Pentane Buy

CALGARY (CP) — Chevron Standard Ltd. of Calgary said Tuesday that Dow Chemicals Ltd. is a prospective purchaser of pentanes plus from a $120,000,000 gas cycling plant it wants to build in the Kaybob south field of west-central Alberta.

Chevron witnesses told an Alberta oil and gas conservation board hearing that Dow would take 15,000 barrels a day of pentanes recovered by the plant. This would make up about one-third of the plant's production and would eventually grow to 26,000 barrels a day for use at Dow's plant in Bay City, Mich.

Chevron, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of California, proposes to process 615,000,000 cubic feet of raw gas a day to produce 395,000,000 cubic feet of residue gas, of which 100,000,000 cubic feet would be sold and the rest recycled.

Chevron would produce 15,300,000 barrels a year of propane, butane and pentane plus from the gas during a 21-year period, as well as sulphur.

Total sales: 3,700,000

Okanagan Will Get Distillery

KELOWNA (CP) — Hiram Walker and Sons Ltd. Thursday announced plans to build a distillery at Winfield, 14 miles north of here. Cost is estimated at more than $30,000,000.

The company said from Walkerville, Ont., a Windsor suburb, that the plant will serve the western U.S. and overseas markets, as well as B.C., Alberta, Saskatchewan, the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

Construction is to start soon with completion set for 1971. The plant, including maturing, blending and bottling operations, likely will employ more than 200, the company said.

The firm had earlier announced it would not exercise its option on the 160-acre site but a spokesman said Thursday that problems regarding water supply of 6,000,000 gallons a day have been solved.

The company said the plant will be the second largest in Canada, behind the Walkerville operation. It qualifies for a grant under federal incentives to bring industry to depressed areas.

Turning Point Indicated In Canadian Bond Market

TORONTO (CP) — The much-battered Canadian bond market may at last have reached a turning point.

Many financial analysts now say that the market appears to have arrived at the end of its long downward slide and will begin to stabilize.

Greenshields Inc., Montreal investment dealers, said in a recent market letter that unless there is an acceleration in the rate of inflation or an unexpectedly large increase in government financing requirements "long-term interest rates are unlikely to move—at least in the current cycle—above the plateau which they reached in late 1968."

Burns Bros. and Denton are equally optimistic. The Toronto investment house said recent market action suggests that the longer-term bond market has reached peak interest rates and that the prevailing yields may not be exceeded during the remainder of 1969.

Canada and the United States, whose economies and monetary health are closely interwoven, have been in an inflationary grip for almost five years. Occasionally, bond prices have improved in that period—but only briefly as interest rates in general have edged upwards.

DROP IN PRICE

The bellwether Government of Canada 4½-per-cent Sept. 1, 1983, bonds, for example, have dropped in price to $75 from $89 in the last two years.

The average yield on long-term Canadas has increased steadily from 6.44 per cent in early September, 1968, to a peak of 7.3 per cent at the end of the year. Since then, the yield has fluctuated between 7.11 and 7.3 per cent. The yield last week was about 7.2 per cent.

Economists believe the more investors are convinced that the monetary and fiscal authorities in Canada and the U.S. are serious about fighting inflation, the better it will be for the bond market.

This psychology was evident in the performance of the Canadian and U.S. bond markets in the last two weeks.

While monetary policies continued to tighten, prices in both markets posted sizable gains over the previous week's levels.

But traders agree no fast turnabout in bond-price movements should be expected.

"If any price improvement at all should come about in the next weeks," one trader said, "it will be a creeping improvement. The market surely won't be roaring ahead."

Institutions, the main buyers of bonds, are reported treading cautiously. They are waiting to see whether current restrictions are doing the job of cooling the economy effectively.

And there is not much evidence of that yet.

The consumer price index, after remaining unchanged in January and February at 122.6, edged up in March to 123.2; the annual rate of Gross National Product is estimated to have reached about $71,500,000,000 in the first quarter of 1969, up from $70,000,000,000 in the last quarter of 1968. And the economy is charging into the second quarter of 1969 with enormous capital expenditures on company books, with adequate, if not spectacular retail sales and a continuing boom in housing.

But Burns Bros. and Denton suggest that with a continuing tight monetary policy by the government a significant deceleration of the GNP growth rate is likely to be achieved in the balance of 1969.

"Given the restrictive stance of public policies, the probabilities seem to be heavily in favor of such a pattern of deceleration being achieved and the downside stickiness of longer-term bond prices may be a reflection of this."

Fall Opening Seen For Brenda Operation

VANCOUVER (CP) — Brenda Mines Ltd. said Thursday its $60,000,000 copper and molybdenum mine near Peachland, 20 miles west of Kelowna, should go into operation in late September or early October.

Company president B. O. Brynelson said the target should be reached, barring unforeseen troubles, despite an "extremely severe winter" and labor problems at the mine, where stripping continues.

Noranda Mines Ltd. has put up $27,500,000 of the financing and when the project is completed will own slightly more than 50 per cent of outstanding shares. Share total will be about 4,200,000.

The company's annual report listed expenditures to Dec. 31, 1968, amounting to about $33,000,000 and there were contractual obligations for another $6,0000,000.

General manager John Hall said about 4,000,000 tons of waste remained to be stripped. By March 31, about 4,400,000 tons had been removed. Most mining equipment had been delivered.

Other financing comes from the Bank of Nova Scotia, $25,000,000, and Nippon Mining Co. Ltd. and Mitsui and Co. Ltd., a total of $7,500,000. Nippon will receive 24,000 shares and Mitsui 16,000.

TEMPERS BOILED OVER in more than one place in professional sports Friday to provide fans with extra excitement. Tensions of playoff hockey touched off trouble (above) as officials order fan removed from Boston Garden and John McKenzie, of Boston Bruins, struggles with Serge Savard, of Montreal Canadiens. Fan had reached over glass to hit John Ferguson after tempestuous Canadien had been ordered to penalty box. It was grounded lineup (below) in fight during American League baseball game in Minneapolis as Minnesota pitcher Dick Woodson (left) attempts to apply headlock to Oakland's Reggie Jackson, who is also held by Craig Nettles, of Twins. Winner a Plain Effort But Vachon Was Fancy

Overtime Hex Works Again As Habs Eliminate Bruins

BOSTON (CP) — That old overtime jinx hit the Bruins Thursday night, but it was a veteran all-star and a young goaltender who killed Boston's bid for their first berth in the Stanley Cup final since 1940-41.

Jean Beliveau, Montreal Canadiens' 36-year-old captain, rapped in a pass from right winger Claude Provost at 11:28 of the second overtime period for a 2-1 Montreal victory and the National Hockey League semi-final playoff series four games to two.

Rogatien Vachon, 23, who became starting goalie when Gump Worsley dislocated the little finger on his left hand in the third game, blocked 50 shots, 22 in the scoreless second period. He was unbeatable after giving up a goal to Ron Murphy at 2:29 of the first period.

Beliveau's goal, his second of the series, marked the first time in his 16-year NHL career that he has scored in overtime. The Montreal captain scored the tying goal in the first game of the series which Montreal won 3-2 in overtime.

START SUNDAY

The Canadiens, winners of the NHL's Eastern Division, now meet St. Louis Blues in a best-of-seven final series which opens in Montreal Sunday.

St. Louis, Western Division champions, defeated Philadelphia Flyers in their quarter-final in four games and then knocked off Los Angeles Kings in the semi-final, also in four games.

The Blues and the Canadiens met in last year's final with Montreal—minus Beliveau—taking the series in four games. However, this year the Blues are well rested while Canadiens have had a rugged series against Boston.

After Thursday's game, Vachon, said he was tired, but happy.

"I was so tired I just lay down between periods and tried to relax," he said in the Canadiens dressing room as coach Claude Ruel smiled for the first time since he arrived in Boston Wednesday.

"I was still lucky, there were several shots that just hit me and some that I didn't even see."

Beliveau refused to take much credit for the winning goal.

"It was a perfect pass from that old guy sitting right over there," said the Montreal centre, pointing to Provost.

NOTHING FANCY

"I thought we'd lost possession of the puck to (Don) Awrey. I turned back ready to head for our end of the rink, then I saw Joe (Provost) come up with it.

"I had no time for a fancy shot. I just let it go."

It was the third time in this series that Canadiens beat the Bruins in overtime.

Serge Savard tied the game at 1:10 of the third period Thursday night, five seconds after Awrey had gone off for cross-checking.

Gerry Cheevers, who played outstanding goal for the Bruins throughout the playoffs, was screened by Bobby Orr on the shot.

STILL NOT CONVINCED

Meanwhile, Boston coach Harry Sinden was convinced he had the better team.

"It's rough," Sinden said. "At no time during the night did I think we were going to lose that game.

"We were getting stronger all the time, but. . . ."

Ruel was almost in tears when Sinden went to congratulate him.

"Boy, that Boston is a great hockey team," he said, "but we're not too bad ourselves."

The coach held to his policy of no predictions when asked about the series against St. Louis.

"I never make predictions," he said. "All I know it is going to be another series and we're going home to rest."

Beltin' Reggie Also Adequate As a Thrower

By The Associated Press

Reggie Jackson wasn't doing much of anything until Dave Boswell fired two good pitches and Dick Woodson threw two close ones.

Boswell's two tosses resulted in a pair of homers by Jackson in Oakland Athletics' 6-4 victory over Minnesota Thursday. Woodson's pitches resulted in a black eye for the Twins' hurler, suffered during a brief bout with Jackson on the mound.

Jackson, who took only a .146 average into the game, charged to the mound after successive pitches by Woodson whizzed by his head in the fifth inning.

"There was a lot of velocity on those balls," said Jackson. "I was scared."

While Jackson was attempting to tackle Woodson, players from both benches streamed on to the field in an attempt to separate the two fighters.

Jackson was ejected and Woodson was lifted for a pinch hitter in the bottom of the inning.

In other American League action, Bobby Murcer hit two more homers as New York Yankees trounced Cleveland 11-3 for the Indians' 12th loss in 13 games and Baltimore Orioles checked Detroit Tigers 5-2 on Dave McNally's five-hitter. Washington's game at Boston was rained out.

Jackson said he "didn't want to fight" Woodson. "That's why I tackled him. I wanted to show him I meant business. I had to protect myself."

"I don't blame him," said Athletics manager Hank Bauer. "I would have done the same thing."

Asked if he thought Woodson was throwing at Jackson, Bauer replied: "Definitely."

Twins manager Billy Martin said Woodson "wasn't throwing at him. He was told to pitch him up and in. The first was behind and the second a foot over his head."

Woodson said he tried "to pitch him inside. The first two balls he hit out (off Boswell) were low and away. My cleats caught on the rubber on the first pitch and the second was way over his head. He (Jackson) just lost his head."

HURT HIS EYE

Woodson suffered a gash on his right eyelid where he said "Jackson tried to take my eye out with his finger."

Jackson slammed a two-run homer in the first, then had a solo blast in the third. Sal Bando also homered for the Athletics in the first while Rick Monday contributed three doubles and two RBI's.

Ken Harrelson, recently traded by Boston, had a triple and a single in his debut as an Indian, but Yankee lefty Fritz Peterson, 2-2, yielded only four other hits.

Meanwhile, Murcer cracked a homer in the fifth after Jerry Kenney's single, then followed up in the next inning with another two-run job—his seventh of the young season.

In the National League, Nate Colbert returned to haunt the Houston Astros.

Last October the Astros decided the rookie outfielder couldn't help them this season and Colbert was picked up by San Diego Padres in the expansion draft.

Thursday night Houston club learned Colbert could hurt them. He beat the Astros 4-1 with his first big league homer, a three-run wallop in the eighth inning.

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati Reds edged Los Angeles 8-7, San Francisco Giants topped Atlanta Braves 5-1, St. Louis Cardinals edged Chicago Cubs 3-2 and Philadelphia Phillies rapped Montreal Expos 7-1. Pittsburgh was rained out at New York.

Colbert's blast sent the Astros reeling to their eighth loss in the last nine games.

PRODUCING HEADACHES WAY TO IMPRESS BOSS

The best way for Victoria booters Ike MacKay, Bruce Twamley and Bruce Robinson to impress their new boss will be to give him a succession of a soccer headaches, Saturday night.

They will all be laboring with Victoria O'Keefes under lights at Royal Athletic Park when the Pacific Cost Soccer League club tangles in an exhibition struggle with Vancouver Spartans at 8 p.m.

MacKay and Twamley are slated to join Spartans for the Western Canada League's summer campaign after Victoria's final game of the season — a clash here May 14 with West Bromwich Albion of the English League's First Division.

Spartan coach Peter Dinsdale if also high on Robinson and a strong effort Saturday could earn Brian an invitation to join the Vancouver squad.

Nosella Sparkles In Curtain-Closer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Centre-forward Roy Nosella scored two goals Thursday night to lead North Shore to a 4-2 win over Vancouver Croatia in the final game of the Pacific Coast Soccer League's regular season.

The result had no effect on league standings. North Shore remained in sixth place and Croatia in the cellar of the nine-team league.

However, Nosella's goals tied him for the scoring championship with New Westminster's Jack Perri. Each scored 17 during the season.

North Shore had to come from behind a 2-1 halftime deficit. Milos Potucick and Mike Sails scored for Croatia. Bob Therrien and Ted Atkinson scored the other North Shore goals.

Playoffs will be this weekend, with second-placed University of British Columbia meeting third-place Vancouver Firefighters Saturday and champion Vancouver Columbus facing fourth-place New Westminster on Sunday.

The winners meet in the final the following Sunday.

LONDON (Reuters) — Canadian Davis Cup player Mike Belkin scored two victories Thursday to move into the semi-finals of the men's singles in the Cumberland hard court tennis tournament here.

Belkin, of Montreal, beat P. Ambrus of Hungary 7-5, 6-4 in the fourth round, then battled to a 6-4, 5-7, 6-4 quarter-final victory over Britain's Stanley Matthews.

Belkins' Davis Cup teammate, Harry Fouquier of Toronto, was beaten 6-4, 6-4 by P. Doerner of Australia in the fourth round.

Canadians Trail In Dallas Classic

DALLAS (AP)—Young Ken Fulton, of Trail, B.C., shot a blistering 32 on the front nine Thursday in the $100,000 Byron Nelson golf tournament. However, he soared to a 41 on the back nine and is well back in the pack going into today's second round.

Fulton's 73—he was tied with Al Balding of Toronto as the top Canadians—was seven strokes off the pace set by Bert Greene.

His front-nine 32 was matched only by Chris Blocker who had a 35 going home for a second-place score of 67. Tied with Blocker were Julius Boros and Bob Menne.

Other Canadian scores over the tough, 7,086-yard, par 70 Preston Trail Golf Club course were: Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg and Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver with 74s and Bill Wakeham of Victoria at 78.

HAVEN'T WON YET

Greene is in his third year on the tour, while Blocker is in his fifth year. But they've yet to win. And, with Menne, the trio has a total yearly earning of $8,905, $7,062 by Greene.

Menne had the only eagle of the day, pitching to within 15 feet on the par-five third and sinking the putt.

Greene and Blocker each came home on a string of three consecutive birdies.

The rock-steady Boros, PGA champion, didn't miss a fairway, three-putted two greens going out, but came home in 31, four under par.

A group of six was tied at 69, one under. They were: Arnold Palmer, U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino, Australian Bruce Crampton, lefty Bob Charles of New Zealand, Bob Lunn and Orville Moody.

Miller Barber, defending champion, blew to an 80.

CFB Esquimalt Vaults Into Second Place

KINGSTON, Ont. — CFB Esquimalt Terriers, who won the B.C. "B" volleyball crown at University of British Columbia earlier this month, moved into second spot Thursday with a 14-4 record after two days of competition in the four-day annual Canadian Forces championship.

Terriers moved up from fourth place by winning nine out of 10 matches played Thursday.

CFB Kingston, making a bid for a third straight title, was still in first place with a 16-4 record in the nine-team tournament.

Top four teams on Saturday will enter a single-loss elimination playoff for the national crown.

GARDEN EXECUTIVE NEGOTIATES

Jets' Sale 'Felt' Out

NEW YORK (AP)—Irving Mitchell Felt, chairman of the board of the Madison Square Garden Corp., is actively negotiating to purchase New York Jets of the American Football League, The Daily News reports.

There was no immediate comment from the four-man syndicate which with Sonny Werblin bought the franchise from Harry Wismer in 1963 for $1,000,000. This basically paid off accumulated debts.

The current price tag is reported around $20,000,000.

Werblin later sold his interest in the club, leaving it in the hands of his four associates, Phil Iselin, Leon Hess, Townsend Martin and the late Donald C. Willis.

The owners have let it be known that they will listen to offers.

If Felt should purchase the club, or the controlling interest, he would have to do so as an individual and not as a representative of the Garden since there is a pro football rule prohibiting ownership of a team by a corporation.

HEADING FOR WEEKEND MEET

Heading for weekend meet at Crystal Gardens is Jim Gollmer, one of city swimming aces who has been churning water in practice sessions for first annual invitational meet staged by Victoria Olympians. Gollmer will be contesting open and 15-16 age class events during two-day program, which has attracted many of top splashers from Pacific Northwest. On Saturday, heats will start at 9:30 a.m. and finals will begin at 6 p.m. On Sunday, heats will commence at 9 and finals are slated to start at 5.

Exclusive Grid Rights Locked Up

VANCOUVER (CP). — The Vancouver firm of Imaginaction International Ltd. has negotiated an exclusive franchise for commercial use of all team names, colors, badges and endorsements of the Canadian Football League and its nine member teams.

The agreement beteeen Imaginaction and the CFL covers all commercial promotions except play-by-play radio and television broadcasts and certain official league publications such as rule books and statistics.

Imaginaction president Norman MacKinhon said that game programs will remain local for the near future but that he expects existing contracts to be phased out, bringing them under Imaginaction control.

A similar deal with the National Football League in the United States nets an American firm $35,000,000 a year.

Under the deal, any firm wishing to produce sweatshirts, pennants, stadium blankets or souvenirs of any kind with team or league names, symbols or colors on them will have to obtain a franchise from Imaginaction.

Products such as football equipment seeking league, team or player endorsement would also have to go through the franchise holder.

"We have the right to call something official or endorse products used," MacKinnon said.

Imaginaction will pay the league a flat fee with an override provision and will in turn charge a royalty to those using league materials.

Mounties Sharing Lead With Indians

By The Canadian Press

Vancouver Mounties won another cliffhanger in Honolulu Thursday night as Marv Staehle came across with the winning run in the top of the ninth for a 4-3 Pacific Coast League baseball victory over Hawai Islanders.

Mounties opened the scoring in the third but the Islanders went ahead 2-1 in the fourth. Vancouver went ahead 3-2 in the top of the fifth but the Islanders tied it in their half of the inning.

The win was a big one and evened the Mounties' record at 7-7, good enough for a first-place tie with idle Spokane Indians in the loop's Northern Division.

Darryl Brandon was credited with the win as he walked three and struck out six. Reliever Ricky Clark was tagged with the loss.

In the only other game, Rich Barry spoiled Portland Beavers' home debut by driving in three runs with a homer and a single to lead Eugene Emeralds to a decisive 5-2 win.

Victory moved the Emeralds within 1½ games of idle Phoenix, the leaders in the PCL Southern Division.

Conservation Brief Escapes Red-Tape Snarl

By STEWART LANG

Governmental red tape only partially succeeded in muzzling a plea by the Amalgamated Conservation Society for the rehabilitation of coho salmon stocks in small rivers and streams of the southern British Columbia Mainland and Vancouver Island.

A detailed brief was to have been submitted to the standing committee on fisheries and forestry of the House of Commons at the Imperial Inn on Thursday night.

What actually was presented, orally, by the author of the brief, Howard English, turned out to be a shortened version of an already-tight document.

This is where red tape comes into the picture.

Bob Rogerson, secretary of the ACS, received a letter on April 9 inviting the society to present a brief before the committee when it met in Victoria.

However, in order to be officially accepted, 40 copies of the brief in English and another 20 in French had to be in Ottawa by April 14.

This left insufficient time to prepare a complete summary.

Rogerson wrote back on the society's behalf on April 16. He explained the situation and asked whether the conservation group could present their brief anyway. He was still waiting for a reply when Thursday night rolled around.

Though the ACS was unable to go on record with a more detailed oral submission, the full contents of the original brief were accepted in written form.

The ACS brief declares sports catches of coho and grilse have declined by some 68,000 fish, when the average catch of the past four years is compared to the four years of 1957-60. On the other hand, the average commercial catch of coho for the same periods has increased by an average of nearly two million coho.

Sports fishing returns have declined approximately 23 per cent but the increase in commercially-caught coho is over 70 per cent.

Because summer coho form the major game for sports fishermen, the ACS feels "a closer look at the problem of coho spawning escapement is needed."

The ACS document also declares: "The seriousness of this summer coho escapement problem in these southern waters is indicated by the specific cases of the Nanaimo and Chemainus rivers. Their combined average coho escapements have declined approximately 80 per cent, from approximately 11,000 spawners (1951-58) to less than 2,000 spawners (1959-66). A similar decline is evident in Howe Sound (Area 28) and the Goldstream River (in Area 19)."

It also shows that increased gillnet catches of both herring and salmon reflect in a lower escapement factor.

"Grilse nursery areas and coho holding and feeding grounds should be closed to herring fishery operations," the brief recommends.

"Rehabilitation of a number of depleted summer coho spawning escapements are an urgent major need of the valuable sports fishery . . ."

The brief charges that large amounts of money are being spent on the development of sockeye, pink and chum salmon for the commercial fishermen, but not as much is spent for the ever-expanding sports fishing industry.

Pollution control and the provision of adequate protected amounts of water in spawning streams were cited as some of the other important problems that must be met.

"It is not progress," the ACS stresses, "when a job is developed in some other industry by destroying a job in the fishing, recreation and tourist industries.

"Unilateral development in one industry that damages another industry is not sound development or progress."

Boaters Challenge Gulf of Georgia

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Power boats from Seattle, Vancouver, Victoria and Nanaimo are rendezvousing tonight in Cadboro Bay. Saturday morning, they'll tackle Canada's toughest, most challenging contest, the 9th Annual Gulf of Georgia Predicted Log Race, for the Samuel Patrick Cromie Memorial Trophy.

Some 50 boats will start the 70-mile race from Baynes Channel, travelling northeast in the direction of Salt Spring Island, through Porlier Pass, and across the Gulf to finish at Burnaby Shoal Light inside Vancouver Harbor.

Hewett

The boats, ranging in size between 30 and 60 feet, will depart after 8 a.m., with the slowest first. Individual starting times are determined by the skippers, who work the course backward through four checkpoints from the finish time limit of 16:00 hours. (Somewhat like a car rally, but with allowances made for tides and wind).

Computing the tides is highly important. In this race, for example, there probably won't be much tide until Porlier Pass. And no one will ever predict for sure what combination of wind over water "the Gulf" will serve up.

In some respects, the "beginning" for this strictest of races is actually 10 o'clock this evening. By then, each skipper must file his log, stating the speed at which his boat will run, the estimated time of arrival at each check point, and at the finish line. As well, each boat is assigned an exchange observer, who travels with it for the duration of the race.

The observer checks the time of the start; watches the boat's tachometer to see that the engine speed is not changed; and records other infractions such as departure from course. The observer also confiscates all watches and the ship's clock. From start to finish, the skipper or navigator can check the time with the observer at the check points only.

The first checkpoint is the Sidney Spit Beacon; Second, Nose Point Light in Captain's Passage (the northern end of Salt Spring Island); Third, Race Point Light in Porlier Pass; Fourth, North Arm Jetty of the Fraser River. The fifth check point is also the finish line: Burnaby Shoal, Vancouver Harbor.

Vancouver Island will be represented by several newcomers to predicted log racing, as well as several veterans at the game.

Victoria brothers entering their first race are Bob and Les Curran.

Gordon Carter's first try at the race will be run at 12 knots in his 36-foot Canoe Cove "Royal Lady." Navigating will be Ed McLean.

An "old hand" with a brand new boat, the Playbuoy, is well-known Nanaimo skipper Ernie Harding. Other Victoria entries are John Bailey, who is both skipper and navigator in the Fascination, and Jim Beattie in Doken, with Sandy Smith navigating.

Royal Van's Len Sewell, who won last year's race with an error of 1.166 percent, will defend his title again this year. Other noted mainland competitors will be Les and Babe Simmers, Tom Trapp, Dr. Hew Brooke, Bill Anderson, Art Tidder, Bus McDonald, Gavin Thompson, and Dr. Ken Davidson. American skippers will include Ed Dunn, John Rosenfield, Neil McIntyre, Jerry Bryant, Jack Rottler, and Don Bancroft.

SHORT TACKS: Gulf of Georgia's Committee, elected every year, includes West Van's Gavin Thompson, president; Royal Vic's Archie McBride, vice-president; and Dr. Ken Davidson, secretary ... Two special trophies are the Canoe Cove Trophy for the best Vancouver Island entry, and the Killam Chaos Trophy for Hard Luck ...

The latter incorporates a piece of a motor which the famous Bill Killam blew out during one of the earlier races ... (Killam also won one of the earlier races) ... The other half of a very big boating weekend is Sunday's Lipton Trophy Race, starting off Clover Point at 1000 hours ... Deadline for entries, which must be filed at RVYC, is Saturday afternoon.

There're Few Secrets Now Among This Hospital Staff

By PAT DUFOUR

After this week there'll be few secrets about Veterans' Hospital employees' "private lines."

The analytical process took the form of a hobby show at the hospital in which most of the 400 employees took part. It ends today.

For three days their fellow workers have been able to see what occupies their colleague's off-duty time.

Some of the revelations were surprising.

Few knew the staff radiologist is a "nut" on vintage cars or suspected that one orderly spent most of his spare time under water . . . skin diving.

SENSE OF HUMOR

Those who had been intimidated by head nurses, found they really do have a sense of humor. The head nurses set up a hilarious hat bar, utilizing discarded hospital equipment to make their chapeaux.

There was "Rainy Day Ensemble," a precocious little number titivated with intravenous tubing and cast-off syringes.

The operating theatre refused to be outdone by any department, producing a number titled "Welsh Rarebit."

A jaunty daffodil doubled for a leek and the Brer Rabbit topper was decorated in an award-winning manner with rubber gloves, dubbed with red to denote the creator's department.

A veritable wine cellar was displayed by one employee bound to be called on to host future office parties.

MANY COLLECTIONS

Shell, coin and stamp collections; wardrobes of knitted, crocheted and tailored creations; oil painting, Croatian embroidery, ceramic tiles and a dozen other arts and crafts helped swell the mammoth show.

Recreation officer Ernie Cassels said the show is the best "get acquainted" program for staffers he's found.

Judging by the number of patients who visited the show this week, the staff is going to be an open book to them too.

Forest Fire Season To Open

The annual forest fire season begins Thursday and all British Columbians will need special permits for outdoor fires.

Free camp fire permits are available from forest service stations, fish and game officers and from various sporting goods stores.

Permits to clear land and burn debris are available from forest rangers in unorganized areas and from municipal halls.

More than 750 trained forest protection personnel will go on alert in 106 ranger districts across the province May 1 to organize and direct firefighting operations until the season is declared over sometime in October.

Last year there were 1,647 forest fires in the province which burned up some 33,800 acres of timber worth about $680,000.

Stay Off Pipe Smokers Told

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Colin Woolfe, head of Toronto General Hospital's respiratory research laboratory, said Wednesday switching to a pipe to avoid the health hazards of cigarettes is futile—the only way out is to quit smoking.

He told the annual meeting of Ontario Heart Foundation volunteers that cigarette smokers carried inhaling habits over to pipe-smoking, but smoking was no great danger to veteran pipe-smokers who did not inhale.

Prairie Woman Injured in Crash

ACCRA (Reuters) — Officials have flown to Takoradi to investigate the crash there of a Ghana Airways DC-3 Dakota in which one passenger died and 19 persons—including a Canadian—were seriously injured.

The plane flying from Accra via Kumasi to Takoradi 110 miles along the coast west of here overshot the runway Thursday and crashed in scrubland.

An airport official named the dead man as C. Moss of London, a representative of a distillery at Takoradi.

Reported among the seriously injured was Gertrude Chamberlain, a Canadian catering instructor, here for two years under a Canadian university student organization project.

Miss Chamberlain, who is in her 50s, is believed to come from Winnipeg.

5-Year Term Mortgages For New NHA Borrowers

OTTAWA (CP) — Private investors may be encouraged to put more funds into housing loans under a shift in rules for government-insured mortgages announced here.

The change, which would permit adjustment of the interest rate every five years on new mortgages, will have little immediate impact on Canadians borrowing money to buy a new home. Existing mortgages will not be affected.

In theory, the long-run impact of attracting more funds into the mortgage market could be to reduce the cost of borrowing—the interest rate—because competition among lenders would increase.

For the person seeking a new mortgage on a newly-built home under the National Housing Act from now on, it would mean the lender could offer a mortgage renewable every five years.

Present NHA mortgages carry the same interest rate throughout the repayment period, usually 25 years.

DUE IN FIVE YEARS

In practice, a five-year-term mortgage signed today at an interest rate of nine per cent would come due five years from today.

If interest rates then were higher than nine per cent, the lender would offer the customer a new five-year agreement at the higher rate. If the customer declined, the lender could ask for repayment of the full balance owed on the loan. The customer then would have to shop around and see if he could get a mortgage loan on better terms.

If interest rates were lower five years from now, the debtor would be in the driver's seat. He could ask the lender for a renewed mortgage at the lower interest.

Transport Minister Paul Hellyer, who has cabinet responsibility for housing policy, announced the new arrangement—the first implementation of housing-policy changes he recommended in January after leading a four-month inquiry across the country.

Many of the other proposed changes—about 50 in all—would require changes in legislation. Some, such as a proposal to remove the federal sales tax on building materials, have been rejected by the cabinet.

The five-year-term system, already applied by some lenders on conventional mortgages not insured under the NHA, is an option to the 20 or 25-year term.

The private lenders who usually offer both conventional and NHA mortgages—trust and mortgage companies, banks and other financial institutions—could offer either term.

The five-year-term offer on NHA mortgages would be applicable only to newly-built homes for sale or rent, not existing homes.

Mr. Hellyer said the aim of the change is to provide greater flexibility in the mortgage market for both borrowers and lenders.

In the January report of his inquiry, Mr. Hellyer said trust and loan companies often obtain their funds from savers and investors on a short-term basis and thus hesitate to lend money at a fixed interest rate for a long term.

"Mortgages with a five-year term would seem to offer a more attractive investment" to such companies.

The report also observed that fixing interest rates for the life of the mortgage fails to take account of the borrower's ability to pay more as he earns more.

Initial reaction from the real estate and building markets agrees that Wednesday's change could help assure a constant supply of mortgage funds for housing.

Donald Kirkup, information officer for the Toronto Real Estate Board, said the effect would be that mortgages probably would be easier to obtain initially, but more expensive to keep up as time goes on. He said he expected interest rates to continue going up.

Mr. Kirkup also said he expected the government would implement other recommendations of Mr. Hellyer, including increasing the maximum size of individual NHA loans from the present $18,000 and the repayment term from the present 25 years.

Both changes would require legislation.

Compromise Reached In Teacher Dispute

KITIMAT (CP) — A threatened strike by 137 school teachers has been averted in this aluminum industry town 400 miles northwest of Vancouver, school board chairman Dennis Barber said Thursday.

He said a compromise has been reached with teachers in a dispute centred on budget cuts proposed by the board after taxpayers rejected a $364,264 referendum earlier this year.

The board had proposed to cut 30 teachers and keep only 107 but now has agreed to retain a minimum of 134, Mr. Barber said.

Kindergartens, which were to have been dropped, will be retained along with special bus service. But teacher aides will be eliminated and some janitor services will be curtailed.

S. E. Espley, comptroller of the British Columbia education department, gave the board permission to borrow money to carry it from September to December. Then a new budget will be drawn up.

Quebecer Honored for Saving 12

MONTREAL (CP) — Charlemagne Cabana, a 63-year-old court clerk, Thursday received the Order of Merit from the Quebec Safety League for saving 12 lives in the last 48 years.

A league official said people have been honored for saving as many as four lives but he could not remember anyone with a record of a dozen.

Cabana said in an interview: "Maybe 'le Bon Dieu'—the good Lord—had something to do with me being there when help was needed."

In 1921 he pulled Midas Gravel, a small boy, out of the St. Lawrence River near suburban St. Lambert.

In 1935 he saved a boy called Gamble who had crashed through ice on the Richelieu river while skating.

The next two boys he saved from the Richelieu River were both called Comtois but they were not related. One was an epileptic; the other had been pushed in by a prankster.

Cabana told how he saved a five-year-old girl who was choking on an ice cube, 30 years ago.

"There was nothing particularly heroic in what I did. I simply shoved my finger down her throat and dislodged the cube."

He rescued four children from a burning house in 1959. The youngsters were then aged six months to seven years and the clerk rushed into the flaming house three times.

In the winter of 1966 he saved a father and two of his three children from drowning in Lake Champlain near Clarenceville, Que., when their car drove onto ice and began to sink.

Cabana says he never drives his car without bringing along a first aid kit and a tourniquet.

"I'm somewhat like a Boy Scout," he said.

"I always try to be prepared for whatever may happen."

Stones, Bones and Archers Highlights of Hobby Show

By JOHN DRISCOLL

The Victoria Hobby Show laughs at anyone who complains "there's nothing to do."

A wide range of leisure-time activities are on display at the Victoria Curling Club.

An archer from the Victoria Bowmen explains to a visitor "archery is all in the mind" as one of his arrows flies wide of the mark.

In another booth a woman from the Victoria Hand Weaver's Guild works patiently at her loom.

A man and woman pay little attention to curious visitors as they weave chair and stool seats from long strips of cane and rush.

The Victoria Lapidary and Mineral Society, which is sponsoring the show, has a work display where visitors can watch a piece of crude mineral being cut, worked and polished into a table top.

Indian students from the Institute of Adult Studies demonstrate that ancient woodcarving and painting talents has not been lost.

A woman sculptor works in clay and near her, women draw intricate designs with liquid embrodery.

There's an exotic fish collection, including one tank which has replaced the picture tube in a television set.

Hobbyists represented at the show include camera clubs, stamp collectors, badge collectors, wood sculptors mold-makers, canoeists and archeologists.

Rockhounds dominate the exhibits with polished stones, mineral and gems from around the world. British Columbia jade is much in evidence.

The exhibits show nature herself as someting of a hobbyist.

Concretions displayed are pebbles erosion has carved look like children's drawings of animals and men.

Strange and beautiful formations of driftwood have been polished and laminated to form tables and lamps.

There are collections of bottles, desert glasses and fossils alongside a model railroad display and a model ship display.

Exhibits of ceramics, copper enamelling, and doll making and costuming accompany a display of the Canadian Speleological Society.

Speleology? "It's the exploration of caves and any natural wonders caused by erosion or volcanic action," explained a society member.

There are 53 exhibits in all the show which opened Thursday will continue until Sunday. Now in its fifth year teh annual hobby show is the largest of its kind in North America.

Fire Causes Heavy Damage

Damage has been estimated at $9,000 in a Saanich house fire Thursday afternoon.

The blaze broke out in a basement rumpus room at 629 Sedger owned by Claud Alexander Mancor. Mr. and Mrs. Mancor were out working at the time and the fire was fought with a garden hose by a passing unidentifed motorist until the fire department arrived.

Cause of the fire was reported to be faulty electrical wiring or combustible materials igniting spontaneously.

The fire was confined to the basement but damage was extensive. There was smoke damage to the upstaris of the house. A towing firm removed a car from the burning basement during the fire.

Varied, Lively Display of Talent Tonight

By BERYL PROUDMAN

The Greater Victoria Music Festival enters its closing phase tonight with the schools' honor performance at Victoria Senior Secondary School starting at 8.

The festival closes on a triumphant note Saturday night at McPherson Theatre with Festival Highlights.

The large number of school choirs will be represented tonight by Doncaster (Grade 1); Monterey (Grade 6), whose teacher had the unenviable task of choosing one of her two choirs that won superior rating in this class; Shelbourne Elementary (folk song); Monterey Elementary (composite choir).

All four choirs entered by Monterey were awarded superior rating.

Lake Hill will contribute an elementary instrumental group, and Glanford's elementary recorder class will also entertain and, as they decided to forego adjudication this year, experimentally, the school bands have elected Victoria Senior Secondary School to represent them in what promises to be a varied and lively display of talent.

FILLED WITH SINGING

The auditorium of Oak Bay Junior Secondary was filled with singing Thursday.

In both the morning and afternoon sessions, the numbers of choirs wishing to participate was so large an arbitrary division was made between those from schools of fewer than 500 pupils and those from larger schools.

Numerically this worked out beautifully though even this elaborate shift system proved inadequate in the afternoon. Eight choirs, many of them numbering up to 75 students were competing in one class and the auditorium just could not hold them all.

Cyril Mossop, the choral adjudicator, expressed particular pleasure at the consistently high standard of these large composite choirs and felt obliged to give superior certificates to George Jay, Shelbourne and Monterey Elementary Schools and certificates of excellence to Oaklands, Margaret Jenkins and lands, Margaret Jenkins and Doncaster Elementary Schools.

SUPERIOR RATINGS

To composite choirs from smaller schools he awarded one superior certificate to Tolmie Elementary and certificates of excellence to Glanford and Hampton Elementary, St. Michael's and St. Andrew's schools.

Fourteen Grade 4 classroom choirs sang in similar shifts in the morning and Tolmie and Doncaster Elementary received superior ratings. Oaklands received two certificates of excellence and Uplands, Northridge and Shelbourne elementary schools received one excellent certificate each.

Admitting he felt a little disappointed, mainly because of intonation problems, with the junior secondary small choirs, Mossop awarded only one certificate of excellence and that to Norfolk House School.

Happier with the three choirs in the junior secondary folk song class, he adjudged Oak Bay Junior Secondary, superior and St. Ann's Academy and Gordon Head Junior Secondary, excellent.

Only one competitor had entered the pop group newly instituted by the festival committee this year and Mossop judged this an excellent performance in a worthwhile, up-to-date class.

One or two innovations appeared in the choral classes this year. More than one group chose a popular song as one of their selections and though this is a good trend, care must be taken to choose only what is worth doing in that as in other music.

It was encouraging to discover several talented student pianists accompanying school choirs and to see two young teachers lead their choir on a musical instrument.

One young teacher doffed his coat and donned an accordion and another assumed a guitar for the second selection. Both choirs were so happy with this musical leadership that neither suffered the loss of a conductor.

Palace to Trailer For Snowdon

LONDON (AP) — Lord Snowdon has moved temporarily into a trailer parked in his backyard.

Princess Margaret's photographer husband decided on a few days of trailer life after being asked to judge a show of mobile homes. Court sources said he wanted to find out from experience what to look for.

He moved from his bedroom in Kensington Palace Thursday to a 12-foot four-berth tourer which sells for $864.

Snowdon told the palace staff he would cook some of his meals in the trailer. He gave no indication how ambitious his menus would be, or if he expects his wife to sample his cooking.

Music begins at eight at the John Stubbs gymnasium, continuing through until midnight.

The Purple Onion has decided to temporarily discontinue the practise of opening both nights each weekend.

Back to their old schedule management has booked the Lightning Express for another appearance tomorrow night only.

There are not many three-man groups in the city that can produce such a full sound as the Express.

Psychedelic and hard rock group, Moxie is holding a dance at the White Eagle Hall tonight starting at 8.

The hall is at 90 Dock Street, directly beside MacDonald Park in James Bay.

A complete light show presented by the Holy Ghost will be featured at the dance. Admission is $1.50 a head.

Jerry Bryant as accomplished musically as he is, seems unable to reach the patrons of AJ's.

Whether the club draws the wrong age group to really appreciate his music, or he performs music that is just too progressive for local audiences, remains to be seen in the coming weeks.

Jam Session For Pipers

The Bay Street Armory will ring with the wailing echoes of pibrochs and strathspeys Saturday evening.

Those aren't deadly new weapons undergoing secret testing for the army, they're traditional forms of bag-pipe music.

The Saturday event will occur when pipers from Tacoma and Seattle join with members of the Vancouver Island Pipers Club for the Highland version of a jam session.

Limited to individual performances, the program will run through the whole range of laments, marches, reels and jigs that characterize pipe music.

Scottish and Irish music enthusiasts are invited to attend. Admission for non-members of the club is 50 cents, and the affair is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. in the Canadian Scottish Sergeants' Mess in the armory at Bay Street and Douglas Street.

WORLD PUCK COVERAGE UNDER FIRE

OTTAWA (CP) — Steve Paproski (PC—Edmonton Centre) put this question in the Commons Wednesday to State Secretary Gerard Pelletier about CBC coverage of the recent world hockey championships in Stockholm:

"In view of the government's declared intention to avoid waste, can the minister report to the House the reason for sending 56 CBC employees to Sweden for three weeks when the television contract for the world hockey game had already been secured by CTV?"

The Speaker ruled the question should be placed on the order paper in written form for a later reply.

Protest Meeting Tonight Over Oil Damage to Boats

CHEMAINUS—A meeting will be held in Fuller's Lake Arena at 7:30 tonight to protest the lack of compensation for damage caused by oil pollution in the harbor.

Frank Thomas, president of the Chamber of Commerce, made the announcement at a dinner meeting Thursday night.

All boat owners are invited.

"There has been no compensation whatever for the mess that has been left in the harbor by the two pollution incidents," Thomas told a capacity crowd of about 80.

This week Captain Alex Jonassen of the Norwegian freighter Ariel, was fined $500 and Alfred Liebundgut of MV Ruby was fined $2,000 for polluting the Chemainus harbor with oil.

The Ariel accident occurred April 20 and the Ruby captain was fined in absentia for an incident Dec. 23, 1968.

"Anyone who owns a small pleasure craft or fishboat should get out to this meeting and let the government know our harbor is too small to afford to have it polluted and then nothing done to compensate anyone afterwards," Thomas said.

Islander Blames Pollution In Oyster Output Decline

Domestic and pulp mill pollution has cut Vancouver Island oyster production 50 per cent in the last 10 years, a member of the British Columbia Oyster Board said in Victoria Thursday.

Edward Timothy of Ladysmith, testifying before the House of Commons standing committee on fisheries and forestry, said pollution had caused a $5 million loss to oyster fishermen.

He placed most of the blame on domestic pollution. (See also Page 21.)

Timothy was called as a witness by Clive Planta, chairman of the oyster board, who earlier presented a memorandum on behalf of the board and the Oyster Growers' Association.

Both groups want to see control of leasing and renewal of leases taken out of the hands of the provincial department of lands forests and water resources and given to the federal department of fisheries.

Art Nordman, president of the oyster growers, said the oyster industry has suffered from pollution and import of Japanese oysters.

He said production, now down to $800,000 a year, should be up to $3 million, but added the peak year for the industry saw $1 million worth of oysters sold.

The main problems faced by fishermen are "lack of finance" and "lack of security of tenure."

Questioning by members of the committee revealed two-and-one-half tons of British Columbia oysters are shipped to Ontario every week, but are first sent to a cannery in San Francisco.

There is no canning operation in this province.

Maritime province oyster leases are now controlled by the department of fisheries.

Smith Blames His Choice Of Words

By ED GOULD

DUNCAN—The Cowichan Valley Regional Board chairman, Alex Smith, says recent newspaper reports that he favored muzzling the press were the result of his own "bad choice of words".

"With my experience on various boards of hospitals, library and schools, I have always been in favor of wide-open discussion," he said.

He was commenting on a recent Victoria Times editorial which lamented his establishing a committee to "screen news" and secret balloting on "controversial issues."

"My remarks were taken out of context," Smith said. "I am not a dictator and I did not defend my bad choice of words at the time because I did not want to be drawn into a public debate with a director of the regional board.

"No one wins in a newspaper hassle."

On the "screening" charge, Smith said his public relations committee will soon release a series of articles on the workings of the regional board for the information of the public.

"This is what I meant by screening the news," he said.

Reporters present at the news conference called by Smith were not satisfied that this was all that was meant by the remark.

One recalled that director John Cannon had taken particular exception to the remark by Smith that "certain directors are going out and talking on street corners about things that should not be discussed outside this chamber."

Smith replied only, "I am not now, nor have I ever been, in favor of muzzling the press or any member of the board."

'WITHIN RIGHTS'

The secret balloting, he said, was for the benefit of those persons who sometimes found it embarrassing to vote publicly on issues that might be for the good of the district they represent but not necessarily express their own personal views.

"I was within my rights as chairman to call for a secret ballot. They (the directors) could have overruled me but they did not."

In the instance referred to, directors favored membership in the Union of British B.C. Municipalities and after a protest by most of them about the secret ballot, a hand vote was taken with the same result.

Smith also announced he will receive a life memvership in the V.I. branch of the B.C. School Trustees' Association April 27 at a ceremony in Nanaimo.

He was on the Ladysmith school board for 12 years, two years as its chairman before his resignation in December, 1966.

Fiddlers' Contest Newest Feature At Logger Sports

They're going to have a tree-chopping, log-rolling, axe-throwing day May 19 at Sproat Lake Park near Port Alberni.

It's the annual Elks Loggers Sports day.

A new feature this year is an old-time fiddlers' contest, with cash prizes in all events.

The coveted Top Logger trophy will be awarded by Local 1-85 International Woodworkers' of America.

The huge Mars water bomber will be included in an aerial display by Forest Industries Flying Tankers Ltd.

Contestants can enter the events at the park with no admission or entry fee charged.

Russian Seaman Taken to Hospital

ALERT BAY (CP) —A Russian seaman suffering from acute appendicitis was transferred to the Canadian Coast Guard vessel Estevan early Thursday and taken to hospital here.

A Rescue Centre spokesman said in Vancouver that Nickoly Ivashenko, 30, was transferred from the Priamurye about 2 a.m. off the northwest tip of Vancouver Island near Cape Scott.

Mooring Fees Start in May At Ladysmith

LADYSMITH — All boats mooring at the Ladysmith boat basin after May 1 will be required to pay fees to be used to provide new facilities and more supervision, harbormaster Ray Bradford said today.

The berthing fee will be two cents per foot per day or portion thereof and 40 cents per foot per month for boats remaining for longer periods. No charge will be made for fishboats stopping to load or unload, he said.

Bradford, a retired RCMP officer, has just been appointed harbormaster by the department of transport. He will also serve as wharfinger. A native of Cutknife, Sask., he served with the RCMP for 25 years before retiring here in January.

Bradford said a small office will be built on the boat basin piere, lights will be replaced, electrical outlets installed on floats, waterlines repaired and a telephone installed to make the basin more attractive to tourists.

11 Lambs Killed By Roaming Dogs

DUNCAN—Eleven lambs were torn to death Thursday by marauding dogs that invaded the pasture of Walter Norie in unorganized territory about five miles south of here on the Trans-Canada Highway.

Loss is estimated at $400. One of the dogs was shot, the other escaped.

Norie said other animals injured in the attack also may die, among them a ram valued at $135. He said he will seek compensation through the provincial agriculture department.

"If people would only realize that dogs are dogs, regardless of breed, and they will kill when they run in packs," Norie said.

The dog shot was a small mongrel with a name tag but no licence. The other was described as an Alsatian-type with bushy tail.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, APRIL 25, 1969 —PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

A Victoria art collection half a lifetime in the making went under the auctioneer's hammer on Tuesday evening. Most of the artists represented are strangers to me, and may very well be unknown to you.

There are Shrapnells and Naysmiths, Gissings and Butlers, and many another whose name is rarely heard today.

But the 250 oils and water-colors fetched a whopping $30,000 from the crowd of dealers, collectors and other interested bidders who packed into Lunds' auctioneering rooms.

Had "The Mayor of Fort Street" been present at that auction, his pride in seeing a hunch vindicated would have been tinged with anguish. Nicholas Kocutyn loved every picture in his collection. It hurt him to let one go.

It was Nick Kocutyn's friends on Fort who gave him his honorary title. But he wasn't there to see the four little water colors he had acquired years earlier fetch a total of $1,000 as the auction neared its end.

Nick died on Jan. 9 in the deep of a bitter winter. His friends say the street isn't the same without him.

You may have looked in the windows of his Eagle Art Galleries at 1016 Fort, or gone in to inspect some of the paintings displayed there.

Eagle Art Galleries, closed and empty now, wasn't an impressively furnished place. The searcher after abstract art would come out disappointed.

The interest that ruled Nick Kocutyn's life was anchored in an earlier era—one that ended well before the Group of Seven made their break with the romantic tradition.

The pictures Nick displayed for sale (more than half hoping that they wouldn't be bought) were only a sampling of perhaps the finest private collection of early Canadian and American art in the West. To it from time to time he added an oil or a water-color of later vintage that pleased him.

The post-war years that brought many an old-Victoria estate under the auctioneer's hammer enriched his collection. A friend of mine persuaded Nick to sell him an Emily Carr still-life that emerged from one estate sale.

Nick Kocutyn was a young man when he acquired his first painting. Behind him was a prairie childhood. He came west to work as a logger in the British Columbia woods, and followed the logger's trade for many years.

Later, settled in Victoria with his wife and their daughter Shirley, Nicholas Kocutyn turned to oil-burner sales and servicing for a living. His collection continued to grow. About seven years back, he set out to realize a cherished dream by renting a Government Street store and turning it into an art gallery.

The tourists showed a lamentable lack of interest, however, and the local citizenry didn't purchase enough to make the venture a success.

Several years ago, Nick tried his luck again, with the gallery that closed when death claimed him.

Occasionally, when sales were poor, he would return to servicing burners. But his pictures were his abiding interest.

"I miss him terribly," says Max Luxemberg, proprietor of a men's wear store at 616 Fort. "Nick was one of my best friends. He loved those paintings, and I remember once when he had more than he could store, we put a lot of them in my basement here. When his wife died, he sold one of his finest pictures to pay for her funeral."

Not all of Nick Kocutyn's collection went to the auction. There's one picture that his daughter refuses to sell, even though hefty offers have been made for it. This painting, 'Hudson River Pool,' by T. Butler, is a fine example of early Americana. It was one of her father's favorites.

I expect the Mayor of Fort Street would have approved her decision.

Three Transplants at Jubilee Have Hearts Throbbing, Singing for Beautiful B.C.

By JOHN DRISCOLL

A trio of doctors from Etobicoke, a Toronto suburb, has fallen in love with British Columbia.

Not unusual, but the doctors, all single, are unique among thousands of transplanted easterners because of their ability to communicate their feelings for B.C. through music.

Coming to Victoria only a year ago as interns at Royal Jubilee Hospital, they are already performing their own rousing provincial anthem.

Dr. Terry Burrows, the songwriter and guitarist for the group, has written "B.C. Essay," a trilogy of folk songs in praise of the natural beauty of B.C.:

"The land of dogwood and crystal jade
"And all the wonders nature made
"The land where you can stay
"British Columbia."

The songs within the essay are entitled, "British Columbia," "British Columbia Sunrise" and "Gale Warning for the Georgia Strait."

Performing their trilogy recently before the Kiwanis Club of Victoria, the doctors demonstrated a professional quality in their music and style.

Doctors Bill Sara and Bruce Lowden explained that they began performing three years ago while medical students at the University of Toronto.

"We performed at parties and faculty shows but since coming to Victoria things have snowballed," said Sara.

They came in a package deal to Jubilee with the intent of continuing their musical careers while taking their internships.

At a party they were overheard by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black who was impressed by their trilogy. So impressed he asked them to perform at Premier W. A. C. Bennett's press dinner.

They will finish their internship at Jubilee in June but all three will stay in B.C., Burrows and Sara at Jubilee and Lowden at Comox base with the air force.

Burrows has written 50 to 60 songs and had four published, one of which became a hit song in Denmark.

"We've just recently moved into the folk vein," he said.

Attempting to explain why he writes about B.C., Burrows, who lived at Shawnigan Lake for five years, said "it's just that it is so beautiful and we like to sing about it."

The interns have no plans to devote their full time to music.

"As far as I'm concerned we'll always be doctors first but anything is possible," said Burrows.

"Singing for a living has a very magnetic appeal," said Sara. "But I don't think I'd ever chuck medicine completely."

Their repertoire includes rock and satirical songs, one dedicated to Bennett entitled "The King of B.C."

This summer the doctors who have not yet decided on a name for their group ("Everything we've come up with so far sounds idiotic," said Burrows) plan to tour the interior of B.C.

Then Burrows will probably write more songs about the wonders of their adopted province.

ROADBLOCKS TO LEAN ON DRINKERS, SPEEDERS

City police will hold their first roadblocks of the year tonight and will be keeping a special eye out for speeders and drinking drivers.

Two units will be set up and move around the city area throughout the evening. Radar will be used.

About a dozen auxiliary officers will lend a hand to an equal number of regular constables to operate the roadblocks.

Burns Unit Waits For New Hospital

By PETE LOUDON

Plans to build a modern treatment centre for burns at St. Joseph's have been shelved until a new hospital is constructed.

However, a temporary unit on a lesser scale is to be created, executive director E. G. Q. Van Tilburg announced Thursday.

He told the annual meeting of the hospital that it was unfortunate the required funds for the memorial to the late Victoria Mayor A. W. Toone had not yet been realized by a fund drive.

Funds which have been received — $16,822 — would be kept in trust, he added. No date for a new St. Joseph's has been set. The hospital hopes to renew itself on the present property, when the Greater Victoria and Gulf Islands Regional Hospital District has successfully passed a referendum for new acute care hospitals.

The burns unit, envisaged as the most up-to-date west of Toronto, was to cost $168,000 when it was first proposed in 1966.

POLITICS DEPLORED

Mention of the problems of the regional hospital district in allocating expansion funds among acute care hospitals and extended care hospitals, was made by Fred Norris, who retired as St. Joseph's board chairman last January.

He said a population explosion and a technological explosion has affected the hospital and "now I have a feeling we've run into a political explosion."

The regional district is attempting to meld seven municipalities and several districts to act as one.

"They've been rivals for years and years" he said and he thought it would be some time before the new board operated smoothly.

He was disappointed to hear that politics was entering into board matters. He hoped that St. Joseph's would not become parochial and that "everyone wouldn't be trying to grab for himself" when allocations are made.

SISTERS WITHDRAWING

"Next year I think we'll see these things all settled down."

Norris gave official notice of the withdrawal of the Sisters of St. Ann from hospital administration. He said the duty of raising hospital construction costs now has passed from volunteer organizations to municipal hands.

"This, coupled with B.C. Hospital Insurance Service active participation . . . indicated to the Sisters of St. Ann that their order was no longer fulfilling an urgent need in the community by continuing their sponsorship of an acute facility.

"The sisters, being dedicated to serving the community where the need is greatest, reluctantly made the decision to withdraw from active involvement with the hospital in order to concentrate on the many fields of need.

"At their request the board of management is forming a new society to acquire the assets and liabilities of the sisters and supply the management.

92 YEARS

"This will not mean a severance with the 92 years of heritage. The sisters will continue to be represented in the society and active within the hospital in the areas best in keeping with their qualifications."

Mr. Norris said agreement in principle with the sisters will provide sufficient land from St. Ann's Academy grounds to enable the hospital district to begin replacing the hospital complex.

The board is ready to confirm appointment of architects and proceed with long range and immediate development plans.

Cariboo Vote Guaranteed By Christmas

An election in Cariboo riding is guaranteed by Christmas Day.

Speaker William Murray today formally issued a warrant to Deputy Provincial Secretary L. J. Wallace setting the deadline on a vote to replace Robert Bonner.

The Speaker, returning to the capital from a trip to Prince Rupert, opened the former attorney-general's letter resigning his seat as of last Tuesday.

Under the regulations governing byelections, Wallace must issue a writ calling a vote within six months of today's warrant and that vote must be held within two months of the writ.

Those regulations set Dec. 25 as the theoretical deadline but the provincial cabinet can order a byelection anytime it wishes before the statutory deadlines are reached.

Premier Bennett also has an alternative — he can hold a general election between now and October, making a Cariboo byelection redundant.

NEW PRICE STARTS THURSDAY

$2.25 Haircuts Called 'Bargain'

Starting next Thursday most Victoria men and their sons will be shorn of an extra 25 cents when they get a haircut.

Members of the Barbers Union, Local 372, voted Thursday to increase men's haircuts to $2.25 and children's to $1.75, beginning next week.

One downtown non-union barber still thinks Victorinas will be getting "a bargain."

"North of Duncan and in Vancouver it costs $2.50. I've been charging $2.25 for the past year, $3 for a razor cut and $4 for styling," he said.

Union secretary Russ Foxcroft said it was impossible to hold the prices because of the cost of living increase.

"Actually, the price should have gone up last fall."

Foxcroft resigned as secretary Thursday in order to become secretary of the B.C. Barbers Association. He moves to Vancouver Monday.

He graduated from Uvic with a BSc degree in botany two years ago and has been a teaching assistant on the Berkeley campus.

The fellowship will be used to continue studies for a doctorate in forest pathology at Berkeley.

'Scapegoat' Role Sparks Protest By Putter Fleet

Hunt Called Off For Saanich Fishboat Owner

The search for a Saanich man whose boat was burned almost beyond recognition and beached near Port Renfrew Thursday has been called off.

No hope is being held out that the body of Frank Szegedi, 44, of 734 Cowper will be found. Sooke RCMP said from past experience "no one turns up in that water."

The body of Mrs. Szegedi, age 46, was recovered Thursday morning on the beach near a smashed dinghy belonging to the Szegedi's 34-foot fishing troller the Huloima.

The Saanich couple left Victoria early Tuesday on a commercial fishing trip. Smoke from their burning boat was spotted about 5:30 a.m. Thursday morning and an extensive search was under way most of the day by air and sea rescue officials, navy and coastguard ships and Sooke RCMP.

EXPLOSION

Only the diesel engine and parts of the ship's stern and bow remain. Cause of the fire is unknown and will probably remain a mystery police said. The couple had owned the boat for three years.

Police said because of the extensive burning it appeared an explosion may have taken place.

Mrs. Szegedi's body which wasn't burned was brought to Victoria by Sands Mortuary and an autopsy will be held today at St. Joseph's Hospital. Coroner Eugene Murphy of Sooke is expected to hold an inquiry into the deaths.

The Szegedis, Saanich residents for a number of years, left six children. The oldest, Charles, 23, is a commercial fisherman.

The others are John, 15, Sonja, 13, David, 10, all in school, and Julie, 6, and Helen, 5, in kindergarten. Relatives are looking after the children.

Lifeboatmen Rescue Mate

A four-man lifeboat crew battled 15-foot waves at Bamfield Thursday to rescue a man aboard a barge which broke its tow line.

Marvin Goldsmith had to jump from the barge into the sea so the lifeboat could pick him up.

Goldsmith, second mate on the tug Haida Brave, boarded the 380-foot barge when the steel towing cable broke shortly after midnight.

The barge washed up on a reef outside Bamfield harbor but was picked up later in the day and continued to California with its 7,500 tons of newsprint.

Netmen Big Threat MP Committee Told

By BOB MITCHELL

Small independent fishermen and trolling vessels have been made the "scapegoat" of the fishing industry, the House of Commons standing committee on fisheries and forestry was told here Thursday.

A brief presented to the committee by the Pacific Putter Fleet Association said net boats, not trollers, represent the greatest threat to conservation of salmon on the west coast.

The Putter Fleet is comprised of fishermen holding "B" licences (part-time fishermen), and the group's brief advocated:

- Softening of time and area restrictions on troll vessels;
- Re-opening of areas now closed or restricted to trollers;
- Phasing out of vessels owned or controlled by companies.

The brief was presented by association secretary D. F. Ward, who said the salmon fleet is so efficient that if net boats were allowed to fish seven days a week they could, in a short time, wipe out available salmon.

See Other Reports
Pages 13 and 20

In 1968 net vessels accounted for 78 per cent of the salmon catch. But troll vessels since 1951 have only averaged about 20 per cent of the catch and therefore have "never threatened conservation practice."

'Evading the True Problem'

The brief said the policy of restriction on trollers is "unrealistic and evades the true problem."

Phasing out of company-owned vessels was offered as the best means of conservation. The brief warned that two companies have stepped up efforts to buy up fishing vessels.

The Pacific Putters brief also contained recommendations on soil and forest conservation.

The 19-member committee heard seven briefs, written and verbal, from oyster producers, commercial and sport fishermen and a forest land consultant.

Proposed schemes for processing the B.C. dogfish for human consumption brought many questions from the MPs.

R. H. Payne, president of the Sidney local of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, said fishermen resent negotiations by Fisheries Minister Jack Davis with Japanese interests to have dogfish harvested and processed by Japanese fishermen.

He said the department should investigate the possibility of building a floating processing plant that could follow the fishboats netting dogfish.

The dogfish is now considered a menace to certain commercial species, especially the herring, but no commercial use has been found for it, except in sale of the liver.

Payne said canneries now require that dogfish sold to them be caught no more than 48 hours before. The ammonia content of the flesh causes rapid deterioration of the fish after that length of time.

The time limit restricts the movement of any fisherman who intends to sell dogfish livers to the cannery.

Willing to Catch Dogfish

The union president said fishermen, idle during the winter months, would be willing to catch dogfish if a means of processing them could be found.

The Commons committee said it will contact Armand St. Jean of Nanaimo who recently announced he had found a way to can dogfish for human consumption.

Payne said St. Jean has travelled to Ottawa to get support for his processing plant.

The committee will spend today and Saturday in Prince Rupert, then travel to Kamloops for its last hearing before returning to Ottawa.

In Vancouver Wednesday the B.C. Fisheries Association presented a brief calling on the federal government to formally extend its jurisdiction to waters over the continental shelf and slope.

The Victoria hearing turned into a shouting match at one point when a committee member, Ray Perrault (Lib.-Burnaby), challenged the authenticity of statements attributed to Fisheries Minister Davis by Elgin Neish, president of the Victoria local of the UFAWU.

Neish, quoting from the minister's Operation Highline speech delivered at Prince Rupert last fall, said the minister approved company monopolies in the fishing industry, and considered the small, independent fisherman "sand in the wheels of progress."

Perrault said he had a copy of the same speech with him and the minister had said just the opposite. Neish stuck to his guns and agreed to table his copy of the speech.

Figures contained in a brief from the Amalgamated Conservation Society, shocked and impressed the committee.

Howard English, representing the society, said some American tourists abuse their fishing privileges in B.C. waters. Some have been known to take fish they catch back to the U.S.A. to sell them.

He said fishing derbies for large prizes are not in the interest of recreation:

"They encourage people to do many things that are not very sporting."

Dr. H. A. W. Knight, land consultant, told the committee the federal government should play a larger role in land-water use.

A former researcher with the federal department of forestry, the B.C. Forest Service and private industry, he said management should stay in provincial hands, but Ottawa should take over the research end.

He said industry could also be encouraged to engage in land-water research "but they have to be persuaded there is a payoff.

"We have about 40 PhDs sitting over here at the Burnside forest laboratories, but not one of them contributes to the university."

He said a lot of "vacuum research" is being done by students, in the form of theses, but the material is never utilized, and sits on the shelves of university libraries.

'Coast Safari' Returns May 3

Local biologist Dave Hancock's wildlife film "Coast Safari" will return to the McPherson Playhouse May 3.

Thursday night's showing and two performances tonight of the two-hour color movie are sellouts.

Hancock narrates the record of coastal trips over the past four years taken by himself and his wife Lynn.

There will be two showings, at 6 p.m. and 8:30, on May 3.

Ask The Times

Q. Was there ever a fishing port on the west coast of Vancouver Island called Kildonan? Is it now abandoned? J.W.W.

A. Kildonan was established as a salmon cannery in 1903 and is still in existence. It is situated in Uchucklesit Harbor on the Alberni Canal and is 22 miles from Port Alberni.

Q. What do the three letters "I H S" which are on so many gravestones at Ross Bay Cemetery represent? D.M.

A. The letters are the first three of the Greek word for Jesus, being Iota, Eta and Sigma. The Greek E looks like an H in English.

How Niece Jane Became a Mouse

By PENNY SAVER

Jayne collects mice, or, to be more exact, her husband keeps giving her mice which she doesn't throw away. It seems that when Jayne was quite small she loved to scuttle behind couches or under tables, especially when company was expected. One day an elderly maiden aunt whom I have never met was sitting quietly on the couch when she heard Jayne scuffling behind. According to the tale, this dignified woman leapt up in horror, spilling her tea, and screaming out that she heard a mouse in the wall. Ever since that day Jayne has been "mouse" to her family. When her husband heard this tale he went right out and bought her one of the little wooden mice that were in vogue at the time. This was followed by a golden mouse, and a mink-covered mouse, several games using mice, including one with a magnetic mouse that can be guided by a magnet around an obstacle course including food and a handy boot to hide in, and pictures and pictures of mice.

The latest addition to her mousey multitude is a little grey mouse made of fur. There are two models of these mice, which along with a whole line of furry animals, are hand-made in West Germany. One style of mouse, costing 79 cents, is sitting up on his hind legs and clasping a real kernel of corn. For 89 cents there are mouse pins in either grey or white. These have the mice on all four invisible feet. Naturally both styles of mice have long tails.

With Mice Come Cats

Mice couldn't exist without cats, so there are furry cats as well for 98 cents each. But there is no set scale determining the size of these fur animals and the mice are just about as big as the cat.

There are dogs for 98 cents, some that are clearly Scots terriers, and bushy dogs with pointed noses that one salesgirl tentatively identified as a Spitz.

A white goat with black horns and a bell that rings is $1.55 and white woolly lambs are $1.39. Sturdy brown ponies are $1.29 each.

In the line of wild animals are the magnificent black walruses with their long white tusks. These are made of a coarser fur than the other animals and are quite glossy looking. Around three inches in length, they are $2.40 each.

Brown bears perhaps two inches tall, are $1.19. These brown bears stalk on all four feet but there are also white bears for the same price that sit up on their haunches circus-style.

Robin Hood fans will know all about Friar Tuck, the rollicking monk who was so handy with a quarter staff. Just the other day I found some Friar Tuck piggy banks for $1.39.

Made of pottery, these banks are about seven inches tall. A band of fur makes up the Friar's hair and on his brown robe is written "This is my bank. Thou shalt not steal." The slot for coins is behind his head and a large rubber stopper lets you retrieve them in time of need.

Reclaim Gardens

By PAULINE GRAVES

Yards and gardens have to be kept fresh and up-to-date, just as one cares for a house. Old plants and trees outlive their usefulness and their beauty, too. And concepts of how to use an outdoor area change, just as concepts of room functions change with the times. Years ago enjoyment of the outdoors was purely visual. Today, ideally, the outdoors is another room.

Shown here is a duplex, an older structure, remodelled by architects Kosowitz, Knox and Nair, AAI, in which the outdoor area was reclaimed for outdoor living. Because it was long and narrow, it was divided into two sections which created a sense of intimacy, yet it can function as one big space.

Architecture dominates the section close to the house, relating it to the house and providing a feeling of shelter. Pergolas, eight feet high, made of two-by-six beams and one-by-two cross beams, supported by two-by-four posts, give partial shade close to the house and mark the entrance to the second section of the yard. Wood covers the floor, and flowers and plants are in containers.

As contrast, the second, or back portion, emphasizes the rustic and garden feeling, with brick pavers set in sand, and flowers growing in the soil around the edges. However, a few potted shrubs soften the areas where an actual garden was not possible.

Safety Measures Needed

NEW YORK (AP) — The fear of crime in the streets, particularly in major cities in the United States, has prompted more and more women to refuse night shifts or overtime work during evening hours.

As a result companies are spending millions of dollars, in addition to higher night pay, on safety precautions to attract women to evening work.

A survey by The Associated Press found, for example:

- Illinois Bell Telephone Co. has a contract with a Chicago taxicab company to pay the fares of 500 operators.
- Eastern Airlines regional office in an Atlanta suburb installed closed-circuit television on its grounds and employs guards with two-way radios.
- The Republican inaugural committee spent five per cent of its total budget on cab fares for its female workers in Washington.

Gary R. Davie, a regional manager for American Girl Service, a nationwide agency furnishing temporary help, says its workers are turning down overtime, especially during winter when dark comes earlier.

The United California Bank said it had to abandon overtime shifts in most of its offices in Los Angeles because women refused to work at night.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I am 66 years old and could retire anytime, but I like to keep busy. I have one business which nets me about $50,000 a year, I own two homes, some good rental property, and a little real estate.

I lost my wife two years ago, I am all alone, and would like to get married again. My friends think I'm crazy—that I should "enjoy" life for a while. What's to enjoy all alone?

There are several women who are after me, but they are too young. I want a lady about 50 who wants to get married and stay married. I don't want a gold digger. I want to be a husband again. —Californian

DEAR CALIFORNIAN: There are probably more women in the state of California who are "about 50" and want to be wives again than anywhere else in the world. My advice to you is to keep your eyes open and your mouth closed. And quit talking about your assets or you'll start another "Gold Rush" in California that will make the original look like a Girl Scout picnic.

DEAR ABBY: When a kid goes wrong, what factor is more responsible? His heredity or his environment?—Needs to Know.

DEAR NEEDS: It's a toss-up. But one thing is certain. His parents will get blamed for both.

DEAR ABBY: Girls like to be alone sometime. I know I do. I lock myself in my bedroom and listen to the radio. Sometimes if I have a boyfriend and he's mad at me, or I think I've lost him, I cry.

But my mother won't leave me alone. I can't be in my room for more than five minutes until she will make me come out.

What am I supposed to do so she will leave me alone? I don't want to break up and cry in front of her.—Cry Baby

DEAR CRY BABY: Your signature told me more than your letter. Are you sure your mother makes you come out of your room if you're in there for more than "five minutes"? I doubt it. Perhaps she thinks you spend too much time brooding and feeling sorry for yourself—which is unhealthy and unproductive. Yes, girls need some "privacy"—but be honest. Haven't you been overdoing it?

DEAR ABBY: I used to encourage my teen-age children to read your column, but lately I've had to hide the paper. All you've been printing it seems are letters from unwed mothers, unfaithful husbands, and some crazy nut who likes to sleep in his wife's babydoll pyjamas. Are you picking more sensational letters just to make more lively reading, or is there more of this stuff going on now than before — Albany Mother

DEAR MOTHER: I doubt that there is more of this "stuff" going on than before, but one confession inspires another, and people are less inclined to be ashamed of their problems when they realize that someone else has the same problem.

NO-GIMMICK DIET

Diet Allows a Lot of Choice

By WINNIFRED C. JARDINE

Fifth in a Series

The "No-Gimmick" Diet makes a wide allowance for choosing, giving many alternatives from which the dieter can select.

Using the menu pattern given in yesterday's column, the following alternates can be used to suit the dieter's own particular likes and dislikes.

Alternates in Fats: 1 teaspoon butter may be replaced by:

1 teaspoon oil or cooking fat	¼ cup ice cream
1 teaspoon mayonnaise	1 tablespoon whipping cream
1 tablespoon sour cream
1 tablespoon table cream	1 slice crisp bacon

Alternates in Meat: Because meat, poultry and fish shrink during cooking, you will have to buy 4 ounces of meat or fish without bone in order to have 3 ounces cooked; you will need to buy 5¼ oz. meat or fish without bone to get a 4-oz. serving.

For meat with bone or fat, you will need to buy 5 or 6 ounces of raw meat to give you three ounces of lean cooked meat, or 7 or 8 ounces raw meat to give a 4-oz. serving cooked.

One-fourth cup cottage cheese or 1 egg or one 1-oz. slice Cheddar or Swiss cheese may replace 1 ounce meat.

Alternates in Bread: One slice bread may be replaced by:

½ cup cooked cereal	1 medium muffin
¾ cup prepared cereal	2 3-inch griddle cakes
2 2½-inch graham crackers	1½ cups popcorn
4 2-inch square saltines	1½ cups cooked macaroni
1 medium roll	1 1½-inch cube plain sponge or angel cake
1 medium biscuit
1 1½-inch cube cornbread

Alternates in Vegetables:

List 1: Use as much of these raw as desired. Limit a cooked serving to ½ cup. Include 1 deep green or yellow vegetable. Daily:

asparagus
green beans
broccoli
cabbage carrots

summer squash
tomatoes cauliflower celery cucumber

greens lettuce spinach
turnips

List 2: Limit these to 1 serving per day, about ½ cup:

rutabagas

List 3: When using these vegetables, eliminate 1 slice of bread. A serving is ½ cup.

Lima beans potatoes

dried beans
corn

parsnips
dried peas

Alternates in Fruits: (Fresh or unsweetened fruits are preferred. If sweetened canned fruit is used, do not eat syrup.)

Use as one serving any of the following:

½ cup applesauce
½ cup blackberries
½ cup blueberries
½ cup cherries
½ cup grapefruit juice apple, 1 small apricot, fresh, 2 medium apricot, dried, 4 halves banana, ½ medium cantaloupe, ½ medium grapefruit, ½ small honeydew melon, 2-inch wedge

½ cup grapes
½ cup orange juice
½ cup pineapple
½ cup pineapple juice
½ cup raspberries nectarine, 1 large orange, 1 small peach, 1 medium pear, 1 small plum, 1 medium strawberries, 1 cup tangerine, 1 medium watermelon, ½ slice

FIFTH DAY'S MENU (1,200 calories)

Breakfast: Grapefruit juice, ½ cup; scrambled egg, 1; toast, 1 slice; butter, 1 teaspoon.

Lunch: Meat loaf, one 2-oz. slice; salad—1 medium tomato, ¼ cup cottage cheese, lettuce; tangerine, 1 medium.

Dinner: Roast beef, 1 slice (4 oz.); baked sweet potato, 1 medium; butter, ½ teaspoon; head lettuce salad, low-calorie dressing; broiled grapefruit; butter, ½ teaspoon; brown sugar, ½ teaspoon.

SEW SIMPLE

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I have a bad habit of saving clothes from one year to another always hoping that if I keep them long enough, they will come back in style (somehow they never seem to quite make it)! I have just resurrected a shirtwaist dress that I made about 10 years ago and although the bodice looks great, the skirt is so long and narrow that I am wondering if I can do anything with it.

Mrs. C. J.

Dear Mrs. C. J.:

Unfortuantely, you are right, we can seldom wear something that was in style many years ago because part of the garment will look new, the rest of it will not. In your case, the skirt is definitely out of style. Perhaps, if the bodice is still in good condition, you can remove the skirt and add a new one.

You could pick up a contrasting color for the skirt, choose a plaid, or whatever will look best and remake the skirt into one with soft pleats, ease, or an A-line. Then to complete your garment for a truly new look, add a belt in one of the marvelous stripped grosgrain ribbons or heavy jacquard cotton ribbons.

Senior Geisha Looks At Export Possibilities

By SELIG S. HARRISON

TOKYO—With Geisha girls losing out increasingly in Japan to the "hostesses" staffing Western-style cabarets and bars, Miss Kikuya, a leader of Tokyo's Akasaka Geisha Association, is looking into export possibilities.

Since Japanese like to copy what is popular abroad, she told a rapt dinner audience at the foreign correspondents club of Japan, the way to make Geishas fashionable in Japan again is to make them "foreign" by starting a Geisha vogue in western countries.

She would like to open up "branches" in Europe and the Unites States, she said, if she is able to find a sponsor or two.

Miss Kikuya is a trim, fortyish "senior Geisha" currently promoting an autobiographical book deciated to proving that Geisha is "a purely professional Japanese lady who is advancing and maintaining Japanese tradition, manners and customs" through her mastery of ancient dance and music forms.

"It would prove a rather scanty understanding of Japan," she said in the foreword to her book, "I, a Geisha," "If you should mistake a Geisha for a fallen woman." But answering questions Tuesday night before a mixed audience of newsmen and their wives, Miss Kikuya, clad in a black and gold kimono dotted with plum blossoms, added that this did not apply to "low class geishas who are not really geishas."

In addition to their income from nightly work as entertainers in Geisha restaurants, she explained, Geishas often establish a liaison with a wealthy patron while still in their teens in exchange for apartments and dowries totalling at least two million yen ($6,000 dollars). "It is not a shame for us to become a second or third wife in our society, or for a man to have a second or third wife."

For the western wives present, Miss Kikuya offered the advice that "if you want to have healthy husbands, you should expect men to play. After all, women can restrain their desires, but men cannot."

A genuinely successful wife, she observed, "may become a Geisha to her husband and should play many roles. At times, she must be like a rose to him. At some times, like an elderly sister, and at others, like a younger sister. At some times she must be like a mother to him, and quite often, like a prostitute."

SOAPFLAKES UNDER SCRUTINY

Taking part in a Canada-wide study of detergent prices are Mrs. J. A. Mace, left, and Mrs. Helen Forrest, of the Victoria Branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada. The association will report on its findings in the fall. As well as determining whether price structures are fair, CAC is worried about the effects of detergents on pollution. Since 1966 Canadian law has required formulas which are 90 per cent dissipated by secondary sewage treatment facilities and 30 to 50 per cent decomposed by primary treatment, thus reducing chances of lakes and streams becoming white with foam. Phosphates in detergents remain a problem as they promote growth of algae in lakes and can only be removed by tertiary sewage treament plants. So far there are no plants of this sort here.

SEAM to Fight NOW For Male Emancipation

By MARYLIN BENDER

NEW YORK—The neo-feminist movement, which has more trouble fighting apathy than anything else, has just been honored by an avowed foe.

The Society for the Emancipation of the American Male (SEAM) has been organized in Ann Arbor, Mich., by an unemployed foundation executive and an insurance agent (both male) and the housewives to whom they are married. It hopes "to restore the American male to his rightful place at the head of the family."

According to Kahlil Samra, its 38-year-old president, SEAM was established in response to militant feminist groups such as NOW (National Organization for Women) and the Women's Liberation Movement.

Samra, who is using the pseudonym Carlton M. Brown (an anglicization of his Lebanese name) to write a book titled "The Decline of the American Male," was, until recently, president of the American Schizophrenia Foundation, an organization seeking evidence that mental disease is a metabolic disorder.

Robert Beauchamp, an insurance agent of Saline, Mich., is executive vice-president of SEAM. His wife, Diane, is treasurer. Samra's wife, Kathleen, is secretary.

"My wife was very impressed with Betty Friedan (organizer of NOW and author of the feminist manifesto, "The Feminine Mystique") at one point, but I made sure before I married her that I had brainwashed her," Samra said.

BELONGS AT HOME

The Samras have a 10-month-old son. "I wouldn't let my wife out to work unless there was some kind of emergency," he said. "Basically, the woman belongs at home with the kids."

"I think the father belongs at home more than he is," he went on. "In our materialistic society, the male is absent when he is there. He's either working 16 hours a day or watching TV."

Samra believes that the whole range of psychiatric problems from alcoholism to juvenile delinquency is less prevalent in patriarchies "such as Italy, Greece, Japan and India, where men still rule their homes."

One of SEAM's goals is to free the American male from "discriminatory divorce, alimony and custody laws," an objective with which the feminists concur.

"I think there would be areas of possible agreement with us," Samra said. "We're not militantly anti-feminist. We think there is sanctity to the female role and that it should be treated with a certain amount of respect and gentleness."

SEAM plans to publish a quarterly newsletter, "The American Patriarch." Yearly dues are $5 for members of either sex.

Army of Inspectors Checks Summer Camps

By SUSAN RILEY

It may be with guilty joy and thoughts of peace-at-last that you pack your child off to camp this summer.

Nevertheless you will want him to return in one piece.

(Won't you?)

Camp personnel are substitute parents and you will want to be sure they don't let your child tumble into a lake, be beaten up by boisterous cabinmates or get impetago.

In short, you'll want his introduction to the wilds to be as safe and convivial as possible.

The first thing to check about a camp is whether or not it is licensed. There are 130 such camps in British Columbia. Although it is illegal, there are some unlicensed camps.

(Health department officials assure us they don't know of any in the Victoria area. They suggest phoning C. W. Corby, of Community Care Facilities at the buildings to check whether or not a camp has a licence.)

RIGOROUS CHECK

A licensed camp has gone through a rigorous, triple-inspection process.

First the senior medical health officer for an area inspects the site, sewage facilities, water supply, kitchens, garbage disposal and health room facilities.

Then, in come the firemen. The fire marshal inspections branch makes sure the camp isn't about to ignite like dried paper halfway through the summer.

No sooner have they backed up their trucks than the electrical inspectors arrive from yet another government department to check electrical wiring and outlets.

Add to this a roving band of 60 health inspectors who delight in dropping into a camp mid-season to see how things are going— and you have an idea of the scrutiny to which a camp is subjected.

Camp directors, as well as buildings, must be solid and non-volatile. In the words of health department director of epidemiology Dr. A. A. Larsen, camp owners must be "of sound moral character, healthy and over 21."

A candidate wishing to run a summer camp is interviewed by an inter-departmental provincial board and anything in his background or bearing which suggests he might be a Fagan or sex deviate automatically eliminates him.

Such cases do happen conceded Dr. Larsen—a camp director in Vancouver has been recently charged with molesting campers—but they are rare.

Still, he added, more stringent regulations covering ownership are to be introduced into a new section of the health act being written now.

Fine, we have a clean, well-run camp with sterile if not opulent facilities — what if your child is cavalierly bitten by a snake, a rodent, or even another camper?

Every summer camp in B.C. must have a nurse or fully-trained St. John Ambulance-approved first aid expert on the site. The service of a doctor on call in a nearby town must also be arranged.

And although not all camps insist on a doctor's examination before a child even gets on the bus, health officials favor this practice.

Dr. Larsen pointed out that doctors' examinations are too costly to be made mandatory so a signed note from parents stating their child hasn't had a communicable disease recently must suffice.

CLOSE CAMP

He recalled an incident some years ago when a number of campers were stuck with a minor digestive ailment. With half the campers flat on their backs and the other half slightly nauseated, health inspectors decided to close the camp for the rest of the term, and send everyone home.

"You can't conduct programs or sports if half the campers are sick," he pointed out.

The signed note, while not infallible, is to guard against contingencies like this, he noted.

Hopefully then, your child will not fall ill; but will he fall into the lake?

The health act regulations governing summer camps stipulate that every child be under "continuous care" of a resident, competent adult and have "adequate supervision" at all times. This means one supervisor to every eight campers.

Children under 15 may not swim alone. They must be supervised at all times by a competent lifeguard.

When this law is flouted the most severe penalty by law is imposed — immediate closing.

"In a camp up north some years ago I remember we found a whole group of campers left alone in an extremely dry forest in the middle of the forest fire season. We closed the camp that afternoon."

This practice is rare though, he said, and hasn't happened many times in the last 15 years.

There are no laws governing age of counsellors or campers but this is about the only aspect which has been ignored. As for insurance policies for children this usually is the domain of camp owners.

Are the laws they have enforced?

Dr. Larsen said they are "with reason."

If for example, a camp kitchen is found to have flies in it the health inspector will suggest that it might be nice if they got the flies out of the kitchen—soon. If the camp owner ignores the friendly advice his licence may not be renewed at the end of the year. (Camps must be relicensed and re-inspected once a year.)

If he chooses then to operate without a licence he is subject to summary conviction, a $100 fine and $10 a day until the situation is corrected.

As Bob Scott, consultant sanitary engineer, pointed out, most camp owners are not about to lose that sort of money over an offence which can be easily corrected.

In almost all cases flies would be banished.

What if one camp needs a large improvement—a new sewage system, or expensive additions to a kitchen? Owners are given time to install it.

"Particularly with non-profit, church-run camps we don't want to hit them with something they can't afford," said Mr. Scott.

They are usually warned that next year they must begin installing the device but aren't closed immediately.

As for privately owned camps: "Their fees are usually so high they can afford some pretty snappy camps," said Dr. Larsen.

Both Mr. Scott and Dr. Larsen agree that camps being run in B.C. are run conscientiously. They say they hear few complaints. They attribute this happy condition to the co-operative attitude of the B.C. Campers' Association and to camp owners.

They also point out that B.C. is ahead of other provinces, some of which have no regulations at all.

In the United States a 1964 report showed that 19 states have no regulations covering camps at all. Others vary in content and enforcement.

"B.C. regulations are actually minimal," said Mr. Scott.

"What is really important is the human element. We think if competent, responsible people are running these camps other regulations are easily enforced."

Government Sets Standards

If your child is attending a summer camp run by church group, service club, or private citizen there are certain regulations designed to protect him.

If the camp is licensed by the British Columbia government and is following health act regulations you can be assured that:

- He is not drinking milk from a neighboring farmer's cow. It must be canned or pasturized.
- He is not swimming in the same water with dogs, horses or livestock. Animals are not allowed in the swimming area.
- If there are 25 to 49 campers with him he has a choice of at least three washrooms.
- He will not have to walk more than 200 feet from his cabin to use these facilities.
- No once-a-week popping into the lake with a cake of soap. If he's going to be at camp longer than a week he must have a shower or hot bath at his disposal.
- He will live in rat-proof cabins.
- His nearest bunk mate must be at least two feet away from his bunk.

Think Bank To Store World Ideas

A University of Victoria geographer has taken the first step toward setting up the largest computer bank of ideas in the world.

Dr. Harold Foster, originator of the "World Think-In," recently mailed out 25,000 copies of a questionnaire to people around the world, including such world leaders as Mao Tse-tung, Queen Elizabeth and Prime Minister Trudeau.

His method is simple: first you invite the entire world to submit ideas on any question of concern to human beings, and store the results in a computer bank.

"We'll be able to ask the computer to give us the best 1,000 ideas on say sugar cane growing, or landslides or ghetto problems."

The cost of setting up the bank is so great it would have to be undertaken by a large foundation. But the idea has some mind-boggling possibilities.

Dr. Foster said the results of the questionnaire could be to the social sciences what splitting the atom was to the physical sciences.

For example, the computer bank could be tied into world-wide telephone systems to enable people in foreign countries to dial a code, and receive a computer print-out of the best ideas on any particular question.

Universtiy officials were so impressed with the idea they offered to pay the cost of mailing the first 25,000 questionnaires, which amounted to about $2,500.

Dr. Foster said the project is aimed at literally everyone — "intelligent but frustrated people" — whose ideas might otherwise never come to the surface.

The first mailing, which included the world's English-language press, national leaders and notable entertainers, will be followed with mailings to foreign countries, once the questionnaire has been translated into other languages.

A micro-wave company has agreed to ask its clients to beam the questions around the world.

Dr. Foster expects the first answers to the questionnaire to start coming back within a week or 10 days. Meanwhile he is keeping a list of everyone who receives a copy in order to plot the idea's movement around the globe.

Victorians, of course, are invited to join in. Here is the list of questions:

- What do you think government should do to improve the world around you?
- What improvements would you like to see made to any institution or organization?
- What do you like and/or dislike about cities?
- Do you know of any educational business, industrial or agricultural process which has been applied successfully in your area? If so, what is it and where else could it be used?
- Have you any suggestions to make peoples' spare time more interesting or rewarding?
- Have you any suggestions which might imporve the use of the world's resources
- Have you a good idea on any topic to give to the world?
- Have you an amusing story or quotation to share?

NEW YORK (Reuters) — The Mexican newspaper El Norte Wednesday received the American Newspaper Publishers' Association 1969 achievement award for its "brave and sometimes lonely battle on behalf of the rights of poor Mexicans." Film Series To Wrap Up Films on Hawaii and Mexico will be shown May 9 and 10 respectively at the Oak Bay junior secondary school auditorium to conclude this season's World Around Us series.

Photographer and narrator is Edward Brigham Jr., director of the Kingman Museum at Battle Creek, Mich., and known coast to coast through his personal appearances and museum expeditions.

The Friday film, Hawaii, includes shots of lava fountains from errupting Halemaumau spewing to heights of 800 feet and also visits the "neighbor isles."

Down Mexico Way takes the viewer through that country's northern deserts and rich farming country to Indian villages, Mexico City and Acapulco.

Both programs begin at 8 p.m.

Lead Poison In Trail To Be Probed

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark announced Thursday a special warrant of $8,000 was approved by cabinet to finance a research program to trace the origin of lead poisoning detected in the smelter town of Trail.

He said the money would be used by medical health officer Dr. Nicholas Schmitt to provide supplies and travel expenses.

Dr. Schmitt last fall told the government there were a number of suspected lead poisoning cases among the population and asked for funds to conduct a sampling and analyzing program to determine the problem's scope and cause.

Loffmark said a team of experts drawn from several provincial and federal departments will be assembled by Dr. Schmitt as a study task-force.

Consultants to Study Complaints

VANCOUVER (CP) — Consumer consultants will be on the job in 27 Canadian cities by mid-year to assist consumers in resolving complaints, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford has announced.

He told the recent meeting of the British Columbia Division of the Consumers' Association of Canada that within a year he hopes to have such consultants "in every province of Canada."

"They will develop a knowledge of regional needs in the consumer field and, using that knowledge, they will develop regional information program."

In addition to the consultants, his department would place a liaison officer in every provincial capital "who can provide a focal point for federal-provincial co-ordination on day-to-day matters."

Some 600 employees would work in the 27 federal consumer bureau offices.

The minister noted that British Columbia has sent his department the second largest number of consumer complaints of any province. Ontario led. This showed a "high level of consumer discernment and awareness."

Of the 552 complaints from B.C. last year, 143 concerned food, which was the most popular subject in all provinces. Automobiles and accessories, drugs, clothing, housing and textiles were next in that order among B.C. complaints.

Ten delegates attended from Victoria.

Adulation Breeding Cult As Bonaparte Legend Grows

By CY FOX

PARIS (CP) — In an age when their politics once more have been dominated by a single personality, Frenchmen are paying renewed homage to a legendary figure considered by many of them to be the most important in their country's history — Napoleon Bonaparte.

This year brings the 200th anniversary of Napoleon's birth. On April 28, with the arrival of a big liner at his native city of Ajaccio in Corsica, a vast array of celebrations will formally get under way.

They will be climaxed Aug. 15, Napoleon's birthday, by a military parade in Ajaccio at which the man currently dominant in France, President de Gaulle, plans to take the salute.

The publicly owned French television system, alleged by anti-Gaullists to be a prime dispenser of officially approved attitudes, already has begun a series of programs dealing with Napoleon and his 15 years of pre-eminence.

Died in Exile

The arrival at Ajaccio of the crowded liner France will follow a marine pilgrimage reaching as far away as St. Helena, the South Atlantic island where Napoleon spent his last exile and died in 1820.

Once the France reaches Corsica, the French island department in the Mediterranean and main centre of the bicentennial celebrations, authorities will begin their sponsorship of memorial events ranging from parades and festivals to public readings from Napoleon's letters and discussions of his historical significance.

There will be celebrations too in Paris—evenings of homage at the theatrically famous Comedie Francaise, special music at Notre Dame Cathedral and ceremonies at the emperor's tomb, the imposing Invalides.

De Gaulle himself is portrayed as mindful of Napoleon's achievements but at the same time detached in his appraisal of them.

The late Alexander Werth, in a biography of the general, referred to the Gaullist concept of a continental Europe united in purpose from the Urals to the Atlantic.

Napoleonic Tradition

This "is in a respectable French, partly Napoleonic, tradition," wrote Werth.

"But he (de Gaulle) realizes fully that the France of today cannot be the same as the France of Louis XIV or of Napoleon and that she must constantly adapt herself to new conditions."

The bicentennial year has brought a flood of books and articles about Napoleon. They show that arguments continue about his monumental merits and shortcomings alike.

The verdicts of succeeding generations of Frenchmen about him have tended to reflect contemporary political conditions.

Writers in the reign of his nephew, Emperor Napoleon III, paid much officially inspired homage.

But growing hostility towards this self-groomed monarch in the 1860s was accompanied by sharp criticism of the first Napoleon.

At various times under the Third Republic, between 1871 and 1940, nostalgia for authoritarian stability as opposed to incessant cabinet crises in a parliamentary democracy inspired new devotion to Napoleon among some historians.

Cultish Intensity

Today admiration for the emperor occasionally takes on the intensity of a cult.

One reporter heading for St. Helena aboard the France told of receiving more than a dozen letters from readers asking that he bring them back plants or pebbles from the island.

Especially among the Corsicans, songs and stories about the conqueror of Europe, who almost overcame Russia and was crushed only by a potent international coalition at Waterloo, are proving more popular than ever.

But the adulation is by no means unanimous. Writer Pierre Gaxotte of the elite Academie Francaise echoes a seemingly substantial bloc of opinion in maintaining that Napoleon was a man whose risk-taking compulsions and territorial ambitions were disastrously wild.

"However, it is this excessive, catastrophic quality which has magnified his grip on imaginations," Gaxotte added.

"The thing that ruined him has made him a legend."

NORTH VIET COMMANDOS BLAST CAMP

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese commandos moving behind a rolling mortar barrage battered their way into a combined forces camp near the Laotian border today, with dynamite bombs and hand grenades.

First reports said three American soldiers and four South Vietnamese troops were killed, 12 Americans and 43 South Vietnamese were wounded and at least three armored personnel carriers were destroyed.

The United States command said 30 North Vietnamese soldiers also were killed.

Joey Lashes 'Fake' Liberals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Said Premier Joseph Smallwood:

"I would not lead a government that would knife the 55,000 mothers of Newfoundland in the back."

Replied rebel Liberal John C. Crosbie, who wants the premier's job: "That's utter stupidity."

The exchange set the tone Thursday as the two clashed for the second consecutive day on the floor of the Newfoundland house.

Mr. Crosbie is a declared candidate for the Liberal leadership held by the premier for 20 years. A leadership convention will be held late this year.

The premier lashed out against "pseudo-Liberals, fake Liberals" who would vote against a mothers' allowance of $1.50 monthly paid by the government for each child in school.

At issue was Mr. Crosbie's suggestion during debate on education department estimates that the $2,286,700 cost of the allowances could be spent better elsewhere.

All "true Liberals" would vote for the allowances said the premier, calling for a standing vote.

Mr. Crosbie, a former cabinet minister, then voted with another Liberal and an independent and the four-man Conservative Opposition.

DOG WORTH $80,457 ORDERS GIANT BONE

NESTON, England (AP) — Workmen Thursday installed wall-to-wall carpeting in the kennel of a black Cairn terrier which inherited $80,457 from its owner, Vera Rae.

Mrs. Rae died last December, two days after putting the eight-year-old dog, Sherry, in the care of Mapleoak Kennels. Her will was published Wednesday.

The kennel operators said the dog's boarding bill was about $7.20 a week but Sherry now will start getting de luxe treatment, starting with a giant bone.

The will said that money left when the dog dies will go to six animal charities.

Permadeck, the NHA approved sundeck coating, works just like it sounds. It seals out all weathering. So your deck lasts. Almost forever. It doesn't peel, blister or crack and it doesn't wear unevenly in traffic areas. The waterproofed surface never leaks or stains or warps. It is impervious to heavy outdoor furniture or spike heels. BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The discard of a high card to show strength or a low card to show weakness is as old as the game of bridge. In fact it's a lot older, because whist players used that same signal.

A far more modern variation is the suit-preference signal in which a high card calls for a high-ranking suit and a low card for a low-ranking suit. The expert needs to use both but must temper them with common sense. Nothing can be more disastrous than the play of a high diamond to ask your partner to lead a diamond, only to find that he assumes you were calling for a spade.

Therefore the first principle of discarding is common sense and the best players employ that commodity at all times.

Opening lead—♠K

South won the spade opening, entered dummy with the king of diamonds, led the queen of hearts and let it ride. West took his king and cashed the queen of spades. East wanted his partner to shift to a club. How could he tell him to do so? He couldn't afford to chuck a club but he finally found a way to ask for a club play. He discarded his queen of diamonds.

West looked at that queen of diamonds in utter fascination. What could East be doing? Obviously he didn't want a diamond led to him. He didn't need to ask for a spade continuation. West almost had a third spade on the table as it was. Then what could that astonishing play mean?

Finally West figured it out and led his 10 of clubs. South had to give East two club tricks and was down one.

If West had led a third spade South would have made the hand by ruffing in dummy, drawing trump, stripping the hand, leading a club and end-playing East.

Crown Gets Flowers; Charges Dismissed

Flowers were presented to prosecutor Peter Birkett and Cpl. Ken Hatherly of Esquimalt Police after charges of obstruction against three youths were dismissed Thursday in central court.

The defendants had taken part in a sit-in at HMC Dockyard March 9.

Nine others who pleaded guilty were each fined $50 or 14 days and given two weeks to pay.

Four juveniles were fined $15 in family court earlier this month.

Magistrate William Ostler dismissed the charge against Robert Byrd, 22, of 1727 Bank, Danny Gass, 19, and Frank Cox, 21, both of 1615 Burton because, he said, the Crown failed to prove the purpose of the obstruction.

Esquimalt police laid the charges after a number of persons sat across the entrance at the Dockyard gate and refused to move. Several vehicles were unable to enter when the demonstrators locked arms, witnesses testified.

ALL WORE A FLOWER

The 16 were originally charged with committing mischief, a more serious offence carrying a maximum penalty upon conviction of 14 years.

The 12 accused sat quietly in the front row of the courtroom waiting for their trial. Each wore a flower and one carried a bouquet which had been delivered for her to the station earlier in the morning.

Fined $50 were: Muriel Azmier, no age or address available; Glen McTaggart, 19, and Sandra McTaggart, 19, both of 76 Moss; Betty Andrew, 20, of 1282 Pembroke; Robert Monro, 30, and Marie Monro, 29, both of 1716 Newton; Colin Constant, 21, of 1615 Burton; Stewart Wozny, 18, of 1429 Vining, and Kirsten Pettit, 25, of 308 Oswego.

The demonstration took place to protest the presence of a visiting American submarine. It lasted several hours.

All the accused were represented by Cecil Branson.

Woman Wins Four Trophies

A total of 70 points was scored by Mrs. R. J. McRae with her exhibits at the Sidney and North Saanich Garden spring show.

Mrs. McRae, 9205 Juva, won the grand aggregate prize—the Michell and Anderson trophy; the Daisy D. Swayne trophy in miscellaneous classes; the Beaumaris trophy in miniature collection class, and the Sidney and North Saanich Club cup for a display of tulips.

A special trophy was presented to Mrs. C. H. Orme who won the grand aggregate three years in succession, 1965-66-67.

Other winners: Mrs. M. L. Jeffrey, C. Estelle White trophy, decorative open; Mrs. S. Knowles, Margaret Watts trophy, novis; Mrs. E. Rennie, J. A. Nunn trophy, polyanthus; A. L. Cressi, Sidney and North Saanich Garden Club cup, best bloom of the show.

Bobby Michelson won the club's trophy for children under seven, and Susan Flint, the Cyrus Peck trophy in the children's section, 8 to 12 years.

In the junior section, 13 to 18 years, Deana Burley won the club trophy.

Indians Lose Bid to Halt 'Defamation'

WINNIPEG (CP) — A motion to prohibit the CBC from further showing of certain segments of a television documentary dealing with Indians living in Winnipeg was dismissed today in Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench.

The Manitoba Indian Brotherhood motion, sought under the Defamation Act, was dismissed on procedural grounds by Mr. Justice R. J. Matas who awarded $50 court costs to the CBC.

The brotherhood's objections primarily concerned remarks by Winnipeg magistrate Isaac Rice when he was interviewed by the CBC's Larry Zolf on the public affairs program Public Eye earlier this year.

The notice of motion said that the show "exposed the people of the Indian race to hatred, contempt and ridicule and has resulted in considerable unrest and disorder among the Indian people."

Many Varieties of Tulips

By HILDA BEASTALL

From late February until the first days of June we may have tulips blooming in coastal gardens. Habits and growing needs as well as conditions required in their dormant periods, are as varied as the weather during those months of the first half of the year.

Hilda

Through the years we are likely to add tuplip bulbs to our collection and then forget to which group they belong. Later, when we see tulips blooming in gardens we wonder why our own are not doing the same.

The earliest to bloom are what are called species tulips, though some late May kinds fall into the same group too. Mostly these are short stemmed, small flowered, and quite often fragrant. They come to us mainly from the shores of the Mediterranean where they bake on the bare hills during summer.

Single and double hybrids are now in flower on fairly short, sturdy stems to withstand wind; they'll be followed by tall Mendels, Triumphs and Darwins, then on to heavy-headed Parrots and dainty lily-flowered hybrids to finish the season in early June.

Tulips can be of gorgeous coloring or they may be like dainty jewels. Stems may be 40 inches tall or blossoms may open just at soil level.

Even the number of flowers on each stem varies from one to as many as nine.

Every spring we have excited calls from gardeners who suddenly find more than one blossom on a tulip stem.

At least eight species have this habit, and they have been known and grown for more years than I can think of.

When bags or boxes of mixed tulip bulbs are bought in fall, often one or two of these multi-stemmed kinds are included. Since no names are listed on the package, it is sometimes difficult to decide exactly which it is. This does not happen when buying named bulbs.

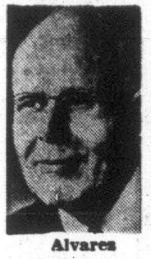
Dandruff Remains Without Cure

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

I can remember when I was about 20 and began to have dandruff just like my father's. By 30 I was losing hair on the top of my head—just as my father had done. Then my father, who was an able physician, gave me the ointment that long ago was popularized all over the world by the great Frenchman, Sabaraud. It consisted of 10 per cent sulfur and 1 per cent salicylic acid.



Alvarez

I was not enthusiastic about using it because I saw that my father still had his dandruff, but for a few years I rubbed it on. I doubt if it did much good because I still have some so-called seborrhea on my forehead. The word seborrhea comes from two ancient Greek words—sebum, which is the normal fat in the skin, and rhea, which refers to flowing—hence seborrhea means that there is too much grease in the skin. My impression is that this is a lifetime peculiarity.

This peculiarity is common—so common that I read that Americans spend each year some $67,000,000 for anti-dandruff medicines and shampoos.

So far, in scientific journals, I have not read of a cure, only remedies that lessen the flaking and perhaps itching. Only the persons with a severe form of the disease have a lot of flakes on their coat collar. Many unhappy people get the idea that dandruff will make them social outcasts and unsuccessful businessmen, but I cannot believe that. I am sure that my father and I never were handicapped in the least by our dandruff.

Everyone should have some flaking off of his or her skin, because there is an outer layer of our skin that dies, and this has to flake off. It takes about a month for the dead cells to move out until they can drop off. Similarly, some of our hairs are constantly being pushed out of the little follicles, or tiny tubes in which they grow; also our finger nails keep constantly growing outward. The difficulty with dandruff is that the normal peeling away is exaggerated.

So far as I can learn, no one yet knows what the cause of dandruff is. It cannot very well be any form of ill health, because I got mine when in college and later when I was an athlete on the track and in the gymnasium, and climbing up the highest mountain peaks in California. I still have some dandruff, in spite of having been very healthy throughout my long life. My hunch is that I was born to have a skin with a bit too much oil, just as a rare person is born to have no oil in his skin.

Today, anyone can go into a drugstore and find many lotions and shampoos designed to cure dandruff. As E. J. Helton said recently in Today's Health, that excellent magazine put out by the American Medical Association, AMA, any good shampoo must for a while get rid of some of the flaking-off of the skin. If the dandruff comes back, one can always consult a skin specialist. But I hear that he is likely to prescribe the ancient drugs, sulphur, salicylic acid and tar, plus perhaps the newer resorcinol, selenium sulphide, and cadmium sulphide.

In Helton's article there is a list of some 19 available shampoos and other treatments. As he says, what is unfortunate is that, so far as he knows, no one has yet compared the results of prolonged reatment of hundreds of people with the several drugs used.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Governor Pelted With Rotten Eggs

By BOB BOWMAN

Montreal might be the capital of Canada today if rioters had not burned down the parliament building there in 1849. The first capital after the Act of Union was at Kingston but was moved to Montreal later.

Bowman

The cause of the riot was the signing of the Rebellion Losses Bill which reimbursed people who had suffered property damage in the rebellions of 1837-1838. The rioters were not French-speaking separatists, but English-speaking citizens who were incensed because they believed that the Rebellion Losses Bill would give money to people who had taken part in the rebellion.

On April 25, 1849, the mob got out of hand. Lord Elgin, Governor of Canada, was booed by the Tories when he entered Parliament to sign the bill. Prior to this Sir Allan McNab, leader of the Tory Party, and Hume Blake, a member from Toronto, had come to blows and had to be separated by the sergeant-at-arms.

When Lord Elgin left the building he was pelted with rotten eggs, mud, and his carriage was nearly overturned. The Montreal "Gazette" called him "the last governor of Canada."

That night the Tories met in the Place d'Armes and marched to parliament which was still in session. They rushed inside, smashed the furniture, and tore the gas jets from the wall. This started the blaze, and when the fire department arrived the mob refused to let it work. Young Sanford Fleming, who later had a distinguished career, rushed into the burning building and saved a portrait of Queen Victoria.

The Tories were so angry that many leading members of the party, including J. J. Abbott who succeeded Sir John A. Macdonald as Prime Minister of Canada, signed a manifesto uring that Canada should join the U.S.

Other events on April 25:

1679 — Governor of Canada issued hunting permits.

1858 — First gold miners arrived at Victoria, B.C.

1875 — Red River rebels granted amnesty except Riel, Lepine, and O'Donoghue.

First Icelanders settled in Manitoba.

"I'll say it was, and in fact I spent exactly a fifth of what I had." Ron chuckled. "You know what? I've got left just half as many dollars in bills as I had cents in coins, and twice as many cents as I had dollars."

How much had he spent?

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to James Bureman, age 14, of Florissant, Missouri, for his question:

Why are the Galapagos Islands so special?

The home of the earth's oldest animal should be rather special. Surely the home of the earth's only sea-going lizard deserves special recognition. These are merely two of many one-of-a-kind creatures that belongs to the Galapagos Islands. However, this ocean archipelago also happens to be an operating demonstration of the story of life on our planet.

All the special biological features of the Galapagos Islands spring from special geographical features. The archipelago of 14 sizeable islands and many islets straddles the equator. It is a scattering of volcanic peaks in the deep Pacific, about 600 miles west of Ecuador. At the equator, one expects warm weather and dousings from tropical thunderheads. But through this part of the Pacific sweeps the cold Humboldt Current, bringing eternal streams of water up from the chilly seas of Antarctica. Many of the islands are in sight of each other. But they are separated by deep cool currents of swirling water and each island is an isolated world unto itself.

Around the shores of rough, rocky lava the climate is mild and very arid. The larger islands have ragged uplands where misty moisture provides for ferns and mosses, grassy valleys and forested slopes. There are no poisonous snakes and no mosquitoes bearing malaria and other tropical diseases. The region is very healthy and the sudden changes in geographical environment encourage a vast variety of plants and animals. And it is these living things that make the Galapagos Islands a special paradise to biologists.

Here we find creatures that were separated from their ancestral families, maybe many millions of years ago. Most of them arrived there as castaways and lived a marooned existence, each on his isolated island. Birds arrived on storm winds and penguins were swept up from Antarctica. Reptiles and insects most likely arrived from the mainland on floating logs. Bats arrived and rats were left behind by visiting vessels. Each castaway had to cope with life as he found it. And in the 1800s, visiting scientists were astounded to find how well they had done.

Giant Turtle

A land-loving lizard took to surfing, dining on seaweed and basking on the dark tidal rocks. The Galapagos iguana is the world's only marine lizard. The original finches multiplied and divided the food supplies between them. One group developed beaks suitable for eating seeds or prickly cactus. Others developed suitable beaks for catching bugs. One type took up woodpecking, though he had no long woodpecker tongue to scoop out his victims. So he learned to hold a twig in his beak and to use it to pry bugs and grubs from woody tree trunks. This fantastic finch is one of the world's rare tool-using animals. But the rarest native is the giant Galapagos turtle. He may weigh almost half a ton and it takes him 12 full laborious hours to travel a mile. But this oldest of earth's animals may live to celebrate more than 200 birthdays.

Andy sends a World Book Globe to Jeffery Stepp, age 13, of High Point, North Carolina, for his question:

Is it true that things weigh less at the equator?

This problem relates to the law of gravity. The strength of this mysterious force depends upon a planet's mass and reaches outward in all directions from the centre of its mass. The earth's centre of gravity is in the middle of its heavy core. Its pulling force gives weight to objects on the surface of the planet. The weight of a two-pound brick is the measure of the force of gravity exerted upon it at a certain distance from the earth's centre of gravity.

Distance is an important factor because the force of gravity diminishes as we get farther from the centre of the planet's mass. On the earth's surface, the centre of gravity is somewhat less than 4,000 miles straight down beneath our feet. But the earth is not a perfect sphere. It bulges a trifle at the equator. Here we are roughly 13½ miles farther from the centre of gravity than when standing on top of the South Pole. The earth's gravity does not lose much of its pulling power in this short distance of 13½ miles—but it does lose a little. Hence, at the equator a person weighs a trifle less than at the poles, though the difference is not enough to make him feel any lighter.

What Happened to the Hospitals Report?

By JIM HUME, Times Staff Reporter

Three newly-elected members to the Regional Hospital District take their places at the conference table Monday afternoon.

They will be walking into a nest of confusion and conflicting interests.

And they will be faced, head-on, with a recommendation from the Hospital Advisory Committee, a sub-committee of the main board, to deprive St. Mary's Priory of 150 extended care beds—a direct rejection of the Agnew-Peckham report on hospitals and health services.

Hume

The decision to switch the long-promised beds from the Priory to Jubilee Hospital was made, significantly, during the 10 weeks Langford, Colwood and Metchosin lacked representation on the board. Their new members — Earl Pallister, Richard Emery and Kenneth Rainey, respectively — were elected last Saturday.

What happened to the beds on the way to the Priory? And who made the decision to toss one of the major recommendations of the $43,000 Agnew-Peckham report in the waste basket?

Chronologically the events went as follows:

On May 1, 1968, Dr. Harvey Agnew presented his massive 330-page report to the hospital district. In it, among many other recommendations, he stated that St. Mary's Priory should get 200 extended care beds and 100 intermediate care beds.

By June 19 the extended care sub-committee of the district board had studied the Agnew recommendations and endorsed the 200-bed recommendation for the Priory.

That recommendation, along with the Agnew recommendation, was endorsed by the full board the same day.

On Sept. 17, 1968, after three months of further review by the district's priorities committee, the 200-bed decision for the Priory was again endorsed, along with 200 beds for Mount St. Mary, 150 for Gorge Road Hospital and 20 beds for Lady Minto, Ganges.

Two more months went by before the matter came up again at the board level, this time with major and minor changes on the priorities list but with the Priory still in the running.

The revised list of Nov. 27, 1968, earmarked 150 beds for the Priory, 150 for Gorge Road and 20 for Lady Minto, and 100 for a new hospital on the Saanich Peninsula.

There was no surprise at the dropping of Mount St. Mary from the list as that hospital's authorities were having difficulty in deciding whether or not they could find room for expansion on their existing hospital site.

Following the November reiteration of their endorsement of the Agnew Report, as it affected the Priory, the priorities committee took a brief rest over the Christmas and New Year holiday period.

Early in 1969 Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis stepped down as chairman of the district board handing the reins of office to Victoria's Mayor Hugh Stephen.

The new chairman brought with him a trimmed and revamped hospital advisory committee. Four of the new committee's members were from Victoria, one from Saanich.

Two of the non-voting politicians on the advisory committee were from Victoria and Esquimalt, the other from North Saanich.

The five voting members are Dr. John D. Hough, representing the Victoria Medical Society; William Morrison, representing the Hospital Administrator's Council; Dr. Embert Van Tilburg, representing St. Joseph's Hospital; Dr. A. C. Pickles, representing Jubilee Hospital, and J. M. Le Marquand representing other hospitals in the area.

Le Marquand is a member of the Rest Haven Hospital board.

By ANTHONY WESTELL

OTTAWA—Hundreds of wires and phone calls poured into Paul Hellyer's office on Parliament Hill Thursday night.

Some urged him to seek the job of chairman of Metro Council, to run for mayor of Toronto, or even to contest the vacant leadership of the Manitoba Liberal party. Others from influential Liberals and private citizens simply endorsed his view that practical issues of housing, pollution and inflation are more important than legal arguments about the constitution.

The messages taken together show that Hellyer's dignified resignation statement Thursday articulated a widely felt sense of frustration and disappointment with the performance and priorities of the Trudeau government after one year.

By stepping out of the cabinet but remaining in Parliament, he has become a focus for political discontent seeking a spokesman:

- For the West, already restive and resentful of Prime Minister Trudeau's preoccupation with language rights and relations with Quebec;
- For city dwellers worried by smog, dirty beaches, grocery bills and the sky high cost of a home, and who don't see Ottawa coming to help them;
- For those many Liberals—almost half the party just a year ago—who wanted Bob Winters or Hellyer as leader and have just been waiting for Trudeau to make his first big mistake.

Sought Freedom to Debate Issue

If he wishes, Hellyer can place himself at the head of these and other elements to form an effective opposition to Trudeau within the Liberal party.

Without doubt, he will be pressed in the next few days to follow this course and to prepare himself—he is still only 45—for a new leadership contest in four or five years.

But this was not his intention when he went to see the prime minister after days of soul-searching, to hand in his letter of resignation.

He was seeking not power, but freedom from cabinet discipline to begin a debate which the government and the opposition have been evading.

He resisted Trudeau's efforts to persuade him to reconsider resignation, not for reasons of tactical advantage, but because he is approaching the end of his political career and looking forward to private life.

During his years of service in the Pearson administration, Hellyer came close to resignation on several occasions. Although he made his name as the defence minister who enforced unification of the forces with single-minded determination, he was always in fact more interested in questions of housing and the cost of living and was frustrated by his inability to put his ideas to work. He held on in the Pearson government to be in position to contest the leadership.

Some of us who travelled with him on the leadership campaign early last year got an insight into his intentions and ambitions in the hours of flying across the country.

We remember his firm promise to his wife, Ellen, that—win or lose the leadership—he would be out of politics by age 50 to start a new career.

Unprecedented Move by Trudeau

He might well have quit in those bitter days of the leadership convention when he saw all his hard work, careful planning and computerized organization dissolve before the inexplicable but irristible appeal of Pierre Trudeau.

But Trudeau moved fast to reassure Hellyer by making him his deputy in the government and by promising him his head on the housing question.

After the June election, Trudeau appeared to seal the bargain by allowing Hellyer to lead his own task force to investigate housing and urban problems and to recommend policies to the government.

It was unprecedented to permit a minister to develop and propose in public policies that might be rejected by the cabinet, thus placing the minister in the position of accepting the rebuff or resigning.

Hellyer realized the implications of his appointment to the task force. He thought it meant that the prime minister was giving him a free hand to develop housing and urban policies which the cabinet would rubber-stamp.

When friends who knew more of Trudeau's mind tried to warn him of the potential dangers, he brushed them aside.

But the truth was that Trudeau—inexperienced, overconfident and distracted by many other issues—did not fully understand what he was doing.

And those around him, on his staff and in the privy council who should have known better, failed to persuade him in time of the difficulties.

Both Heading for a Collision

It was not until December, when the task force was writing its report, that both sides suddenly realized they were heading for a collision.

While he was on his Christmas holidays, Hellyer read for the first time Trudeau's book on his theory of federalism and came to the shocking conclusion that the prime minister might really mean it when he spoke of rigidly respecting provincial jurisdictions.

Trudeau and his staff, for their party, began to realize that Hellyer's report was not likely to be simply a

Minister Talks To Negotiators

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiators for Air Canada and for its 6,300 striking employees were expected to meet here this afternoon to continue negotiations begun Thursday in Montreal.

Spokesmen for the two sides had separate meetings this morning with Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey.

The two teams of negotiators were flown here from Montreal this morning in a transport department aircraft.

There was some confusion about procedures in and around the 10th-floor conference room in the labor department building when they arrived about 10 a.m. The two sides sat waiting and wondering what was going to happen next.

The union group was called to the minister's office on the 13th floor. Half an hour later, it was management's turn.

An aide to the minister said Bernard Wilson, assistant deputy labor minister, and William Kelly, director of federal conciliation services, were in charge of talks.

Air Canada's entire fleet of 108 planes has been grounded since last Sunday, when members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers walked out in a contract dispute.

An offer of a 23-per-cent wage increase over a three-year contract was rejected by a vote of union members last week. The union has pushed for a 20-per-cent wage increase in a one-year contract as a move to gain parity with workers handling similar jobs with United States airlines.

Under the old contract, wages ranged from $2 to $3.97 an hour.

Home Price Soaring In Victoria

House prices are rising faster in Victoria than any other major city in the country.

During the first quarter of 1969, the average sale price through multiple listing service shot up 35 per cent over the same quarter last year.

This added $5,895 to the average price of a house, bringing the total to $22,666—sixth highest in the country.

The percentage increase was the biggest of 12 cities for which figures were provided by the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards research department in Toronto.

Still ahead of Victoria, in average sale prices, are Toronto, $29,248; Ottawa, $27,250; Montreal, $23,682; Vancouver, $23,008, and Hamilton, $22,804.

But if the first-quarter tren continues Victoria will sc catch up with Toronto, whic had an increase of 9.4 per cent or $2,521 in the average sale price of a house during the first quarter.

G. D. Peaker, president of the Victoria Real Estate Board, said today there has been "a fierce increase" in land prices and no new houses are being built in any quantity. Lack of sewers was one major reason.

He also said that Victoria has been far behind other cities in land and house prices in the past.

NUMBER DOWN

While the average sale price of houses in Victoria through multiple listing shot up, and total dollar sales were also up, the number of house sold went down by 14 per cent to 405.

This was attributed to the heavy snow and cold weather that lasted from Boxing Day to the end of January.

There were also decreases in Vancouver, Edmonton, Saskatoon. Ottawa and Halifax.

The research director of the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards, J. T. Blair Jackson, said the trend is not surprising.

With demand high and the percentage of single-family housing starts declining each year, "there will likely be a continuation of price increases."

Ten years ago, just over 60 per cent of all new housing was in single-family homes. By 1964, this percentage had dropped to 46 per cent and last year it was down to 38 per cent.

"Housing starts so far this year have not indicated any reversal of this trend," he said.

Home Mortgage Now $25,000

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau today appointed minister without portfolio James Richardson to handle housing policy following the resignation of Transport Minister Paul Hellyer.

He also announced today that maximum loans under the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation have been raised to $25,000 from $18,000.

Increase of the maximum mortgage was a major recommendation of Hellyer's housing inquiry.

The new maximum level will apply to all types of new housing construction except apartments.

NO SURPRISE

The appointment of Richardson was no surprise as he had been assisting Hellyer in the transport department.

First elected to the Commons in 1968 in Winnipeg South, Richardson resigned as president of Richardson Securities when he entered the cabinet.

In reply to questions in the Commons from George Hees (PC—Prince Edward Hastings) on whether Hellyer would be in the Commons later for a special debate on housing, Trudeau said Richardson now is responsible for housing.

Hees pressed the issue, saying Hellyer was in Ottawa and that it was "a matter of great importance" whether he would be present for the debate.

OUT OF ORDER

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux ruled the question out of order on the grounds it was argumentative.

Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) asked whether any or all public housing projects in Vancouver are being "stalled."

Richardson replied that all such projects in Vancouver are not being stalled.

Richardson said Hellyer returned a few days ago following a visit to Vancouver particularly concerned with public housing. The transport minister had as yet made no final recommendations.

Answering Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants), Richardson said the government's public housing "guidelines" will be made public as soon as possible but he could not give an exact date.

Richardson told Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West) that many of Hellyer's recommendations have been approved by the cabinet and legislation is in an advanced state of preparation. It would be brought forward "in the very near future."

Outside the Commons, Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. issued an announcement that the new $25,000 ceiling would be instituted "effective immediately" for all types of new housing except apartments.

APPROVED LENDERS

The federal housing agency said in its announcement that the new ceiling would apply to all approved lenders under the National Housing Act, including banks, life insurance and trust and loan companies as well as CMHC itself.

Trudeau said in the House that the maximum life of housing loans will be extended to 40 years from 35.

The government bill, introducing amendments to the housing act, would extend to existing housing generally the same terms as apply to new construction, except that the maximum loan on existing housing would be $18,000.

Prime Minister Trudeau did not indicate who would be named transport minister when Hellyer's resignation takes effect April 30.

Considerable cabinet shuffling may be necessary.

TORONTO AREA

The new man almost certainly will come from the Toronto area where cabinet representation has been reduced to two —Privy Council President Donald Macdonald of Rosedale and External Affairs Minister Sharp.

There are five Montrealers in the 29-man cabinet.

More than a dozen MPs were elected from the Toronto area last June. The three senior men are Robert Stanbury, Philip Givins and Ian Wahn.

Three Agencies Proposed To Handle Research Funds

OTTAWA (CP) — The Science Council of Canada expects to make recommendations soon to the federal cabinet based on proposals for a major realignment of the agencies that dispense federal research funds to the universities.

Dr. Roger Gaudry, vice-chairman of the science council and rector of the University of Montreal, told a news conference today he is preparing material so the council can give the government its stand on recommendations of the Macdonald study group.

To carry out federal research support, the study group proposed creation of three agencies. One would be a revamped National Research Council with responsibility only to support university research in natural sciences and engineering.

The other two would be a Health Sciences Research Council, consisting of an expansion of the present Medical Research Council, and a Social Science and Humanities Research Council, taking over from the Canada Council the job of financing university research in those fields.

Dow Seeks Pentane Buy

CALGARY (CP) — Chevron Standard Ltd. of Calgary said Tuesday that Dow Chemicals Ltd. is a prospective purchaser of pentanes plus from a $120,000,000 gas cycling plant it wants to build in the Kaybob south field of west-central Alberta.

Chevron witnesses told an Alberta oil and gas conservation board hearing that Dow would take 15,000 barrels a day of pentanes recovered by the plant. This would make up about one-third of the plant's production and would eventually grow to 26,000 barrels a day for use at Dow's plant in Bay City, Mich.

Chevron, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of California, proposes to process 615,000,000 cubic feet of raw gas a day to produce 395,000,000 cubic feet of residue gas, of which 100,000,000 cubic feet would be sold and the rest recycled.

Chevron would produce 15,300,000 barrels a year of propane, butane and pentane plus from the gas during a 21-year period, as well as sulphur.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, APRIL 25, 1969 —PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

A Victoria art collection half a lifetime in the making went under the auctioneer's hammer on Tuesday evening. Most of the artists represented are strangers to me, and may very well be unknown to you.

There are Shrapnells and Naysmiths, Gissings and Butlers, and many another whose name is rarely heard today.

But the 250 oils and water-colors fetched a whopping $30,000 from the crowd of dealers, collectors and other interested bidders who packed into Lunds' auctioneering rooms.

Had "The Mayor of Fort Street" been present at that auction, his pride in seeing a hunch vindicated would have been tinged with anguish. Nicholas Kocutyn loved every picture in his collection. It hurt him to let one go.

It was Nick Kocutyn's friends on Fort who gave him his honorary title. But he wasn't there to see the four little water colors he had acquired years earlier fetch a total of $1,000 as the auction neared its end.

Nick died on Jan. 9 in the deep of a bitter winter. His friends say the street isn't the same without him.

You may have looked in the windows of his Eagle Art Galleries at 1016 Fort, or gone in to inspect some of the paintings displayed there.

Eagle Art Galleries, closed and empty now, wasn't an impressively furnished place. The searcher after abstract art would come out disappointed.

The interest that ruled Nick Kocutyn's life was anchored in an earlier era—one that ended well before the Group of Seven made their break with the romantic tradition.

The pictures Nick displayed for sale (more than half hoping that they wouldn't be bought) were only a sampling of perhaps the finest private collection of early Canadian and American art in the West. To it from time to time he added an oil or a water-color of later vintage that pleased him.

The post-war years that brought many an old-Victoria estate under the auctioneer's hammer enriched his collection. A friend of mine persuaded Nick to sell him an Emily Carr still-life that emerged from one estate sale.

Nick Kocutyn was a young man when he acquired his first painting. Behind him was a prairie childhood. He came west to work as a logger in the British Columbia woods, and followed the logger's trade for many years.

Later, settled in Victoria with his wife and their daughter Shirley, Nicholas Kocutyn turned to oil-burner sales and servicing for a living. His collection continued to grow. About seven years back, he set out to realize a cherished dream by renting a Government Street store and turning it into an art gallery.

The tourists showed a lamentable lack of interest, however, and the local citizenry didn't purchase enough to make the venture a success.

Several years ago, Nick tried his luck again, with the gallery that closed when death claimed him.

Occasionally, when sales were poor, he would return to servicing burners. But his pictures were his abiding interest.

"I miss him terribly," says Max Luxemberg, proprietor of a men's wear store at 616 Fort. "Nick was one of my best friends. He loved those paintings, and I remember once when he had more than he could store, we put a lot of them in my basement here. When his wife died, he sold one of his finest pictures to pay for her funeral."

Not all of Nick Kocutyn's collection went to the auction. There's one picture that his daughter refuses to sell, even though hefty offers have been made for it. This painting, 'Hudson River Pool,' by T. Butler, is a fine example of early Americana. It was one of her father's favorites.

I expect the Mayor of Fort Street would have approved her decision.

Three Transplants at Jubilee Have Hearts Throbbing, Singing for Beautiful B.C.

By JOHN DRISCOLL

A trio of doctors from Etobicoke, a Toronto suburb, have fallen in love with British Columbia.

Not unusual, but the doctors, all single, are unique among thousands of transplanted easterners because of their ability to communicate their feelings for B.C. through music.

Coming to Victoria only a year ago as interns at Royal Jubilee Hospital, they are already performing their own rousing provincial anthem.

Dr. Terry Burrows, the songwriter and guitarist for the group, has written "B.C. Essay," a trilogy of folk songs in praise of the natural beauty of B.C.:

"The land of dogwood and crystal jade
"And all the wonders nature made
"The land where you can stay
"British Columbia."

The songs within the essay are entitled, "British Columbia," "British Columbia Sunrise" and "Gale Warning for the Georgia Strait."

Performing their trilogy recently before the Kiwanis Club of Victoria, the doctors demonstrated a professional quality in their music and style.

Doctors Bill Sara and Bruce Lowden explained that they began performing three years ago while medical students at the University of Toronto.

"We performed at parties and faculty shows but since coming to Victoria things have snowballed," said Sara.

They came in a package deal to Jubilee with the intent of continuing their musical careers while taking their internships.

At a party they were overheard by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black who was impressed by their trilogy. So impressed he asked them to perform at Premier W. A. C. Bennett's press dinner.

They will finish their internship at Jubilee in June but all three will stay in B.C., Burrows and Sara at Jubilee and Lowden at Comox base with the air force.

Burrows has written 50 to 60 songs and had four published, one of which became a hit song in Denmark.

"We've just recently moved into the folk vein," he said.

Attempting to explain why he writes about B.C., Burrows, who lived at Shawnigan Lake for five years, said "it's just that it is so beautiful and we like to sing about it."

The interns have no plans to devote their full time to music.

"As far as I'm concerned we'll always be doctors first but anything is possible," said Burrows.

"Singing for a living has a very magnetic appeal," said Sara. "But I don't think I'd ever chuck medicine completely."

Their repertoire includes rock and satirical songs, one dedicated to Bennett entitled "The King of B.C."

This summer the doctors who have not yet decided on a name for their group ("Everything we've come up with so far sounds idiotic," said Burrows) plan to tour the interior of B.C.

Then Burrows will probably write more songs about the wonders of their adopted province.

ROADBLOCKS TO LEAN ON DRINKERS, SPEEDERS

City police will hold their first roadblocks of the year tonight and will be keeping a special eye out for speeders and drinking drivers.

Two units will be set up and move around the city area throughout the evenings. Radar will be used.

About a dozen auxiliary officers will lend a hand to an equal number of regular constables to operate the roadblocks.

Burns Unit Waits For New Hospital

By PETE LOUDON

Plans to build a modern treatment centre for burns at St. Joseph's have been shelved until a new hospital is constructed.

However, a temporary unit on a lesser scale is to be created, executive director E. G. Q. Van Tilburg announced Thursday.

He told the annual meeting of the hospital that it was unfortunate the required funds for the memorial to the late Victoria Mayor A. W. Toone had not yet been realized by a fund drive.

Funds which have been received — $16,822 — would be kept in trust, he added. No date for a new St. Joseph's has been set. The hospital hopes to renew itself on the present property, when the Greater Victoria and Gulf Islands Regional Hospital District has successfully passed a referendum for new acute care hospitals.

The burns unit, envisaged as the most up-to-date west of Toronto, was to cost $168,000 when it was first proposed in 1966.

POLITICS DEPLORED

Mention of the problems of the regional hospital district in allocating expansion funds among acute care hospitals and extended care hospitals, was made by Fred Norris, who retired as St. Joseph's board chairman last January.

He said a population explosion and a technological explosion has affected the hospital and "now I have a feeling we've run into a political explosion."

The regional district is attempting to meld seven municipalities and several districts to act as one.

"They've been rivals for years and years" he said and he thought it would be some time before the new board operated smoothly.

He was disappointed to hear that politics was entering into board matters. He hoped that St. Joseph's would not become parochial and that "everyone wouldn't be trying to grab for himself" when allocations are made.

SISTERS WITHDRAWING

"Next year I think we'll see these things all settled down."

Norris gave official notice of the withdrawal of the Sisters of St. Ann from hospital administration. He said the duty of raising hospital construction costs now has passed from volunteer organizations to municipal hands.

"This, coupled with B.C. Hospital Insurance Service active participation ... indicated to the Sisters of St. Ann that their order was no longer fulfilling an urgent need in the community by continuing their sponsorship of an acute facility.

"The sisters, being dedicated to serving the community where the need is greatest, reluctantly made the decision to withdraw from active involvement with the hospital in order to concentrate on the many fields of need.

"At their request the board of management is forming a new society to acquire the assets and liabilities of the sisters and supply the management.

92 YEARS

"This will not mean a severance with the 92 years of heritage. The sisters will continue to be represented in the society and active within the hospital in the areas best in keeping with their qualifications."

Mr. Norris said agreement in principle with the sisters will provide sufficient land from St. Ann's Academy grounds to enable the hospital district to begin replacing the hospital complex.

The board is ready to confirm appointment of architects and proceed with long range and immediate development plans.

Cariboo Vote Guaranteed By Christmas

An election in Cariboo riding is guaranteed by Christmas Day.

Speaker William Murray today formally issued a warrant to Deputy Provincial Secretary L. J. Wallace setting the deadline on a vote to replace Robert Bonner.

The Speaker, returning to the capital from a trip to Prince Rupert, opened the former attorney-general's letter resigning his seat as of last Tuesday.

Under the regulations governing by-elections, Wallace must issue a writ calling a vote within six months of today's warrant and that vote must be held within two months of the writ.

Those regulations set Dec. 25 as the theoretical deadline but the provincial cabinet can order a by-election anytime it wishes before the statutory deadlines are reached.

Premier Bennett also has an alternative — he can hold a general election between now and October, making a Cariboo byelection redundant.

NEW PRICE STARTS THURSDAY

$2.25 Haircuts Called 'Bargain'

Starting next Thursday most Victoria men and their sons will be shorn of an extra 25 cents when they get a haircut.

Members of the Barbers Union, Local 372, voted Thursday to increase men's haircuts to $2.25 and children's to $1.75, beginning next week.

One downtown non-union barber still thinks Victorinas will be getting "a bargain."

"North of Duncan and in Vancouver it costs $2.50. I've been charging $2.25 for the past year, $3 for a razor cut and $4 for styling," he said.

Union secretary Russ Foxcroft said it was impossible to hold the prices because of the cost of living increase.

"Actually, the price should have gone up last fall."

Foxcroft resigned as secretary Thursday in order to become secretary of the B.C. Barbers Association. He moves to Vancouver Monday.

'Scapegoat' Role Sparks Protest By Putter Fleet

Hunt Called Off For Saanich Fishboat Owner

The search for a Saanich man whose boat was burned almost beyond recognition and beached near Port Renfrew Thursday has been called off.

No hope is being held out that the body of Frank Szegedi, 44, of 734 Cowper will be found. Sooke RCMP said from past experience "no one turns up in that water."

The body of Mrs. Szegedi, age 46, was recovered Thursday morning on the beach near a smashed dinghy belonging to the Szegedi's 34-foot fishing troller the Huloima.

The Saanich couple left Victoria early Tuesday on a commercial fishing trip. Smoke from their burning boat was spotted about 5:30 a.m. Thursday morning and an extensive search was under way most of the day by air and sea rescue officials, navy and coastguard ships and Sooke RCMP.

EXPLOSION

Only the diesel engine and parts of the ship's stern and bow remain. Cause of the fire is unknown and will probably remain a mystery police said. The couple had owned the boat for three years.

Police said because of the extensive burning it appeared an explosion may have taken place.

Mrs. Szegedi's body which wasn't burned was brought to Victoria by Sands Mortuary and an autopsy will be held today at St. Joseph's Hospital. Coroner Eugene Murphy of Sooke is expected to hold an inquiry into the deaths.

The Szegedis, Saanich residents for a number of years, left six children. The oldest, Charles, 23, is a commercial fisherman.

The others are John, 15, Sonja, 13, David, 10, all in school, and Julie, 6, and Helen, 5, in kindergarten. Relatives are looking after the children.

Lifeboatmen Rescue Mate

A four-man lifeboat crew battled 15-foot waves at Bamfield Thursday to rescue a man aboard a barge which broke its tow line.

Marvin Goldsmith had to jump from the barge into the sea so the lifeboat could pick him up.

Goldsmith, second mate on the tug Haida Brave, boarded the 380-foot barge when the steel towing cable broke shortly after midnight.

The barge washed up on a reef outside Bamfield harbor but was picked up later in the day and continued to California with its 7,500 tons of newsprint.

Netmen Big Threat MP Committee Told

By BOB MITCHELL

Small independent fishermen and trolling vessels have been made the "scapegoat" of the fishing industry, the House of Commons standing committee on fisheries and forestry was told here Thursday.

A brief presented to the committee by the Pacific Putter Fleet Association said net boats, not trollers, represent the greatest threat to conservation of salmon on the west coast.

See Other Reports
Pages 13 and 20

The Putter Fleet is comprised of fishermen holding "B" licences (part-time fishermen), and the group's brief advocated:

- Softening of time and area restrictions on troll vessels;
- Re-opening of areas now closed or restricted to trollers;
- Phasing out of vessels owned or controlled by companies.

The brief was presented by association secretary D. F. Ward, who said the salmon fleet is so efficient that if net boats were allowed to fish seven days a week they could, in a short time, wipe out available salmon.

In 1968 net vessels accounted for 78 per cent of the salmon catch. But troll vessels since 1951 have only averaged about 20 per cent of the catch and therefore have "never threatened conservation practice."

'Evading the True Problem'

The brief said the policy of restriction on trollers is "unrealistic and evades the true problem."

Phasing out of company-owned vessels was offered as the best means of conservation. The brief warned that two companies have stepped up efforts to buy up fishing vessels.

The Pacific Putters brief also contained recommendations on soil and forest conservation.

The 19-member committee heard seven briefs, written and verbal, from oyster producers, commercial and sport fishermen and a forest land consultant.

Proposed schemes for processing the B.C. dogfish for human consumption brought many questions from the MPs.

R. H. Payne, president of the Sidney local of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, said fishermen resent negotiations by Fisheries Minister Jack Davis with Japanese interests to have dogfish harvested and processed by Japanese fishermen.

He said the department should investigate the possibility of building a floating processing plant that could follow the fishboats netting dogfish.

The dogfish is now considered a menace to certain commercial species, especially the herring, but no commercial use has been found for it, except in sale of the liver.

Payne said canneries now require that dogfish sold to them be caught no more than 48 hours before. The ammonia content of the flesh causes rapid deterioration of the fish after that length of time.

The time limit restricts the movement of any fisherman who intends to sell dogfish livers to the cannery.

Willing to Catch Dogfish

The union president said fishermen, idle during the winter months, would be willing to catch dogfish if a means of processing them could be found.

The Commons committee said it will contact Armand St. Jean of Nanaimo who recently announced he had found a way to can dogfish for human consumption.

Payne said St. Jean has travelled to Ottawa to get support for his processing plant.

The committee will spend today and Saturday in Prince Rupert, then travel to Kamloops for its last hearing before returning to Ottawa.

In Vancouver Wednesday the B.C. Fisheries Association presented a brief calling on the federal government to formally extend its jurisdiction to waters over the continental shelf and slope.

The Victoria hearing turned into a shouting match at one point when a committee member, Ray Perrault (Lib.-Burnaby), challenged the authenticity of statements attributed to Fisheries Minister Davis by Elgin Neish, president of the Victoria local of the UFAWU.

Neish, quoting from the minister's Operation Highline speech delivered at Prince Rupert last fall, said the minister approved company monopolies in the fishing industry, and considered the small, independent fisherman "sand in the wheels of progress."

Perrault said he had a copy of the same speech with him and the minister had said just the opposite. Neish stuck to his guns and agreed to table his copy of the speech.

Figures contained in a brief from the Amalgamated Conservation Society, shocked and impressed the committee.

Howard English, representing the society, said some American tourists abuse their fishing privileges in B.C. waters. Some have been known to take fish they catch back to the U.S.A. to sell them.

He said fishing derbies for large prizes are not in the interest of recreation:

"They encourage people to do many things that are not very sporting."

Dr. H. A. W. Knight, land consultant, told the committee the federal government should play a larger role in land-water use.

A former researcher with the federal department of forestry, the B.C. Forest Service and private industry, he said management should stay in provincial hands, but Ottawa should take over the research end.

He said industry could also be encouraged to engage in land-water research "but they have to be persuaded there is a payoff.

We have about 40 PhDs sitting over here at the Burnside forest laboratories, but not one of them contributes to the university.

He said a lot of "vacuum research" is being done by students, in the form of theses, but the material is never utilized, and sits on the shelves of university libraries.

'Coast Safari' Returns May 3

Local biologist Dave Hancock's wildlife film "Coast Safari" will return to the McPherson Playhouse May 3.

Thursday night's showing and two performances tonight of the two-hour color movie are sell-outs.

Hancock narrates the record of coastal trips over the past four years taken by himself and his wife Lynn.

There will be two showings, at 6 p.m. and 8:30, on May 3.

Ask The Times

Q. Was there ever a fishing port on the west coast of Vancouver Island called Kildonan? Is it now abandoned? J.W.W.

A. Kildonan was established as a salmon cannery in 1903 and is still in existence. It is situated in Uchucklesit Harbor on the Alberni Canal and is 22 miles from Port Alberni.

Q. What do the three letters "I H S" which are on so many gravestones at Ross Bay Cemetery represent? D.M.

A. The letters are the first three of the Greek word for Jesus, being Iota, Eta and Sigma. The Greek E looks like an H in English.

What Happened to the Hospitals Report?

By JIM HUME, Times Staff Reporter

Three newly-elected members to the Regional Hospital District take their places at the conference table Monday afternoon.

They will be walking into a nest of confusion and conflicting interests.

And they will be faced, head-on, with a recommendation from the Hospital Advisory Committee, a sub-committee of the main board, to deprive St. Mary's Priory of 150 extended care beds—a direct rejection of the Agnew-Peckham report on hospitals and health services.

Hume

The decision to switch the long-promised beds from the Priory to Jubilee Hospital was made, significantly, during the 10 weeks Langford, Colwood and Metchosin lacked representation on the board. Their new members — Earl Pallister, Richard Emery and Kenneth Rainey, respectively — were elected last Saturday.

What happened to the beds on the way to the Priory? And who made the decision to toss one of the major recommendations of the $43,000 Agnew-Peckham report in the waste basket?

Chronologically the events went as follows:

On May 1, 1968, Dr. Harvey Agnew presented his massive 330-page report to the hospital district. In it, among many other recommendations, he stated that St. Mary's Priory should get 200 extended care beds and 100 intermediate care beds.

By June 19 the extended care sub-committee of the district board had studied the Agnew recommendations and endorsed the 200-bed recommendation for the Priory.

That recommendation, along with the Agnew recommendation, was endorsed by the full board the same day.

On Sept. 17, 1968, after three months of further review by the district's priorities committee, the 200-bed decision for the Priory was again endorsed, along with 200 beds for Mount St. Mary, 150 for Gorge Road Hospital and 20 beds for Lady Minto, Ganges.

Two more months went by before the matter came up again at the board level, this time with major and minor changes on the priorities list but with the Priory still in the running.

The revised list of Nov. 27, 1968, earmarked 150 beds for the Priory, 150 for Gorge Road and 20 for Lady Minto, and 100 for a new hospital on the Saanich Peninsula.

There was no surprise at the dropping of Mount St. Mary from the list as that hospital's authorities were having difficulty in deciding whether or not they could find room for expansion on their existing hospital site.

Following the November reiteration of their endorsement of the Agnew report, as it affected the Priory, the priorities committee took a brief rest over the Christmas and New Year holiday period.

Early in 1969 Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis stepped down as chairman of the district board handing the reins of office to Victoria's Mayor Hugh Stephen.

The new chairman brought with him a trimmed and revamped hospital advisory committee. Four of the new committee's members were from Victoria, one from Saanich.

Two of the non-voting politicians on the advisory committee were from Victoria and Esquimalt, the other from North Saanich.

The five voting members are Dr. John D. Hough, representing the Victoria Medical Society; William Morrison, representing the Hospital Administrator's Council; Dr. Embert Van Tilburg, representing St. Joseph's Hospital; Dr. A. C. Pickles, representing Jubilee Hospital, and J. M. Le Marquand representing other hospitals in the area.

Le Marquand is a member of the Rest Haven Hospital board.

The politicians on the committee are Stephen, Mayor Ray

By ANTHONY WESTELL

OTTAWA—Hundreds of wires and phone calls poured into Paul Hellyer's office on Parliament Hill Thursday night.

Some urged him to seek the job of chairman of Metro Council, to run for mayor of Toronto, or even to contest the vacant leadership of the Manitoba Liberal party. Others from influential Liberals and private citizens simply endorsed his view that practical issues of housing, pollution and inflation are more important than legal arguments about the constitution.

The messages taken together show that Hellyer's dignified resignation statement Thursday articulated a widely felt sense of frustration and disappointment with the performance and priorities of the Trudeau government after one year.

By stepping out of the cabinet but remaining in Parliament, he has become a focus for political discontent seeking a spokesman:

- For the West, already restive and resentful of Prime Minister Trudeau's preoccupation with language rights and relations with Quebec;
- For city dwellers worried by smog, dirty beaches, grocery bills and the sky high cost of a home, and who don't see Ottawa coming to help them;
- For those many Liberals—almost half the party just a year ago—who wanted Bob Winters or Hellyer as leader and have just been waiting for Trudeau to make his first big mistake.

Sought Freedom to Debate Issue

If he wishes, Hellyer can place himself at the head of these and other elements to form an effective opposition to Trudeau within the Liberal party.

Without doubt, he will be pressed in the next few days to follow this course and to prepare himself—he is still only 45—for a new leadership contest in four or five years.

But this was not his intention when he went to see the prime minister after days of soul-searching, to hand in his letter of resignation.

He was seeking not power, but freedom from cabinet discipline to begin a debate which the government and the opposition have been evading.

He resisted Trudeau's efforts to persuade him to reconsider resignation, not for reasons of tactical advantage, but because he is approaching the end of his political career and looking forward to private life.

During his years of service in the Pearson administration, Hellyer came close to resignation on several occasions. Although he made his name as the defence minister who enforced unification of the forces with single-minded determination, he was always in fact more interested in questions of housing and the cost of living and was frustrated by his inability to put his ideas to work. He held on in the Pearson government to be in position to contest the leadership.

Some of us who travelled with him on the leadership campaign early last year got an insight into his intentions and ambitions in the hours of flying across the country.

We remember his firm promise to his wife, Ellen, that—win or lose the leadership—he would be out of politics by age 50 to start a new career.

Unprecedented Move by Trudeau

He might well have quit in those bitter days of the leadership convention when he saw all his hard work, careful planning and computerized organization dissolve before the inexplicable but irresistible appeal of Pierre Trudeau.

But Trudeau moved fast to reassure Hellyer by making him his deputy in the government and by promising him his head on the housing question.

After the June election, Trudeau appeared to seal the bargain by allowing Hellyer to lead his own task force to investigate housing and urban problems and to recommend policies to the government.

It was unprecedented to permit a minister to develop and propose in public policies that might be rejected by the cabinet, thus placing the minister in the position of accepting the rebuff or resigning.

Hellyer realized the implications of his appointment to the task force. He thought it meant that the prime minister was giving him a free hand to develop housing and urban policies which the cabinet would rubber-stamp.

When friends who knew more of Trudeau's mind tried to warn him of the potential dangers, he brushed them aside.

But the truth was that Trudeau—inexperienced, overconfident and distracted by many other issues—did not fully understand what he was doing.

And those around him, on his staff and in the privy council who should have known better, failed to persuade him in time of the difficulties.

Both Heading for a Collision

It was not until December, when the task force was writing its report, that both sides suddenly realized they were heading for a collision.

While he was on his Christmas holidays, Hellyer read for the first time Trudeau's book on his theory of federalism and came to the shocking conclusion that the prime minister might really mean it when he spoke of rigidly respecting provincial jurisdictions.

Trudeau and his staff, for their part, began to realize that Hellyer's report was not likely to be simply a

DERAILED TRAIN BURNS

RICHMOND, Ind. (AP) — Fires, explosions and streams of dangerous chemicals trailed a three-mile-long train derailment today between East Germantown and Cambridge City in east-central Indiana.

The 250 residents of East Germantown, eight miles west of Richmond, were evacuated because of puddles of chemicals which sent fumes through the town.

Salt-Cod Subsidies

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will make deficiency payments to East Coast salt-cod fishermen this fall in an effort to bring the prices they receive more into line with 1967 returns, Fisheries Minister Jack Davis announced today.

Minister Talks To Negotiators

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiators for Air Canada and for its 6,300 striking employees were expected to meet here this afternoon to continue negotiations begun Thursday in Montreal.

Spokesmen for the two sides had separate meetings this morning with Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey.

The two teams of negotiators were flown here from Montreal this morning in a transport department aircraft.

There was some confusion about procedures in and around the 10th-floor conference room in the labor department building when they arrived about 10 a.m. The two sides sat waiting and wondering what was going to happen next.

The union group was called to the minister's office on the 13th floor. Half an hour later, it was management's turn.

An aide to the minister said Bernard Wilson, assistant deputy labor minister, and William Kelly, director of federal conciliation services, were in charge of talks.

Air Canada's entire fleet of 108 planes has been grounded since last Sunday, when members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers walked out in a contract dispute.

An offer of a 23-per-cent wage increase over a three-year contract was rejected by a vote of union members last week. The union has pushed for a 20-per-cent wage increase in a one-year contract as a move to gain parity with workers handling similar jobs with United States airlines.

Under the old contract, wages ranged from $2 to $3.97 an hour.

Home Price Soaring In Victoria

House prices are rising faster in Victoria than in any other major city in the country.

During the first quarter of 1969, the average sale price through multiple listing service shot up 35 per cent over the same quarter last year.

This added $5,895 to the average price of a house, bringing the total to $22,666—sixth highest in the country.

The percentage increase was the biggest of 12 cities for which figures were provided by the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards research department in Toronto.

Still ahead of Victoria, in average sale prices, are Toronto, $29,248; Ottawa, $27,250; Montreal, $23,682; Vancouver, $23,008, and Hamilton, $22,804.

But if the first-quarter trend continues Victoria will soon catch up with Toronto, which had an increase of 9.4 per cent or $2,521 in the average sale price of a house during the first quarter.

G. D. Peaker, president of the Victoria Real Estate Board, said today there has been "a fierce increase" in land prices and no new houses are being built in any quantity. Lack of sewers was one major reason.

He also said that Victoria has been far behind other cities in land and house prices in the past.

NUMBER DOWN

While the average sale price of houses in Victoria through multiple listing shot up, and total dollar sales were also up, the number of house sold went down by 14 per cent to 405.

This was attributed to the heavy snow and cold weather that lasted from Boxing Day to the end of January.

There were also decreases in Vancouver, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Ottawa and Halifax.

The research director of the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards, J. T. Blair Jackson, said the trend is not surprising.

With demand high and the percentage of single-family housing starts declining each year, "there will likely be a continuation of price increases."

Ten years ago, just over 60 per cent of all new housing was in single-family homes. By 1964, this percentage had dropped to 46 per cent and last year it was down to 38 per cent.

"Housing starts so far this year have not indicated any reversal of this trend," he said.

Mortgage Top Now $25,000

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau today appointed minister without portfolio James Richardson to handle housing policy following the resignation of Transport Minister Paul Hellyer.

He also announced today that maximum loans under the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation have been raised to $25,000 from $18,000.

Increase of the maximum mortgage was a major recommendation of Hellyer's housing inquiry.

The new maximum level will apply to all types of new housing construction except apartments.

NO SURPRISE

The appointment of Richardson was no surprise as he had been assisting Hellyer in the transport department.

First elected to the Commons in 1968 in Winnipeg South, Richardson resigned as president of Richardson Securities when he entered the cabinet.

In reply to questions in the Commons from George Hees (PC—Prince Edward Hastings) on whether Hellyer would be in the Commons later for a special debate on housing, Trudeau said Richardson now is responsible for housing.

Hees pressed the issue, saying Hellyer was in Ottawa and that it was "a matter of great importance" whether he would be present for the debate.

OUT OF ORDER

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux ruled the question out of order on the grounds it was argumentative.

Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) asked whether any or all public housing projects in Vancouver are being "stalled."

Richardson replied that all such projects in Vancouver are not being stalled.

Richardson said Hellyer returned a few days ago following a visit to Vancouver particularly concerned with public housing. The transport minister had as yet made no final recommendations.

Answering Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants), Richardson said the government's public housing "guidelines" will be made public as soon as possible but he could not give an exact date.

Richardson told Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West) that many of Hellyer's recommendations have been approved by the cabinet and legislation is in an advanced state of preparation. It would be brought forward "in the very near future."

Outside the Commons, Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. issued an announcement that the new $25,000 ceiling would be instituted "effective immediately" for all types of new housing except apartments.

APPROVED LENDERS

The federal housing agency said in its announcement that the new ceiling would apply to all approved lenders under the National Housing Act, including banks, life insurance and trust and loan companies as well as CMHC itself.

Trudeau said in the House that the maximum life of housing loans will be extended to 40 years from 35.

The government bill, introducing amendments to the housing act, would extend to existing housing generally the same terms as apply to new construction, except that the maximum loan on existing housing would be $18,000.

Prime Minister Trudeau did not indicate who would be named transport minister when Hellyer's resignation takes effect April 30.

Considerable cabinet shuffling may be necessary.

TORONTO AREA

The new man almost certainly will come from the Toronto area where cabinet representation has been reduced to two—Privy Council President Donald MacDonald of Rosedale and External Affairs Minister Sharp.

There are five Montrealers in the 29-man cabinet.

More than a dozen MPs were elected from the Toronto area last June. The three senior men are Robert Stanbury, Philip Givins and Ian Wahn.

Three Agencies Proposed To Handle Research Funds

OTTAWA (CP) — The Science Council of Canada expects to make recommendations soon to the federal cabinet based on proposals for a major realignment of the agencies that dispense federal research funds to the universities.

Dr. Roger Gaudry, vice-chairman of the science council and rector of the University of Montreal, told a news conference today he is preparing material so the council can give the government its stand on recommendations of the Macdonald study group.

To carry out federal research support, the study group proposed creation of three agencies. One would be a revamped National Research Council with responsibility only to support university research in natural sciences and engineering.

The other two would be a Health Sciences Research Council, consisting of an expansion of the present Medical Research Council, and a Social Science and Humanities Research Council, taking over from the Canada Council the job of financing university research in those fields.

CP Air Starts Long Flight

CP Air begins its first daily non-stop flights between Vancouver and Toronto Sunday.

A 141-seat, DC-8 jetliner will leave Vancouver daily at 8:30 a.m., arrive in Toronto four hours later, at 3:30 p.m., and continue on to Montreal.

The return flights, originating in Montreal at 5:55 p.m., will depart from Toronto at 7:30 p.m. and arrive in Vancouver at 9 p.m. local time.

At present all CP Air flights between Vancouver and Toronto make at least one stop.

The addition of this non-stop service will give CP Air four daily transcontinental flights.

A fifth will be added June 20, providing non-stop service between Calgary and Toronto.

By 1970, CP Air hopes to have 25 per cent of the transcontinental capacity, in accordance with government policy set down in 1967.

Dow Seeks Pentane Buy

CALGARY (CP) — Chevron Standard Ltd. of Calgary said Tuesday that Dow Chemicals Ltd. is a prospective purchaser of pentanes plus from a $120,000,000 gas cycling plant it wants to build in the Kaybob south field of west-central Alberta.

Chevron witnesses told an Alberta oil and gas conservation board hearing that Dow would take 15,000 barrels a day of pentanes recovered by the plant. This would make up about one-third of the plant's production and would eventually grow to 26,000 barrels a day for use at Dow's plant in Bay City, Mich.

Chevron, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of California, proposes to process 615,000,000 cubic feet of raw gas a day to produce 395,000,000 cubic feet of residue gas, of which 100,000,000 cubic feet would be sold and the rest recycled.

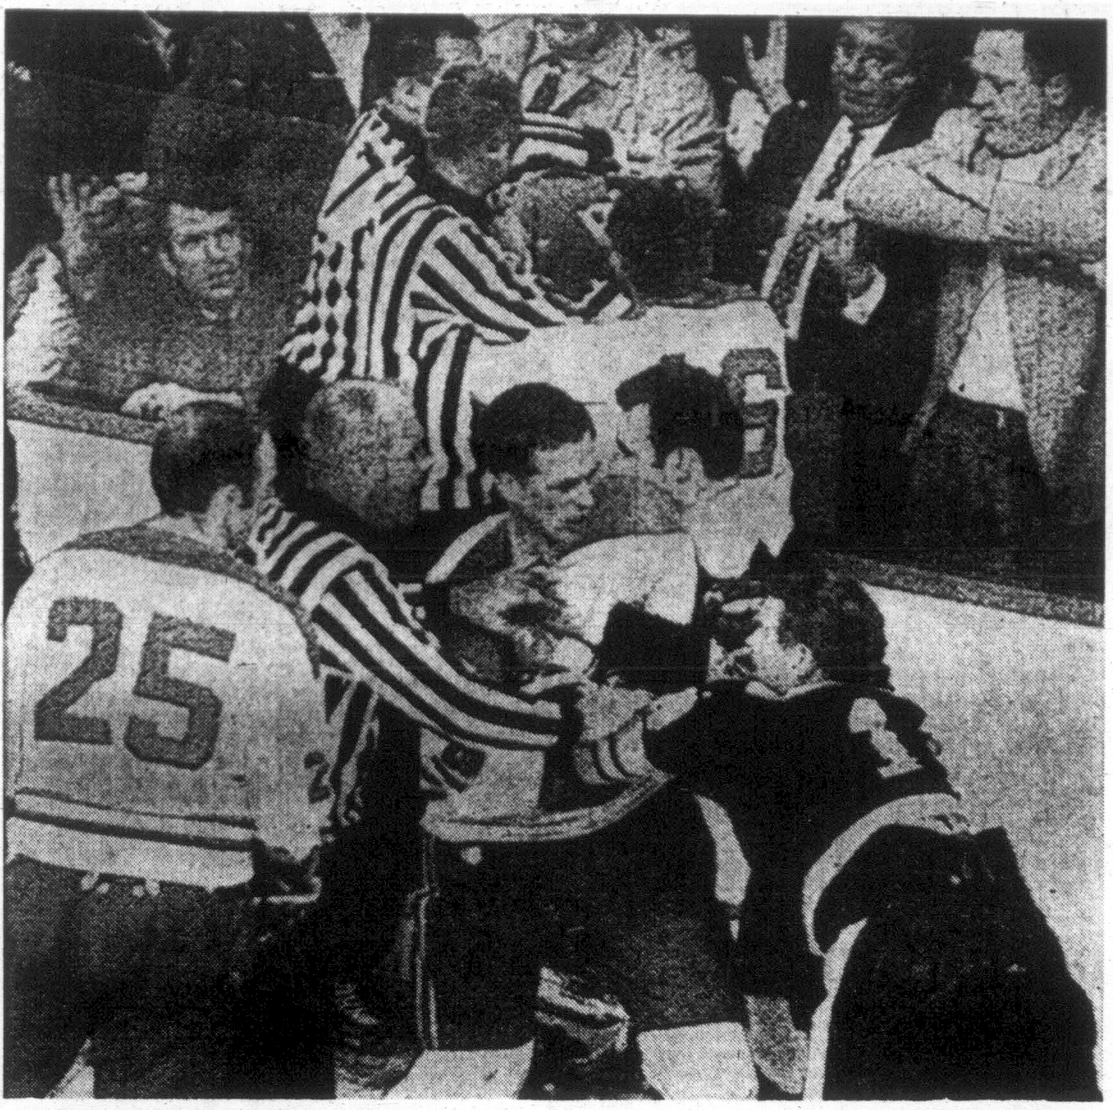
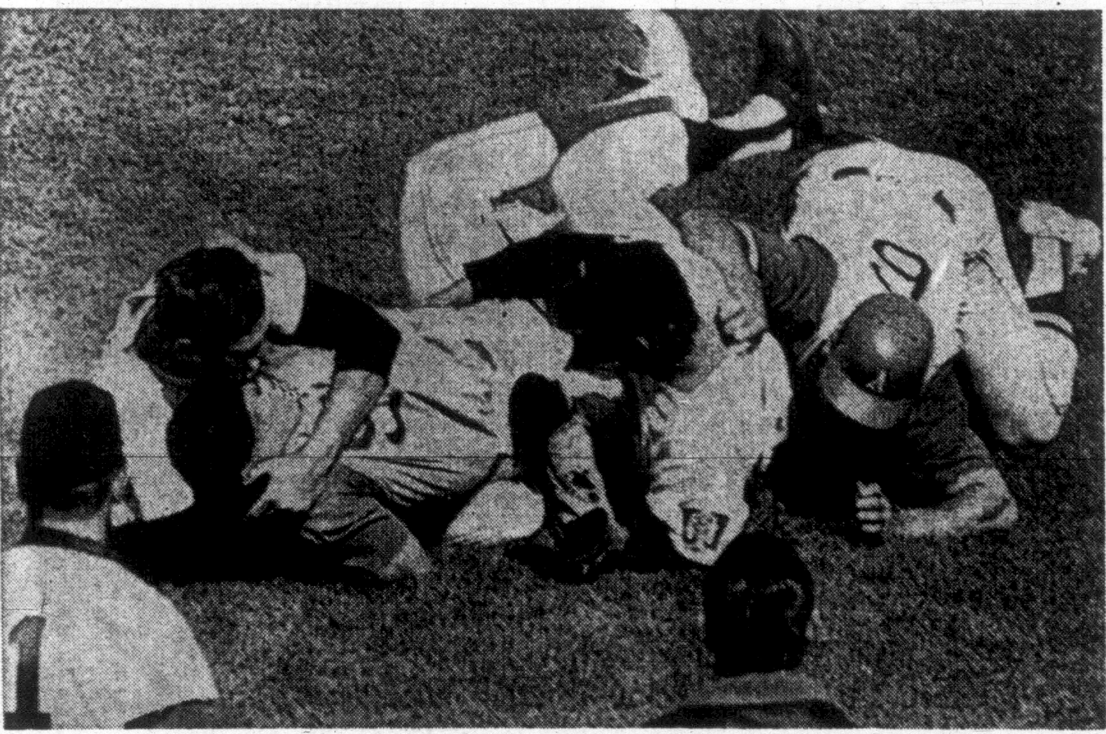
Winner a Plain Effort But Vachon Was Fancy



TEMPERS BOILED OVER in more than one place in professional sports Friday to provide fans with extra excitement. Tensions of playoff hockey touched off trouble (above) as officials order fan removed from Boston Garden and John McKenzie, of Boston Bruins, struggles with Terry Harper, of Montreal Canadiens. Fan had reached over glass to hit John Ferguson after tempestuous Canadien had been ordered to penalty box. It was grounded lineup (below) in fight during American League baseball game in Minneapolis as Minnesota pitcher Dick Woodson (left) attempts to apply headlock to Oakland's Reggie Jackson, who is also held by Craig Nettles, of Twins. At right is Oakland's Sal Bande (6). Watching ruckus is Minnesota manager Billy Martin (1). (AP Wirephoto.)



Overtime Hex Works Again As Habs Eliminate Bruins

BOSTON (CP) — That old overtime jinx hit the Bruins Thursday night, but it was a veteran all-star and a young goaltender who killed Boston's bid for their first berth in the Stanley Cup final since 1940-41.

Jean Beliveau, Montreal Canadiens' 36-year-old captain, rapped in a pass from right winger Claude Provost at 11:28 of the second overtime period for a 2-1 Montreal victory and the National Hockey League semi-final playoff series four games to two.

Rogatien Vachon, 23, who became starting goalie when Gump Worsley dislocated the little finger on his left hand in the third game, blocked 50 shots, 22 in the scoreless second period. He was unbeatable after giving up a goal to Ron Murphy at 2:29 of the first period.

Beliveau's goal, his second of the series, marked the first time in his 16-year NHL career that he has scored in overtime. The Montreal captain scored the tying goal in the first game of the series which Montreal won 3-2 in overtime.

START SUNDAY

The Canadiens, winners of the NHL's Eastern Division, now meet St. Louis Blues in a best-of-seven final series which opens in Montreal Sunday.

St. Louis, Western Division champions, defeated Philadelphia Flyers in their quarter-final in four games and then knocked off Los Angeles Kings in the semi-final, also in four games.

The Blues and the Canadiens met in last year's final with Montreal—minus Beliveau—taking the series in four games. However, this year the Blues are well rested while Canadiens have had a rugged series against Boston.

After Thursday's game, Vachon, said he was tired, but happy.

"I was so tired I just lay down between periods and tried to relax," he said in the Canadiens dressing room as coach Claude Ruel smiled for the first time since he arrived in Boston Wednesday.

"I was still lucky, there were several shots that just hit me and some that I didn't even see."

Beliveau refused to take much credit for the winning goal.

"It was a perfect pass from that old guy sitting right over there," said the Montreal centre, pointing to Provost.

NOTHING FANCY

"I thought we'd lost possession of the puck to (Don) Awrey. I turned back ready to head for our end of the rink, then I saw Joe (Provost) come up with it.

"I had no time for a fancy shot. I just let it go."

It was the third time in this series that Canadiens beat the Bruins in overtime.

Serge Savard tied the game at 1:10 of the third period Thursday night, five seconds after Awrey had gone off for cross-checking.

Gerry Cheevers, who played outstanding goal for the Bruins throughout the playoffs, was screened by Bobby Orr on the shot.

STILL NOT CONVINCED

Meanwhile, Boston coach Harry Sinden was convinced he had the better team.

"It's rough," Sinden said. "At no time during the night did I think we were going to lose that game.

"We were getting stronger all the time, but. . . ."

Ruel was almost in tears when Sinden went to congratulate him.

"Boy, that Boston is a great hockey team," he said, "but we're not too bad ourselves."

The coach held to his policy of no predictions when asked about the series against St. Louis.

"I never make predictions," he said. "All I know it is going to be another series and we're going home to rest.

PRODUCING HEADACHES WAY TO IMPRESS BOSS

The best way for Victoria booters Ike MacKay, Bruce Twamley and Bruce Robinson to impress their new boss will be to give him a succession of a soccer headaches, Saturday night.

They will all be laboring with Victoria O'Keefes under lights at Royal Athletic Park when the Pacific Cost Soccer League club tangles in an exhibition struggle with Vancouver Spartans at 8 p.m.

MacKay and Twamley are slated to join Spartans for the Western Canada League's summer campaign after Victoria's final game of the season — a clash here May 14 with West Bromwich Albion of the English League's First Division.

Spartan coach Peter Dinsdale if also high on Robinson and a strong effort Saturday could earn Brian an invitation to join the Vancouver squad.

Nosella Sparkles In Curtain-Closer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Centre-forward Roy Nosella scored two goals Thursday night to lead North Shore to a 4-2 win over Vancouver Croatia in the final game of the Pacific Coast Soccer League's regular season.

The result had no effect on league standings. North Shore remained in sixth place and Croatia in the cellar of the nine-team league.

However, Nosella's goals tied him for the scoring championship with New Westminster's Jack Perri. Each scored 17 during the season.

North Shore had to come from behind a 2-1 halftime deficit. Milos Potucick and Mike Sails scored for Croatia. Bob Therrien and Ted Atkinson scored the other North Shore goals.

Playoffs will be this weekend, with second-placed University of British Columbia meeting third-place Vancouver Firefighters Saturday and champion Vancouver Columbus facing fourth-place New Westminster on Sunday.

The winners meet in the final the following Sunday.

Beltin' Reggie Also Adequate As a Thrower

By The Associated Press

Reggie Jackson wasn't doing much of anything until Dave Boswell fired two good pitches and Dick Woodson threw two close ones.

Boswell's two tosses resulted in a pair of homers by Jackson in Oakland Athletics' 6-4 victory over Minnesota Thursday. Woodson's pitches resulted in a black eye for the Twins' hurler, suffered during a brief bout with Jackson on the mound.

Jackson, who took only a .146 average into the game, charged to the mound after successive pitches by Woodson whizzed by his head in the fifth inning.

"There was a lot of velocity on those balls," said Jackson. "I was scared."

While Jackson was attempting to tackle Woodson, players from both benches streamed on to the field in an attempt to separate the two fighters.

Jackson was ejected and Woodson was lifted for a pinch hitter in the bottom of the inning.

In other American League action, Bobby Murcer hit two more homers as New York Yankees trounced Cleveland 11-3 for the Indians' 12th loss in 13 games and Baltimore Orioles checked Detroit Tigers 5-2 on Dave McNally's five-hitter. Washington's game at Boston was rained out.

Jackson said he "didn't want to fight" Woodson. "That's why I tackled him. I wanted to show him I meant business. I had to protect myself."

"I don't blame him," said Athletics manager Hank Bauer. "I would have done the same thing."

Asked if he thought Woodson was throwing at Jackson, Bauer replied: "Definitely."

Twins manager Billy Martin said Woodson "wasn't throwing at him. He was told to pitch him up and in. The first was behind and the second a foot over his head."

Woodson said he tried "to pitch him inside. The first two balls he hit out (off Boswell) were low and away. My cleats caught on the rubber on the first pitch and the second was way over his head. He (Jackson) just lost his head."

HURT HIS EYE

Woodson suffered a gash on his right eyelid where he said "Jackson tried to take my eye out with his finger."

Jackson slammed a two-run homer in the first, then had a solo blast in the third. Sal Bando also homered for the Athletics in the first while Rick Monday contributed three doubles and two RBI's.

Ken Harrelson, recently traded by Boston, had a triple and a single in his debut as an Indian, but Yankee lefty Fritz Peterson, 2-2, yielded only four other hits.

Meanwhile, Murcer cracked a homer in the fifth after Jerry Kenney's single, then followed up in the next inning with another two-run job—his seventh of the young season.

In the National League, Nate Colbert returned to haunt the Houston Astros.

Last October the Astros decided the rookie outfielder couldn't help them this season and Colbert was picked up by San Diego Padres in the expansion draft.

Thursday night Houston club learned Colbert could hurt them. He beat the Astros 4-1 with his first big league homer, a three-run wallop in the eighth inning.

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati Reds edged Los Angeles 8-7, San Francisco Giants topped Atlanta Braves 5-1, St. Louis Cardinals edged Chicago Cubs 3-2 and Philadelphia Phillies rapped Montreal Expos 7-1. Pittsburgh was rained out at New York.

Colbert's blast sent the Astros reeling to their eighth loss in the last nine games.

Canadians Trail In Dallas Classic

DALLAS (AP)—Young Ken Fulton, of Trail, B.C., shot a blistering 32 on the front nine Thursday in the $100,000 Byron Nelson golf tournament. However, he soared to a 41 on the back nine and is well back in the pack going into today's second round.

Fulton's 73—he was tied with Al Balding of Toronto as the top Canadians—was seven strokes off the pace set by Bert Greene.

His front-nine 32 was matched only by Chris Blocker who had a 35 going home for a second-place score of 67. Tied with Blocker were Julius Boros and Bob Menne.

Other Canadian scores over the tough, 7,086-yard, par 70 Preston Trail Golf Club course were: Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg and Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver with 74s and Bill Wakeham of Victoria at 78.

HAVEN'T WON YET

Greene is in his third year on the tour, while Blocker is in his fifth year. But they've yet to win. And, with Menne, the trio has a total yearly earning of $8,905, $7,062 by Greene.

Menne had the only eagle of the day, pitching to within 15 feet on the par-five third and sinking the putt.

Greene and Blocker each came home on a string of three consecutive birdies.

The rock-steady Boros, PGA champion, didn't miss a fairway, three-putted two greens going out, but came home in 31, four under par.

A group of six was tied at 69, one under. They were: Arnold Palmer, U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino, Australian Bruce Crampton, lefty Bob Charles of New Zealand, Bob Lunn and Orville Moody.

Miller Barber, defending champion, blew to an 80.

CFB Esquimalt Vaults Into Second Place

KINGSTON, Ont. — CFB Esquimalt Terriers, who won the B.C. "B" volleyball crown at University of British Columbia earlier this month, moved into second spot Thursday with a 14-4 record after two days of competition in the four-day annual Canadian Forces championship.

Terriers moved up from fourth place by winning nine out of 10 matches played Thursday.

CFB Kingston, making a bid for a third straight title, was still in first place with a 16-4 record in the nine-team tournament.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Spraying pins for solid 833 series brought gardening enthusiast Theressa Dusseault into Times' Bowler-of-the-Week spotlight for first time. A great-grandmother, Theressa nipped under wire in last week of 27-week contest to take women's fivepin award with games of 277, 297 and 259 in Booster League at Capital City Bowladrome.

GARDEN EXECUTIVE NEGOTIATES

Jets' Sale 'Felt' Out

NEW YORK (AP)—Irving Mitchell Felt, chairman of the board of the Madison Square Garden Corp., is actively negotiating to purchase New York Jets of the American Football League, The Daily News reports.

There was no immediate comment from the four-man syndicate which with Sonny Werblin bought the franchise from Harry Wismer in 1963 for $1,000,000. This basically paid off accumulated debts.

The current price tag is reported around $20,000,000.

Werblin later sold his interest in the club, leaving it in the hands of his four associates, Phil Iselin, Leon Hess, Townsend Martin and the late Donald C. Willis.

The owners have let it be known that they will listen to offers.

If Felt should purchase the club, or the controlling interest, he would have to do so as an individual and not as a representative of the Garden since there is a pro football rule prohibiting ownership of a team by a corporation.

HEADING FOR WEEKEND MEET

Heading for weekend meet at Crystal Gardens is Jim Gollmer, one of city swimming aces who has been churning water in practice sessions for first annual invitational meet staged by Victoria Olympians. Gollmer will be contesting open and 15-16 age class events during two-day program, which has attracted many of top splashers from Pacific Northwest. On Saturday, heats will start at 9:30 a.m. and finals will begin at 6 p.m. On Sunday, heats will commence at 9 and finals are slated to start at 5.

Exclusive Grid Rights Locked Up

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver firm of Imaginaction International Ltd. has negotiated an exclusive franchise for commercial use of all team names, colors, badges and endorsements of the Canadian Football League and its nine member teams.

The agreement beteeen Imaginaction and the CFL covers all commercial promotions except play-by-play radio and television broadcasts and certain official league publications such as rule books and statistics.

Imaginaction president Norman MacKinnon said that game programs will remain local for the near future but that he expects existing contracts to be phased out, bringing them under Imaginaction control.

A similar deal with the National Football League in the United States nets an American firm $35,000,000 a year.

Under the deal, any firm wishing to produce sweatshirts, pennants, stadium blankets or souvenirs of any kind with team or league names, symbols or colors on them will have to obtain a franchise from Imaginaction.

Products such as football equipment seeking league, team or player endorsement would also have to go through the franchise holder.

"We have the right to call something official or endorse products used," MacKinnon said.

Imaginaction will pay the league a flat fee with an override provision and will in turn charge a royalty to those using league materials.

Mounties Sharing Lead With Indians

By The Canadian Press

Vancouver Mounties won another cliffhanger in Honolulu Thursday night as Marv Staehle came across with the winning run in the top of the ninth for a 4-3 Pacific Coast League baseball victory over Hawai Islanders.

Mounties opened the scoring in the third but the Islanders went ahead 2-1 in the fourth. Vancouver went ahead 3-2 in the top of the fifth but the Islanders tied it in their half of the inning.

The win was a big one and evened the Mounties' record at 7-7, good enough for a first-place tie with idle Spokane Indians in the loop's Northern Division.

Darryl Brandon was credited with the win as he walked three and struck out six. Reliever Ricky Clark was tagged with the loss.

In the only other game, Rich Barry spoiled Portland Beavers' home debut by driving in three runs with a homer and a single to lead Eugene Emeralds to a decisive 5-2 win.

Victory moved the Emeralds within 1½ games of idle Phoenix, the leaders in the PCL Southern Division.

Conservation Brief Escapes Red-Tape Snarl

By STEWART LANG

Governmental red tape only partially succeeded in muzzling a plea by the Amalgamated Conservation Society for the rehabilitation of coho salmon stocks in small rivers and streams of the southern British Columbia Mainland and Vancouver Island.

A detailed brief was to have been submitted to the standing committee on fisheries and forestry of the House of Commons at the Imperial Inn on Thursday night.

What actually was presented, orally, by the author of the brief, Howard English, turned out to be a shortened version of an already-tight document.

This is where red tape comes into the picture.

Bob Rogerson, secretary of the ACS, received a letter on April 9 inviting the society to present a brief before the committee when it met in Victoria.

However, in order to be officially accepted, 40 copies of the brief in English and another 20 in French had to be in Ottawa by April 14.

This left insufficient time to prepare a complete summary.

Rogerson wrote back on the society's behalf on April 16. He explained the situation and asked whether the conservation group could present their brief anyway. He was still waiting for a reply when Thursday night rolled around.

Though the ACS was unable to go on record with a more detailed oral submission, the full contents of the original brief were accepted in written form.

The ACS brief declares sports catches of coho and grilse have declined by some 68,000 fish, when the average catch of the past four years is compared to the four years of 1957-60. On the other hand, the average commercial catch of coho for the same periods has increased by an average of nearly two million coho.

Sports fishing returns have declined approximately 23 per cent but the increase in commercially-caught coho is over 70 per cent.

Because summer coho form the major game for sports fishermen, the ACS feels "a closer look at the problem of coho spawning escapement is needed."

The ACS document also declares: "The seriousness of this summer coho escapement problem in these southern waters is indicated by the specific cases of the Nanaimo and Chemainus rivers. Their combined average coho escapements have declined approximately 80 per cent, from approximately 11,000 spawners (1951-58) to less than 2,000 spawners (1959-66). A similar decline is evident in Howe Sound (Area 28) and the Goldstream River (in Area 19)."

It also shows that increased gillnet catches of both herring and salmon reflect in a lower escapement factor.

"Grilse nursery areas and coho holding and feeding grounds should be closed to herring fishery operations," the brief recommends.

"Rehabilitation of a number of depleted summer coho spawning escapements are an urgent major need of the valuable sports fishery . . ."

The brief charges that large amounts of money are being spent on the development of sockeye, pink and chum salmon for the commercial fishermen, but not as much is spent for the ever-expanding sports fishing industry.

Pollution control and the provision of adequate protected amounts of water in spawning streams were cited as some of the other important problems that must be met.

"It is not progress," the ACS stresses, "when a job is developed in some other industry by destroying a job in the fishing, recreation and tourist industries.

"Unilateral development in one industry that damages another industry is not sound development or progress."

Dow Seeks Pentane Buy

CALGARY (CP) — Chevron Standard Ltd. of Calgary said Tuesday that Dow Chemicals Ltd. is a prospective purchaser of pentanes plus from a $120,000,000 gas cycling plant it wants to build in the Kaybob south field of west-central Alberta.

Chevron witnesses told an Alberta oil and gas conservation board hearing that Dow would take 15,000 barrels a day of pentanes recovered by the plant. This would make up about one-third of the plant's production and would eventually grow to 26,000 barrels a day for use at Dow's plant in Bay City, Mich.

Chevron, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of California, proposes to process 615,000,000 cubic feet of raw gas a day to produce 395,000,000 cubic feet of residue gas, of which 100,000,000 cubic feet would be sold and the rest recycled.

Chevron would produce 15,300,000 barrels a year of propane, butane and pentane plus from the gas during a 21-year period, as well as sulphur.
